God's word

Taking on the grand task of moving from a familiar to a strange new place, was the responsibility of many as well as the administration.

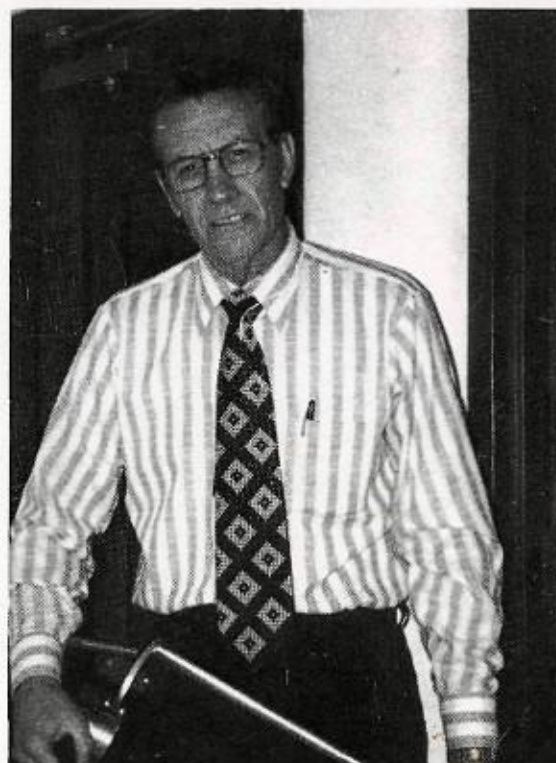

They had their hands full during the summer months, preparing the new building for the 75 school year; moving books, supplies, teachers, students, and to say the least, the tradition of the old AHS.

Comfortably settled in new luxurious offices, Mr. Otto Geer, Mr. Milton Baca, and Mrs. Peggy Jojola welcomed Mr. Charlie Aragon who took over the job of attendance.

Mr. Geer conducted weekly meetings with a newspaper reporter in order to communicate more with students and parents. The various new departments and functions were stressed at the monthly Advisory Council meetings.

The administration at the New Albuquerque High tried to make it a better and happier place for everyone.

The functions of a school are many and each demands a variance of skills and adaptable natures. Fortunately, for AHS, the team of secretaries, counselors, librarians, technicians and directors are of such material and tackle their jobs in a flowing, efficient manner.

It is those people that provide the students with one of the best facilities in the state. They are the ones who handle the endless amount of paperwork. They are the ones who secure financial data and spend long hours examining bill paraphernalia. They are the ones who take care of the expensive equipment and check to see if they are running as well as they should.

Although they receive no brilliant recognition, they are a deserving bunch that serve as a vital part of AHS.

AHS entered a new day of innovative studies enforced with modern equipment. Curriculum was expanded from the old, generalized classes to the new, specified subjects. American History became "Women in America," "History of Sports" or "Careers in America". English 11 became "Bible Literature," "Grand Funk" or "Classical Mythology".

The spectrum increased to include "Psychology," "Sociology," "German," "Humanities," "Measurements," "TV," "Zoology" and the "Reading Lab".

The Media Center added new possibilities with its ultra modern equipment such as the TV and radio studios, many new tape recorders, record players, TV sets, printing machines and so much more. In fact, AHS boasts being the best equipped school in the state.

With such new possibilities the teachers were able to expand their teaching methods to include many new ideas. Classes became intellectual, informal and fun.

And the teachers became even better friends. Learning became a sharing experience and school became a haven of warmth and joy.

"I think I'm going to enjoy teaching this course very much because it's always been one of my favorite areas of study."

Mrs. Hill, Mythology

"The best part of all classes is the students-the ones who are eager and enjoy working and sharing ideas."

Mrs. Ready, Whodunit?

"Death is a course about an important fact of life."

Mr. Herrington, Death

"Vocational Rehabilitation students are much like all the other people who attend AHS who deserve to learn and prepare themselves for a worthwhile life."

Mrs. Garcia, Vocational Rehabilitation

"Interesting is discovery, discussing and sharing our traditions and values and learning how to communicate with each other."

Mr. Neville, Mrs. McReynolds, Humanities

"I sincerely hope that with the students help and cooperation that they and I can expand the German program at AHS."

Mrs. Iftner, German

"Students learn facts concerning sex and are encouraged to examine their values and how they relate to sexuality."

Keeping the school clean and looking as new as the day AHS students first entered the gleaming white hallways became the seemingly unsurmountable task for the custodians to accomplish.

Still the merry group of men faced their jobs with a smile and a joke and a deep dedication to AHS. They could be seen at games cheering and leaping with joy even though they had so much work ahead of them.

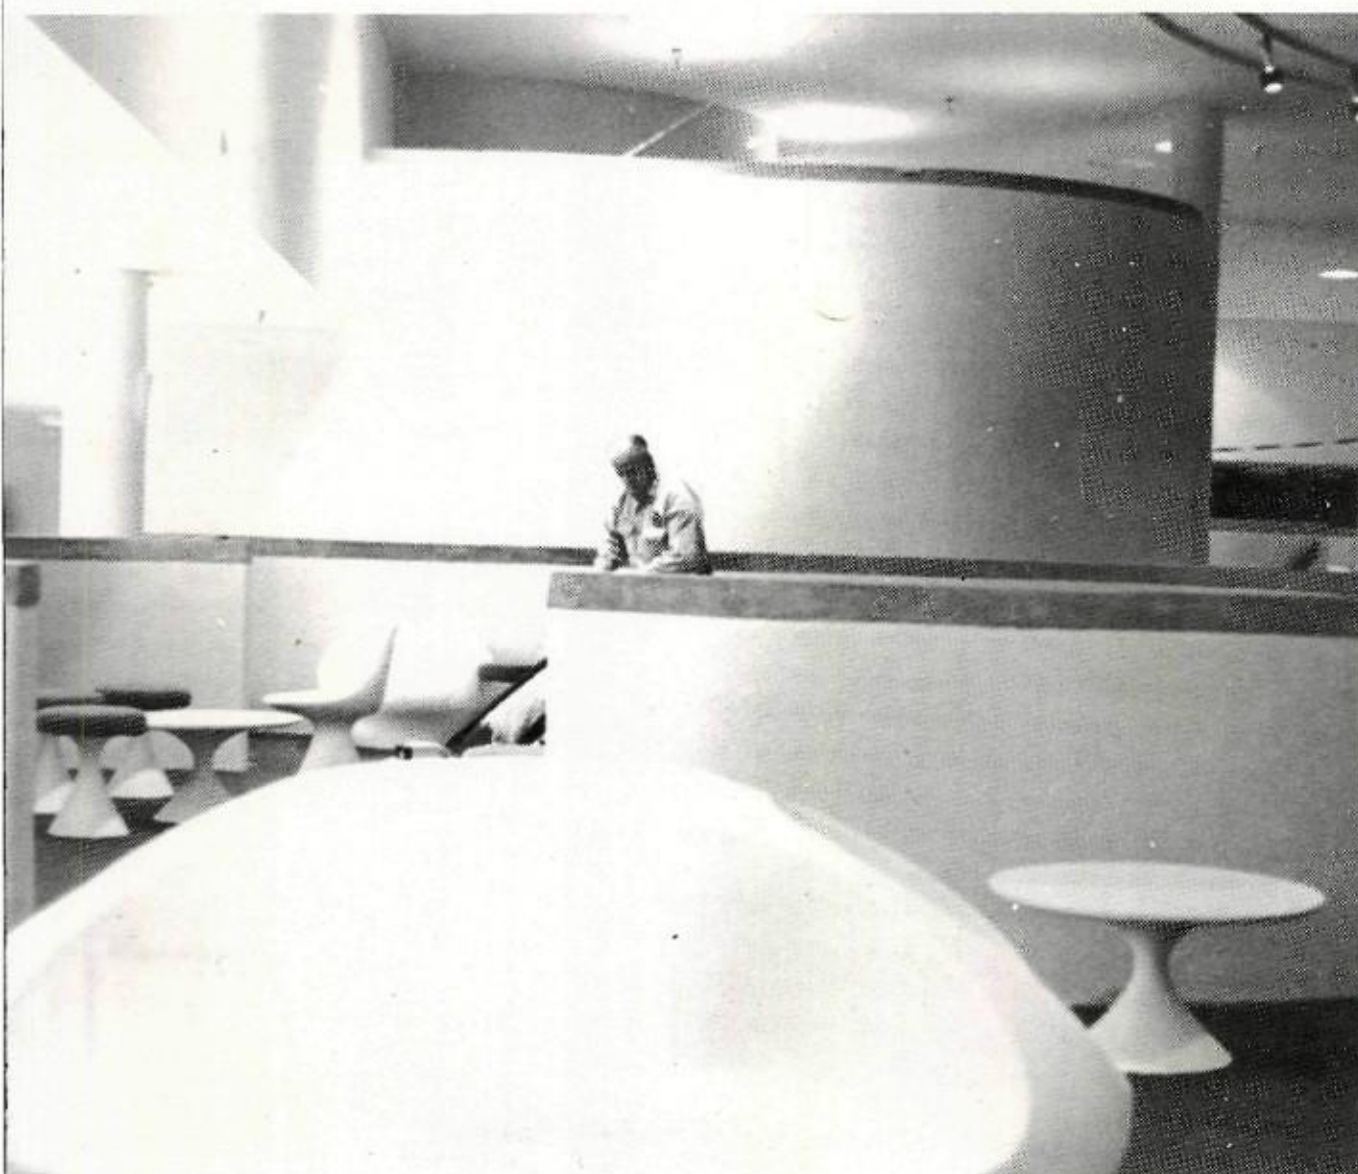

Such are the true Bulldogs which care so much for the school, as do the cafeteria workers who, year after year, listen to the insults and take them with smiles. Adding to their workload were the classic "Battle of the Styrofoam Trays," breaking and scattering their contents hither and yon.

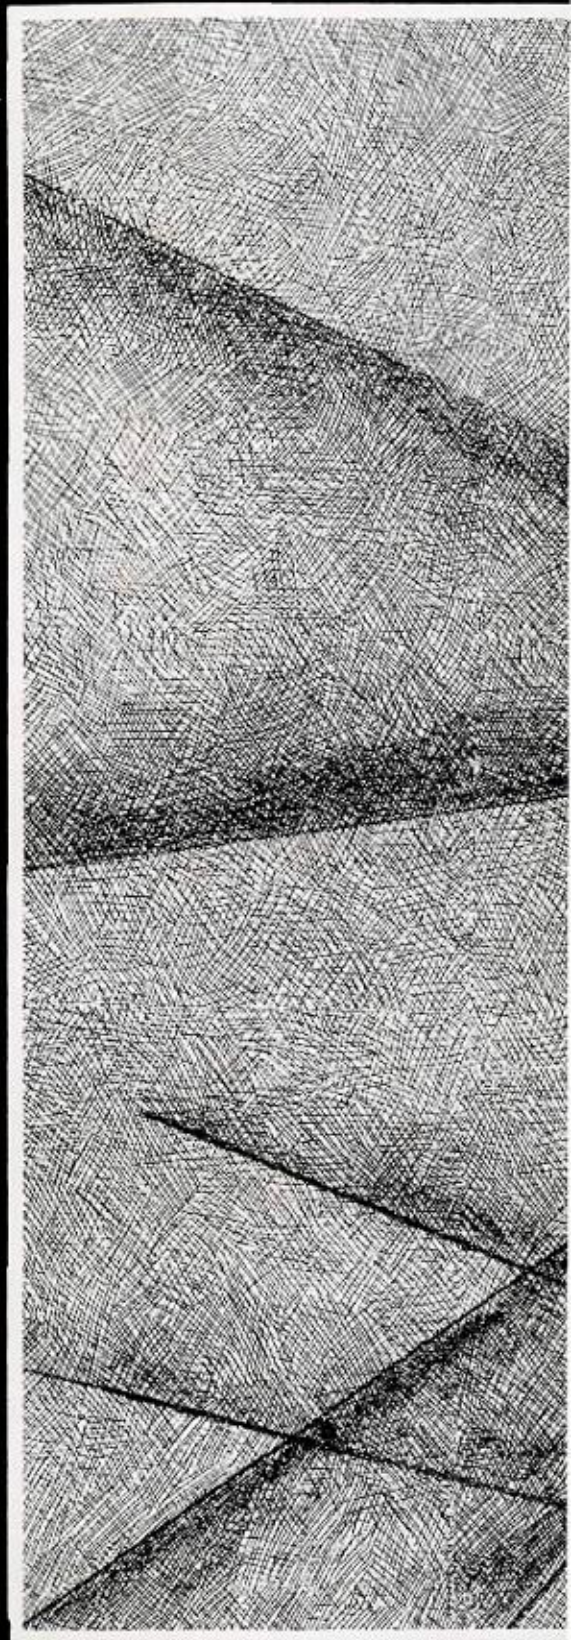

These dedicated men and women provided a clean and healthy environment for AHS students and earned a warm niche in many hearts.

B-team, Sophs Elections Start New Year

The year got off on the right foot as B-Team and Sophomore elections were held. The student body gathered in the spacious new gymnasium early Wednesday morning to hear convincing speeches and watch the nervous candidates for B-Team do their cheers.

As it was the first indoor assembly, there was much expectation for one of the best assemblies ever, but as it was, the outcome was a bit of a disappointment; and there was little enthusiasm to reward the candidates with the self-confidence they needed.

Knowing the outcome of the assembly would mean their election into office, each candidate tried his best to "give it all he had."

The day went slowly as all of Albuquerque High anxiously awaited the results.

Manny Abeyta, Jerry Romero, and Maria Muniz were elected President, Vice-President, and Secretary-Treasurer, respectively.

Chosen as representatives to Student Senate were, Belinda Saavedra, Elizabeth Chavez, and Olondo Baca.

The B-Team cheerleaders selected were Debbie Adler, Patsy Candelaria, Cindy Romero, Angela Vigil, Stephanie Romero, and Theri Raby - Head.

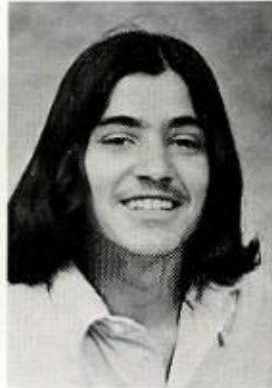

The Sophomores felt right at home in our new building and adapted very easily to the new excitement of being a high school student.

The anxiety of the first days were soon gone and the time for hard, tireless work had started. The Sophomores were one of the first organizations to start their activities. Bake sales and car washes headlined their money-making projects, in order to raise money to buy the scepter for our Homecoming Queen.

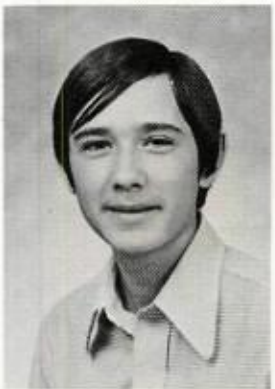

The Senior Breakfast, also sponsored by the Sophomores, kept up the tradition of being their most important and successful of activities.

Women Lead Spirit of '76

It is customary for the juniors to spend time harrasing the poor, dusty, confuse sophomores. It was made somewhat more difficult this year due to the fact that the juniors were just as lost and confused as the sophomores in the facility! It wasn't too long before everyone felt at home in the new school, and better late than never, the juniors started the tradition of harrasing the sophomores.

This year was off to a good start with President Patricia Martinez, Vice-President Lillie Marquez, Secretary-Treasurer Christine Saiz and Senators Maria Chavira, Carmela Brito, Phyllis Thomas, and Mary Lyon.

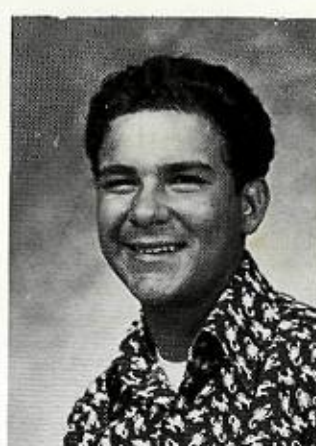

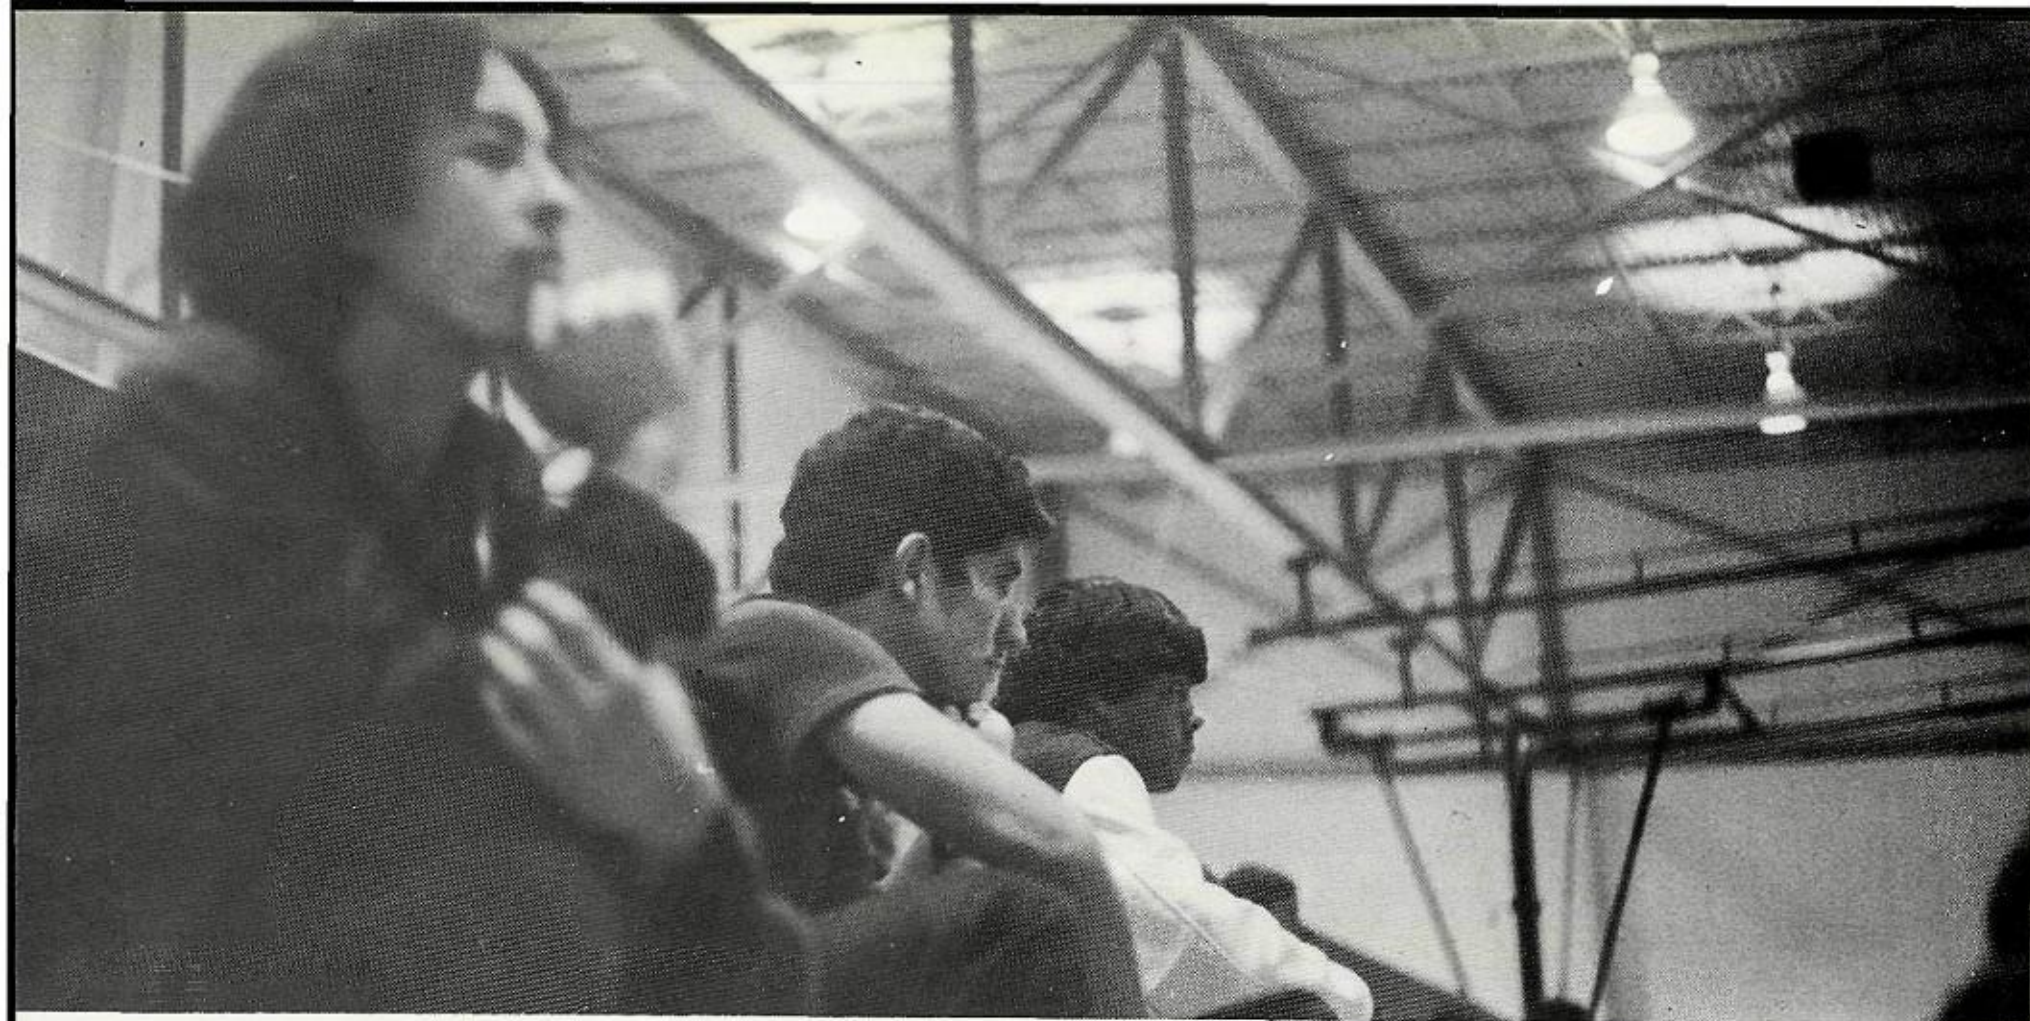

Junior House spent many hours working on projects during the year, including ball sales, and in October the spiningling movie Frankenstein Meets Wolfman, was shown with the most spooky haunted house ever, following.

The first prom of the new Albuquerque High School was held at the Albuquerque Convention Center. It was one of the best proms Albuquerque High has ever had.

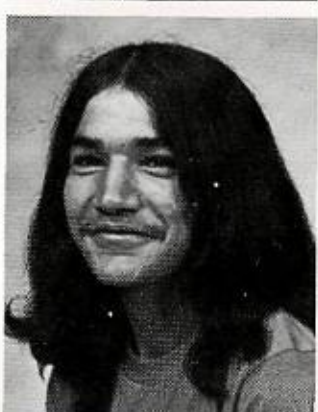

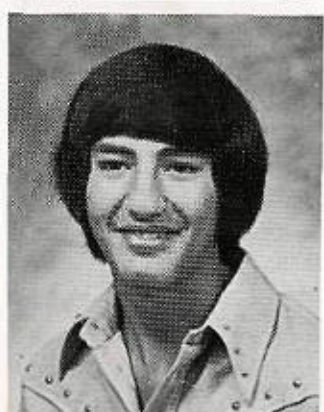

Many hours were spent on various projects, none of which would have been possible without the help of Mrs. Leah Ready who spent much of her time and effort in helping Junior House during the year.

Cavalier Leads Strong Team

The AHS Cross-Country team participated in nine meets this fall never finishing less than 4th in any of the regular season meets excluding invitationals.

Seniors running for the Bulldogs were Dennis Cavalier, Anthony Alfaro, and Randy Isler. Juniors were Chris Chavez, and Andy Cavalier. The biggest problem this year was a lack of depth. Needing at least 20 runners for an effective program, this year only five loyal Bulldogs came out for the team.

Varsity Sweeps Valley 14-6

Bulldogs lost a hard fought football game to the Ravens of Rio Grande. Herbert Stanley started at fullback and led all rushers with 72 yards on 18 carries and had 2 fumbles. Penalties hurt the Dogs throughout the game. Despite the penalties, the Bulldogs played a good hard game. The final score, 12-0.

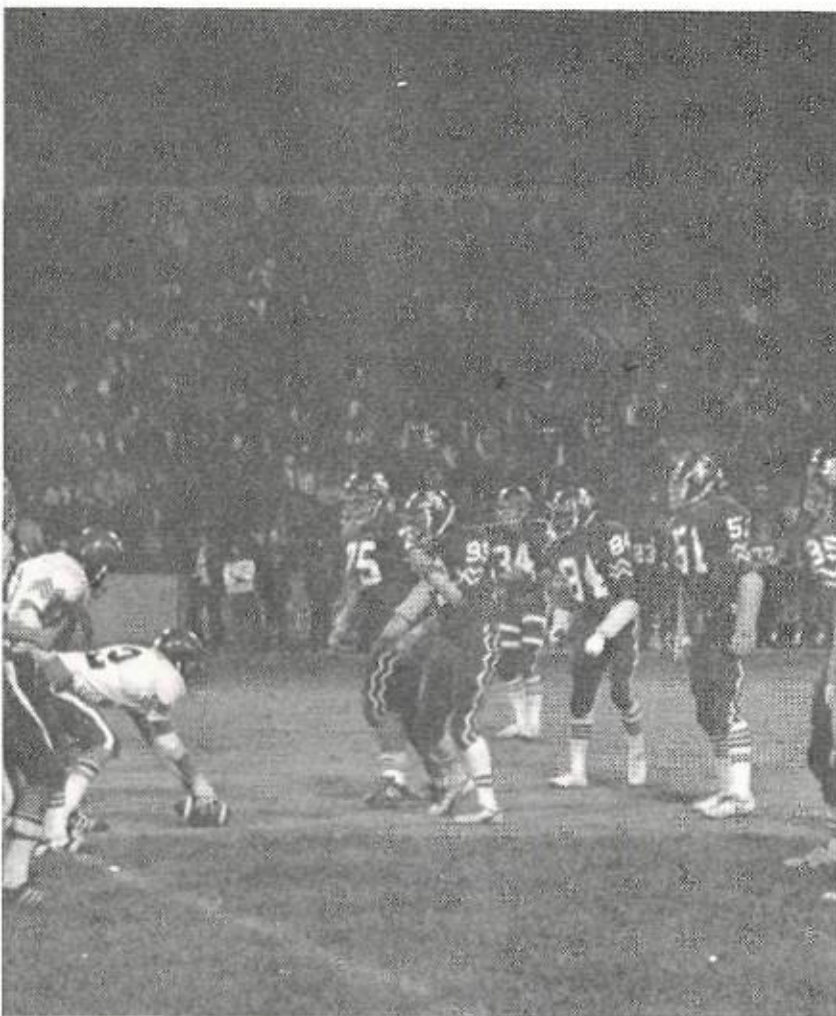

The Mighty Bulldogs bounced back to get a victory over the scrappy Vikings. The Green Machine piled up 234 yards rushing. Herbert Stanley had a 42 yard run in the final quarter to assure a victory. David Worthy also scored on a 12 yard run. Laudy Montoya ran for the extra 2 points to give the Dogs a 14-6 victory.

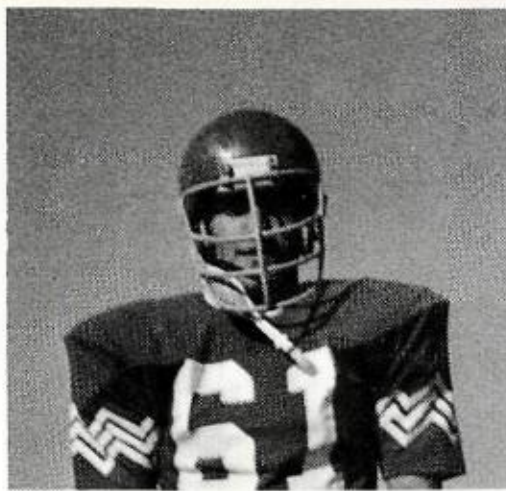

The Bulldogs lost a heartbreaker against the Sandia Matadors. Big Herb ran for 148 yards. Total yards for the Dogs was 235. Herbert caught the only Bulldogs pass in the game, a 15 yard aerial from Laudy Montoya. In the closing minutes of the game, the Bulldogs started a drive that seemed unstoppable, a drive that started at the Bulldog's 16. The Bulldogs went 81 yards to the Matadors 3. Then the mistake of mistakes-the Bulldogs fumbled on the Sandia's 3 to lose the game 20-13 in the final seconds.

TOP ROW Pictures left to right 1: Herbert gets yardage against Sandia. 2: Herbert Stanley scores against Valley while Johnny Lewis watches. 3: Coach Smith poses for the camera. 4: David Worthy finds a hole against Valley. MIDDLE ROW Pictures left to right 1: Herbert Stanley gets tripped up. 2: Offense comes to the line of scrimmage. 3: David Worthy gains yardage against Farmington. BOTTOM ROW Pictures left to right 1: Reggie Walker finds it rough against Sandia. 2: Tom James 3: Ismael Baca 4: Herbert Stanley 5: Rick Nuñez 6: Robert Trujillo 7: John Lewis

Against Manzano the Bulldogs tried to up their record. The 1-2 Bulldogs gave Manzano a good hard hitting game but penalties plagued the Dogs who lost 19-0.

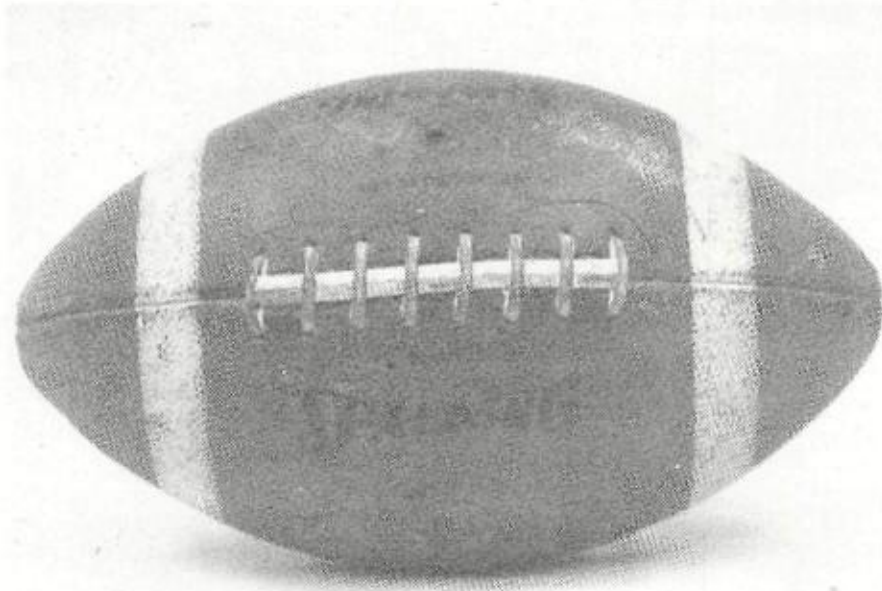

Up State Farmington came from the North and was supposed to beat the Dogs by 21 points but the Mighty Dogs gave them their best game of their season in the final quarter. The score was 6-6 as the Dogs were trying for a field goal with 9 seconds left. As Reggie Walker was trying for a 30 yard field goal, it was blocked, and picked up by a Farmington player who ran for a touchdown. The final score was 14-6, Farmington.

The hard luck Bulldogs' record dropped to 1-4; the Bulldogs with injuries at this time couldn't match the strength of West Mesa and lost 28-0.

The Bulldogs traveled to Santa Fe with a strong team. However, Santa Fe had a strong defense which limited the Dogs to one T.D. The Bulldogs lost 27-7.

Gallup, November 8, proved to be a tougher team than the Bulldogs, as the Bulldogs lost this game, 19-0.

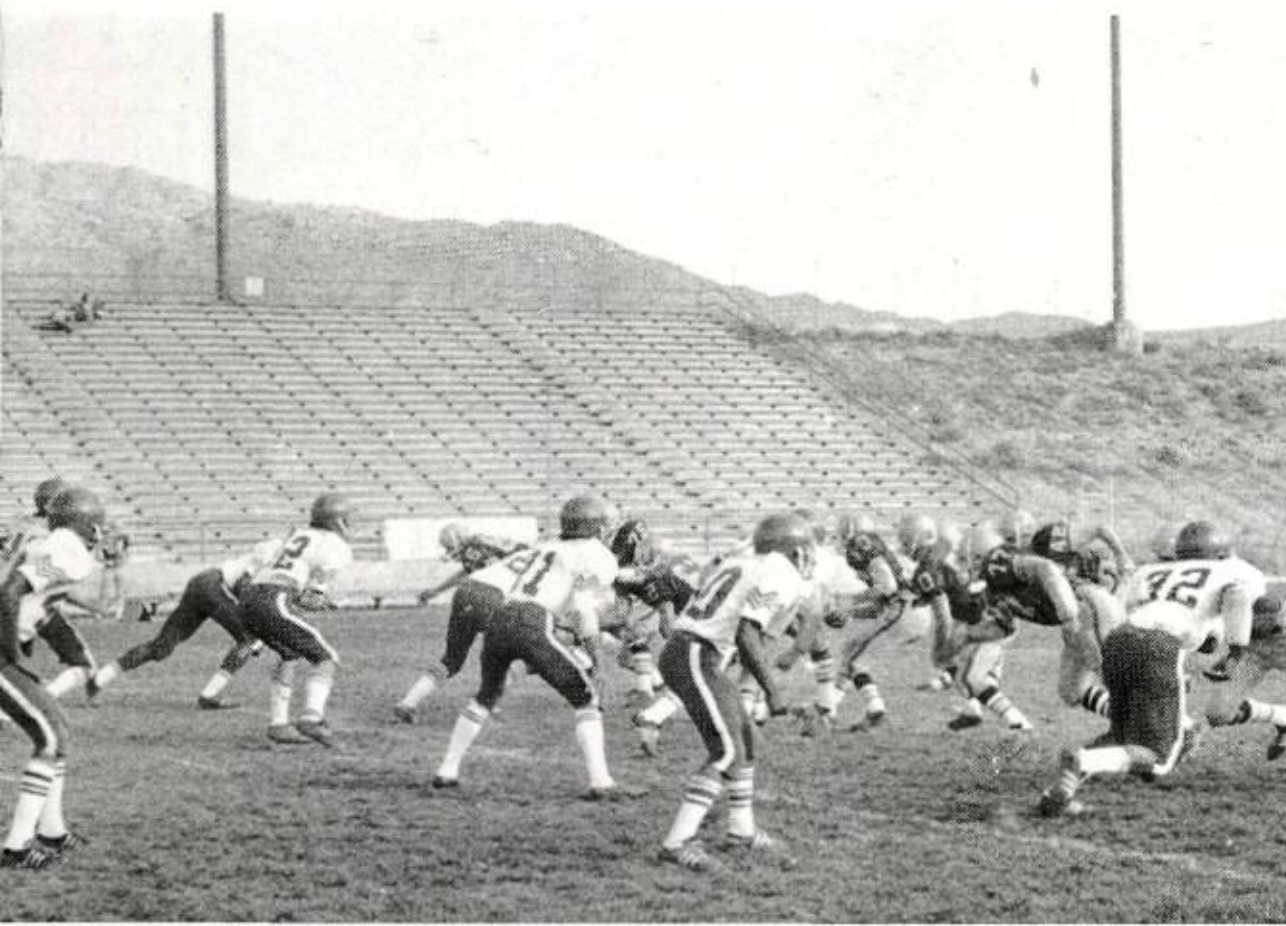

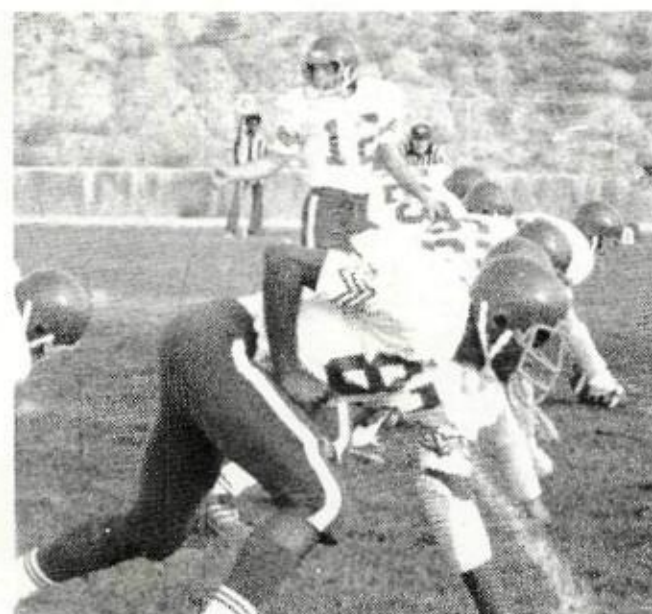

The 1-7 Bulldogs had a good team all year but, penalties and mistakes and hard luck forced the Dogs to have a bad season. The Los Alamos Toppers outmanned the Dogs' 41-12. In their final game, the Dogs' record was 1-8. Coach Smith praised Herbert Stanley saying he was THE BEST fullback in the State.

Retirement For Smith Ends Era

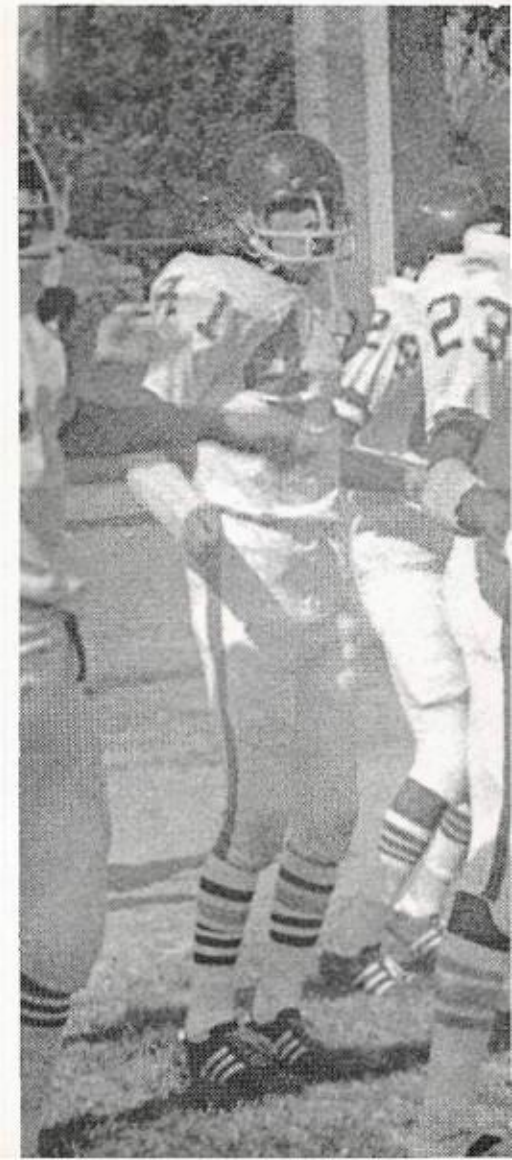

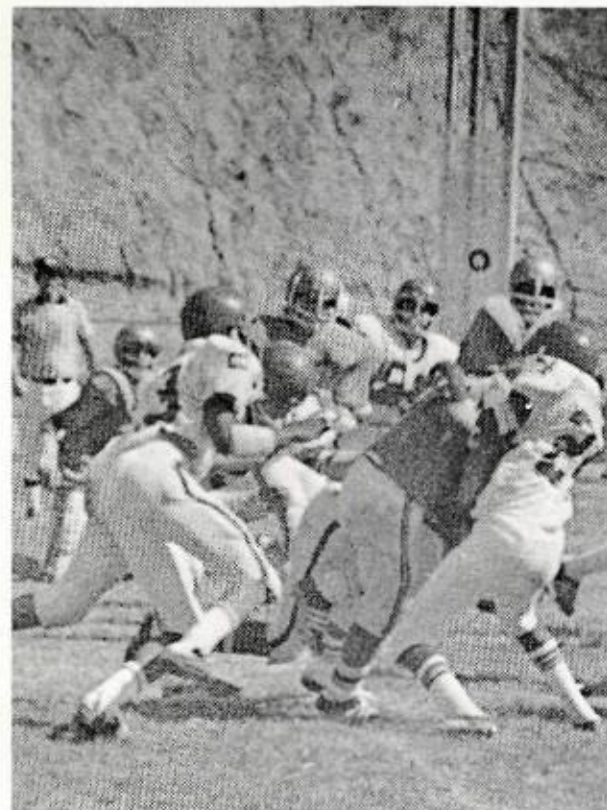

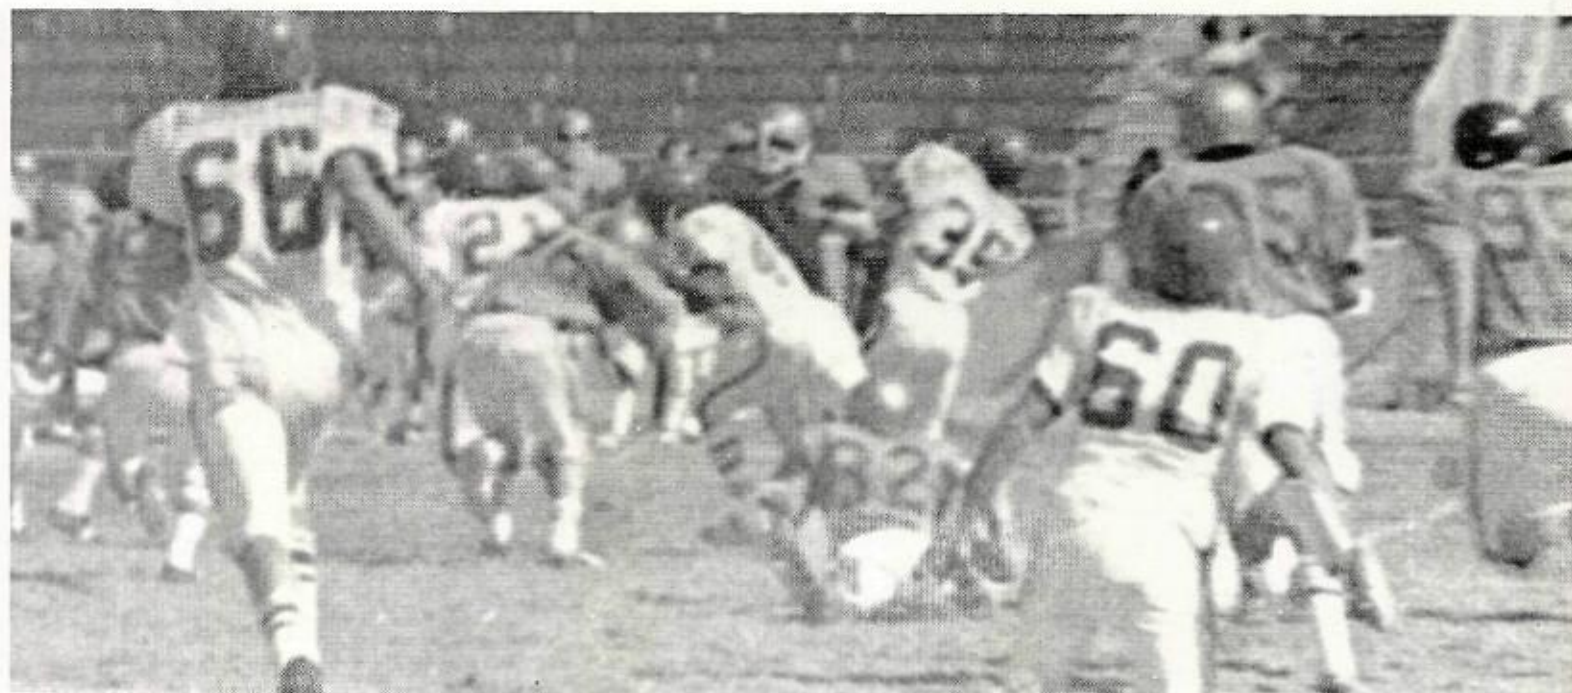

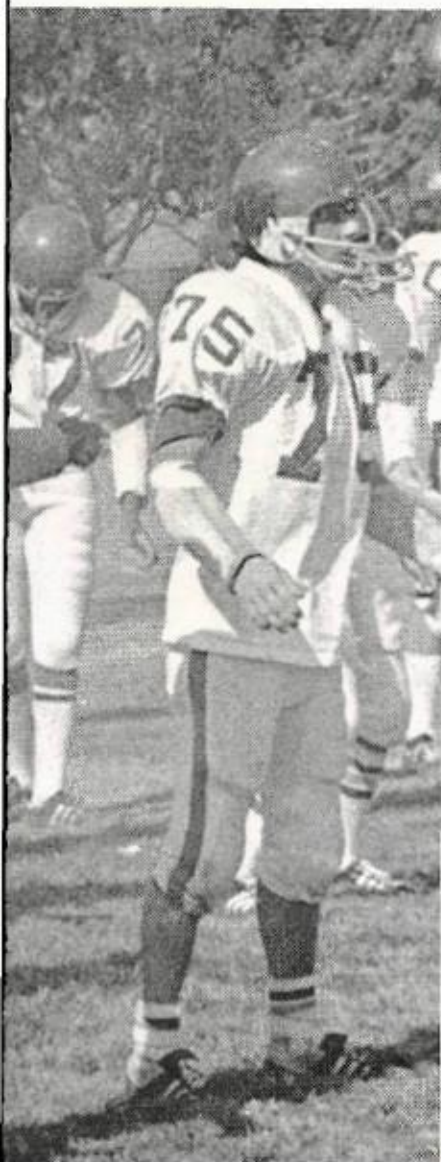

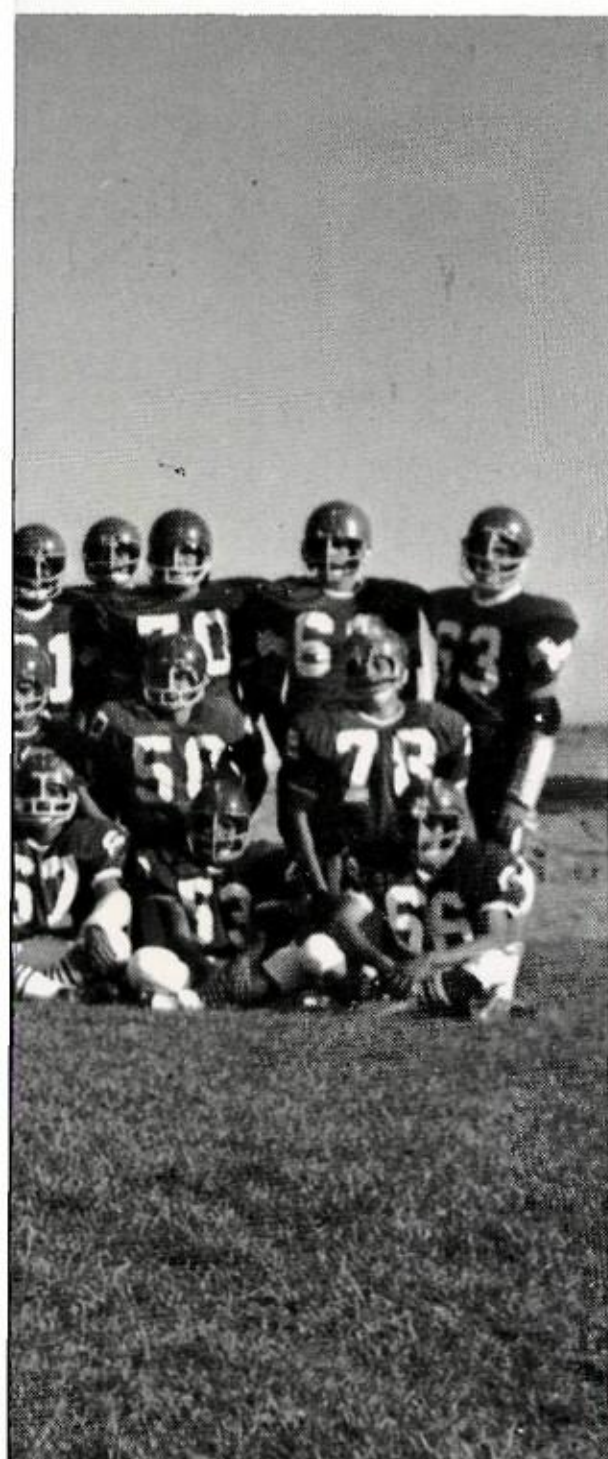

B-Team Has Winning

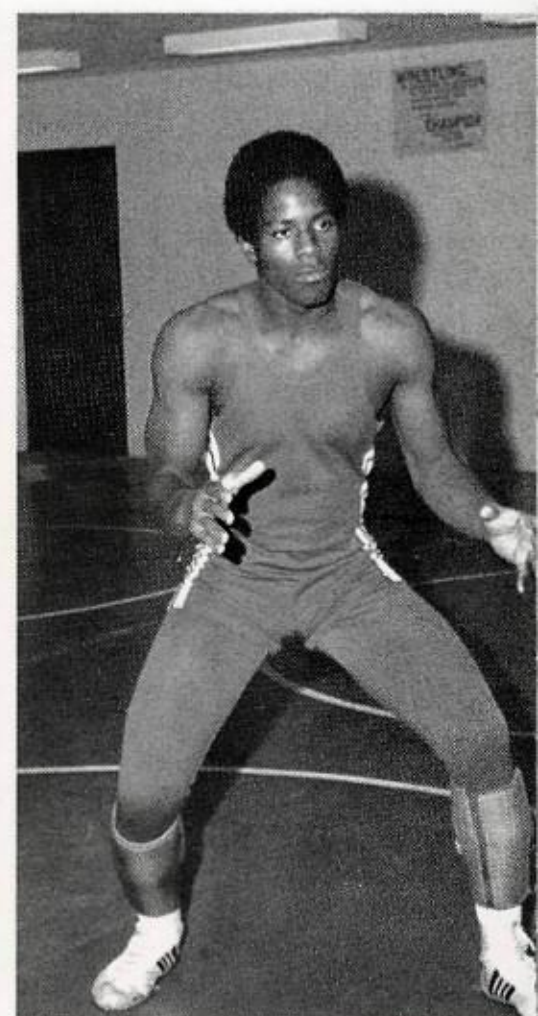

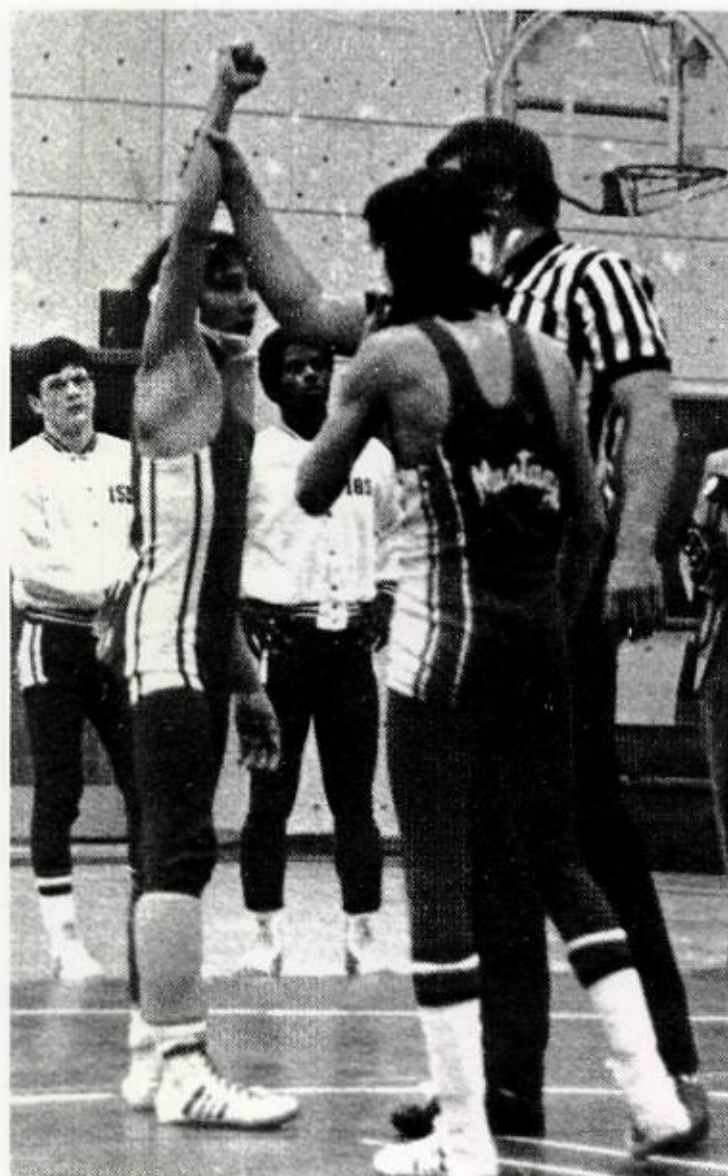

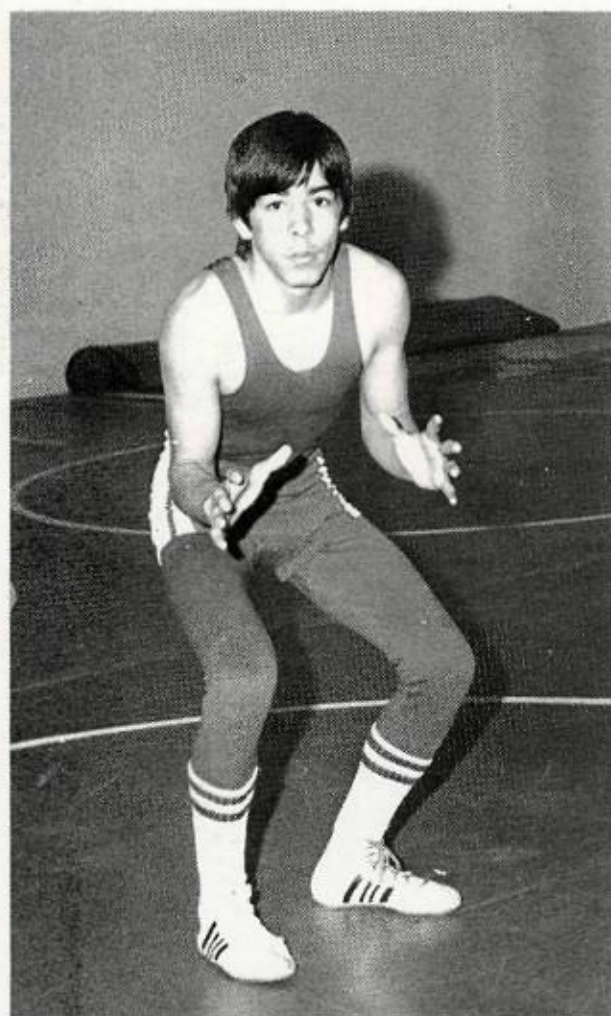

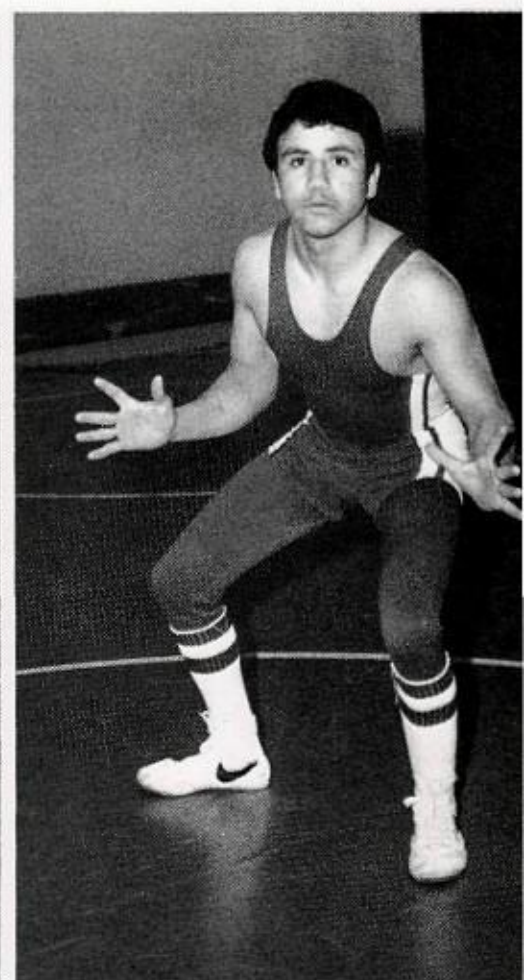

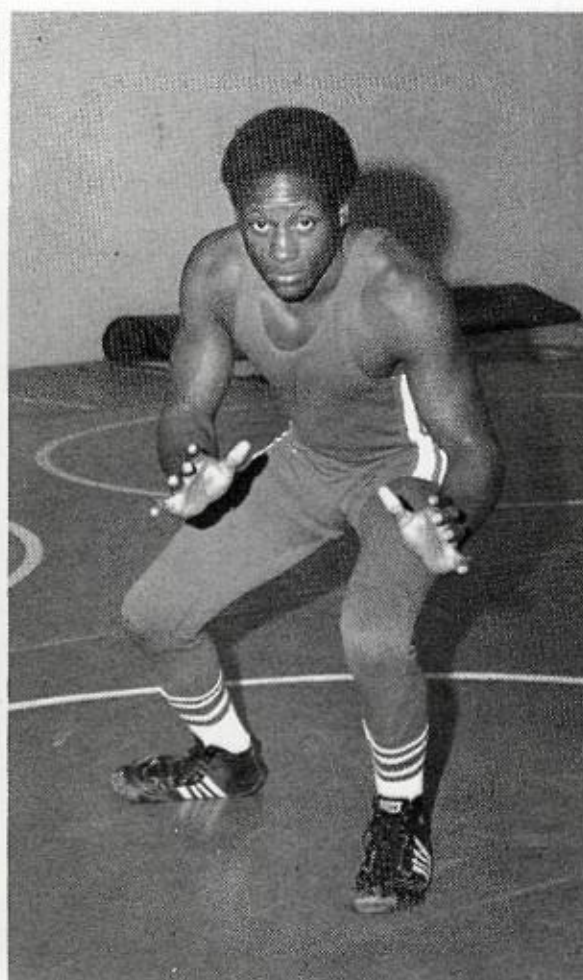

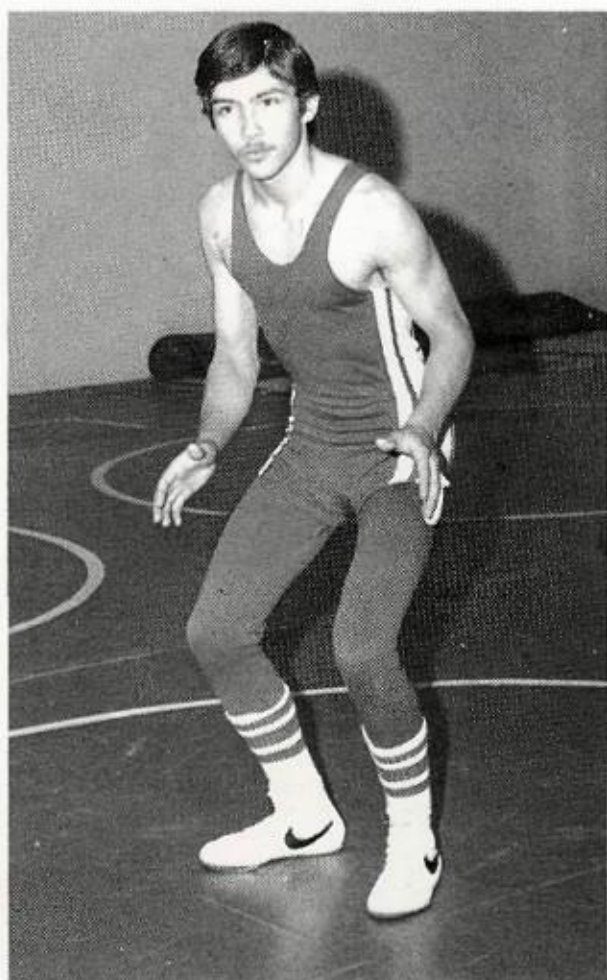

Junior Varsity represented a very good projection of AHS's future in the area of athletics. Individuals from four different Junior high schools, each with very distinct attitudes, contributed to the team. This gave the junior varsity its most prominent characteristic, a cosmopolitan spirit. This spirit is not only characteristic of AHS junior varsity, but Albuquerque High School's future athletic and academic pursuits. The B-Team had speed and finished the season with a record of 5-3-2.

Five Wrestlers Take State Titles

The AHS Wrestling Team, coached by Mr. Art Simoni, had a very good year with a 10-3 season record. They lost only to Eldorado, West Mesa, and Manzano due to forfeits. The team took second place in the district and fourth in the state. Two senior State Champions were Mike Garcia and Herbert Stanley, both with a record of 31-0 and both will go to college on wrestling scholarships. Billy Johns and Leroy Montoya are both seniors who were third in the state and were District Champions. Stanley Garcia, a junior, took a second in the district and a second in the state ratings.

Pup Grapplers End Season with 7-3

Record

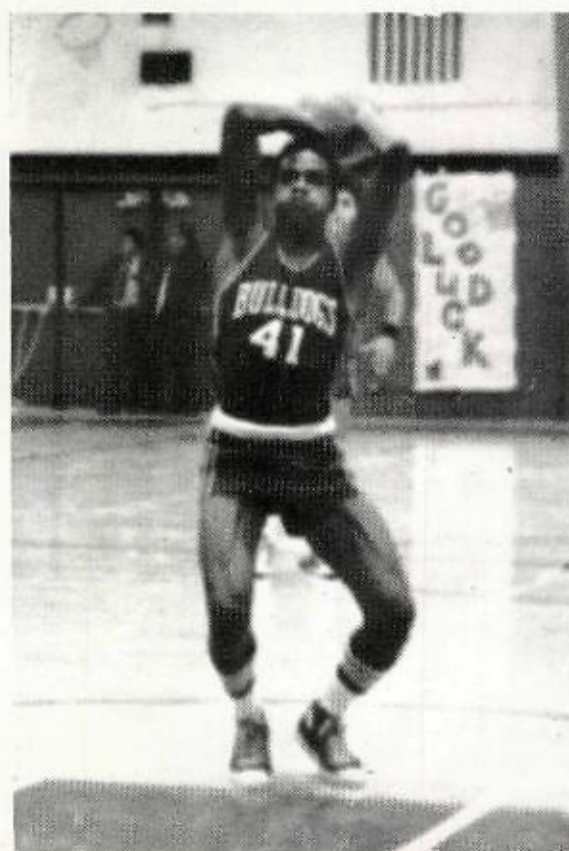

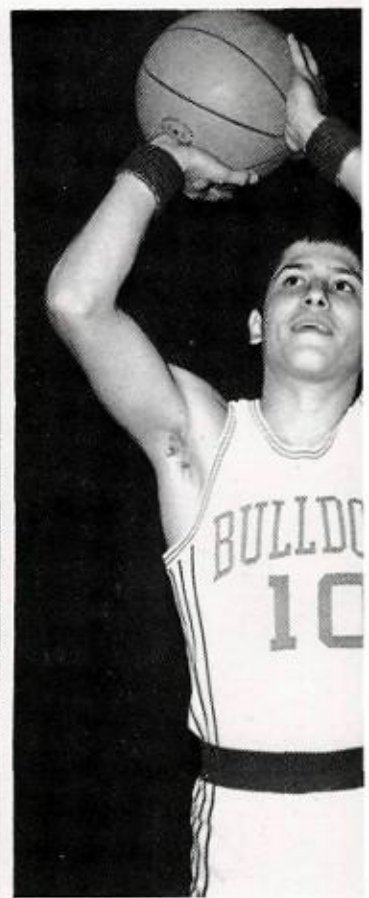

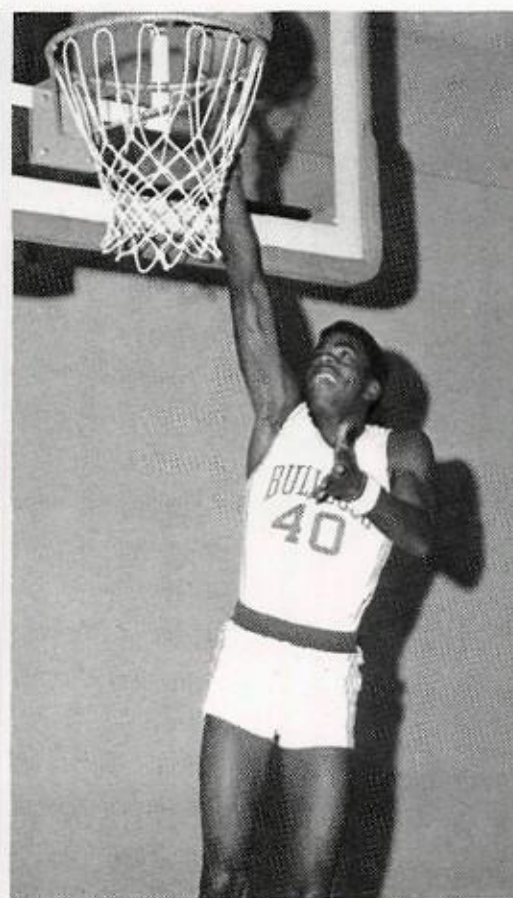

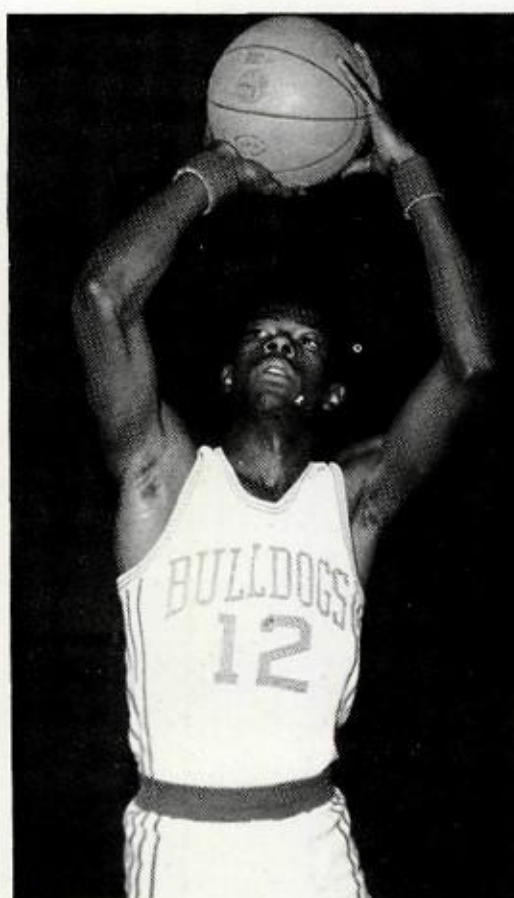

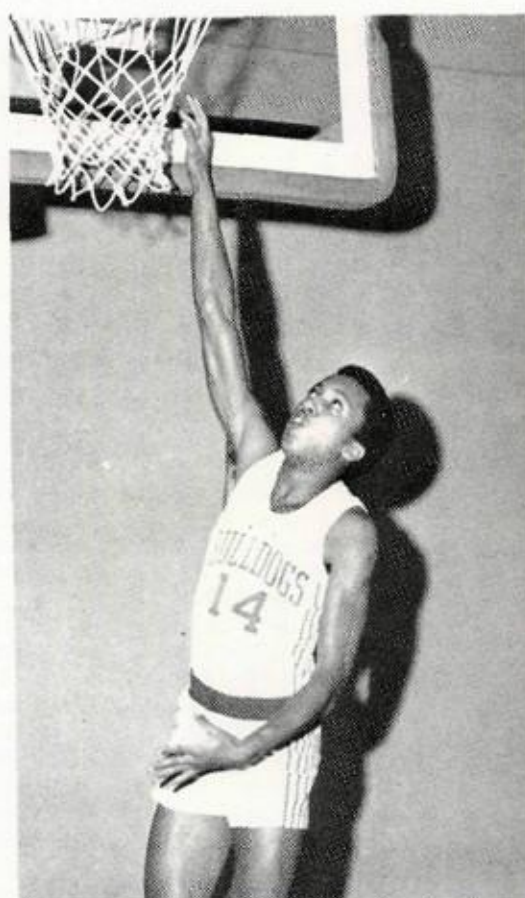

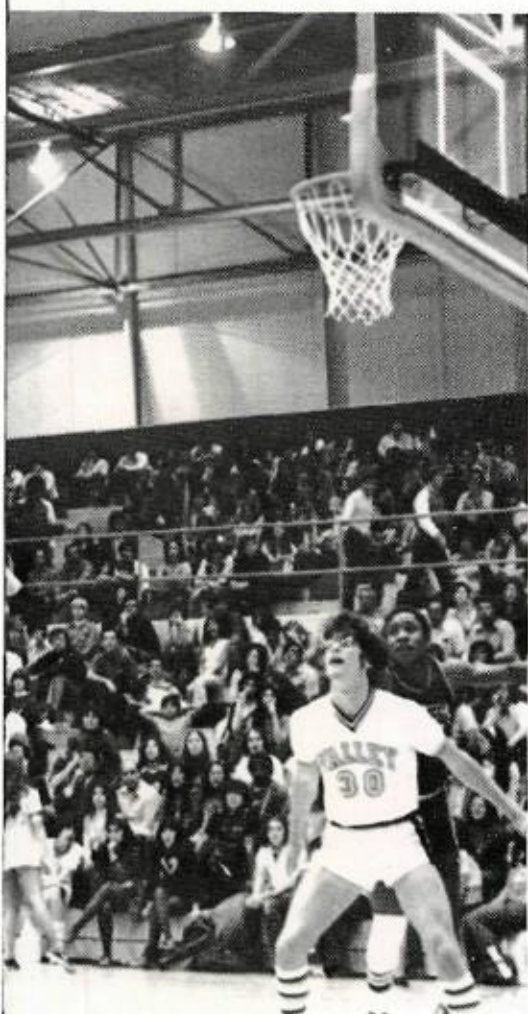

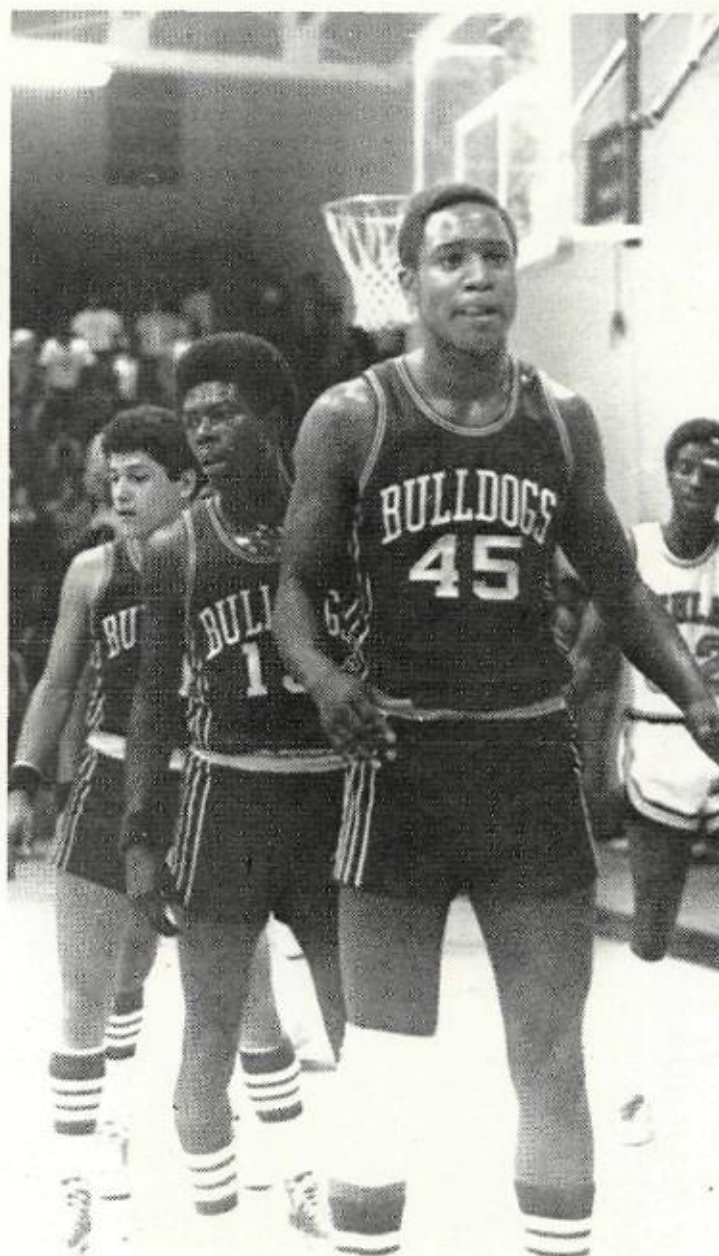

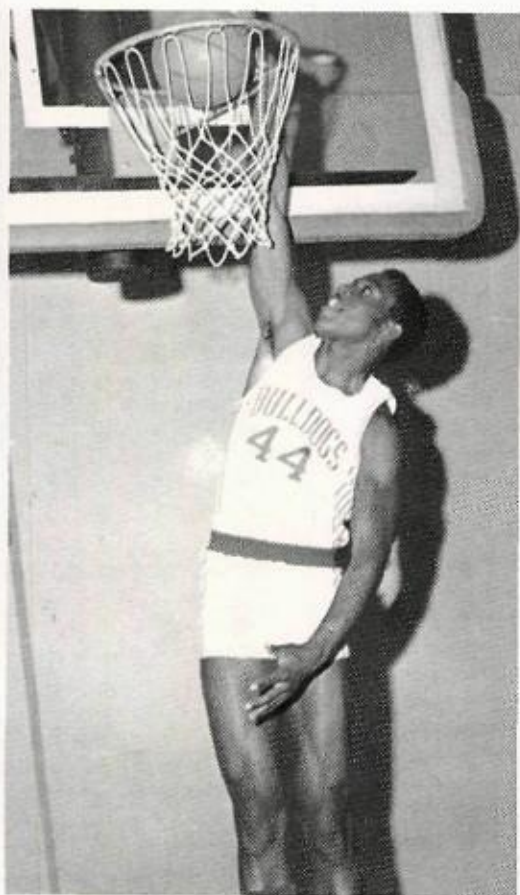

The Albuquerque High School Bullpup wrestling team finished the 1974-75 season with a total won-loss record of 7-3. The Pups tied for 5th place among 16 teams in the State B-Team Tournament. The AHS B-Team had three grapplers that placed high in post season tournaments. Billy Cline and Dean Rogers placed 2nd and 3rd in the B-Team state meet. Frank Saiz took 2nd in the Manzano Invitational. Coach Simoni said, "There are a couple of tough individuals that will help varsity next year."

Bulldogs Go to State 6th St

raight Year

AHS advanced to their sixth consecutive state tournament to keep the winning tradition alive in "Bulldog City."

The Bulldogs wrapped up the 1975 regular season with a misleading 15-8 mark. Though this record doesn't exactly stand out, the Bulldog basketball team does. Five of the Bulldog losses were to teams who were, at the time, rated in the top ten in the state of New Mexico.

Playing in the new gymnasium, the dogs picked up five straight wins without a defeat.

The AHS cagers also set a mark in Bulldog history. The 1000th win mark, which came on Saturday night, January 25, 1975 saw the dogs whip Santa Fe 68-64.

Bulldog basketball has had standouts in previous years, but this years squad used balance offense to lead their attack. Wing Ed Hunt finished with a 14.2 point average per game while point man Ron Estrada ended with a 12.9 average.

The dogs were beaten out for district championship, but appeared in the state tournament for a record six consecutive years.

The Bulldogs kept the winning tradition alive with skill, determination, loyalty, and, as Coach Jim Hulsman put it, the "ghost of the Bulldog" watching and guiding us to victory.

Top row left to right: 1. Alex Ramirez plans next offense play for the Bulldogs. 2. Anthony Hovey concentrates on an important free-throw. Middle row left to right: 1. Bullpups Maintain

Although many people consider 13 an unlucky number, the Bullpup basketball team found 13 players make a winning team. Seven of these players came up from last year's winning Dukes, and the remaining six were transfers. The returners included David Salas, Louis Sanchez, Henry Estrada, Mike Gonzales, Danny Varela, Victor Roybal, and David Worthey. Transfers included Jack Newsom, John Eckert, Matty Romero, Kit Carson, and Jim Thomas. They added much depth to the '74-75 Bullpups. The pups were very strong competitors, winning 21 of their 22 outings, with their only loss at the hands of the Highland Bees. The Bullpups were coached by last year's C-team coach Abe Estrada who sported a glossy 65-13 won-loss record in his previous five years as Dukes coach.

Dukes Crush Opponents With High Game Margins

The 1974-75 Dukes finished this year with an astonishing 19-1 won-loss record with first-year head coach Bill Herdee. The Dukes crushed their opponents with an average 35 point margin per game. The C-team players came from 6 different surrounding junior highs. Coach Herdee said these young men were an exceptional bunch of players that would make great varsity hoopsters.

Tennis Team - Best Since 1957

Tennis team Coach Valdez praised the team this year by saying this was one of the best teams he has ever coached. The last tennis team Valdez coached was in 1957 when they won the state title. This year's team had the best players in the school's history. The team consisted of the following: Mike Maloof, a transfer from N.M.M.I. who won the state AAA singles title; Julie Sanderson, one of the best women players in the city; Kirt Kempter, a top player for 16-year olds; Stan Morgan, who also is a top 16 year old player; Anast Griego, who placed fifth in 1-AAAA district doubles; William Brown, who finished second in a city tournament; Eric Garretson, who is a consistent player who adds great depth to the team and who also enters in many tournaments; Norman Sedillo, who placed fourth in the 1974 district 1-AAAA playoffs and helped last year's team to place third. This year's team had great depth, and the quality to win district.

The AHS golf team finished up the 74-75 season with a narrow one stroke finish behind Valley in the Paradise Hills tournament at Paradise Hills on the opening day of November.

The different places played at by linkmen shot at were Arroyo del Oso UNM North, Los Altos, Gallup, Farmington, Los Alamos, Albuquerque County Club, UNM South, Santa Fe, and Paradise Hills.

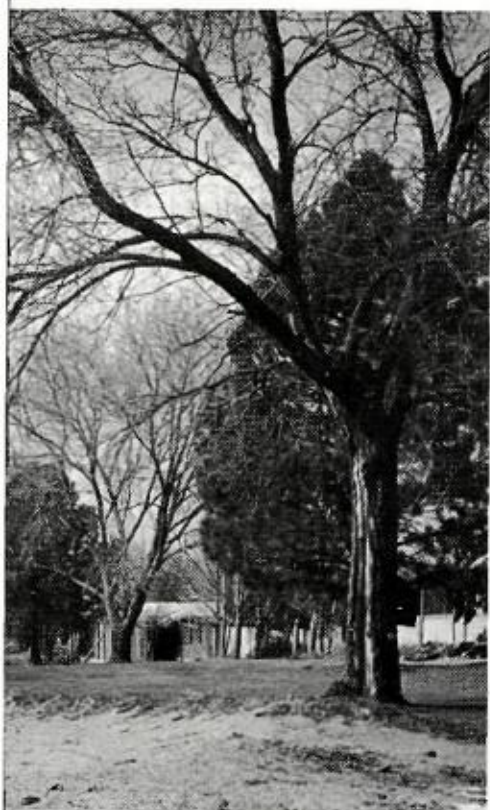

Swinging for the teesters are Steve Long, who had 7 years experience; Mark Winn, 2 years of playing and Larry Vigil; Anthony Listy, 1 year of experience; James VanderHeyden, 1 year experience.

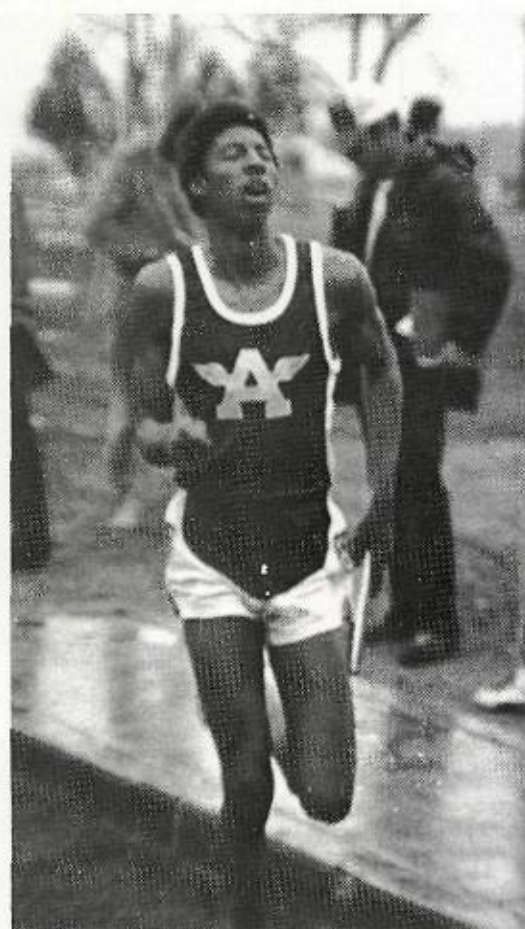

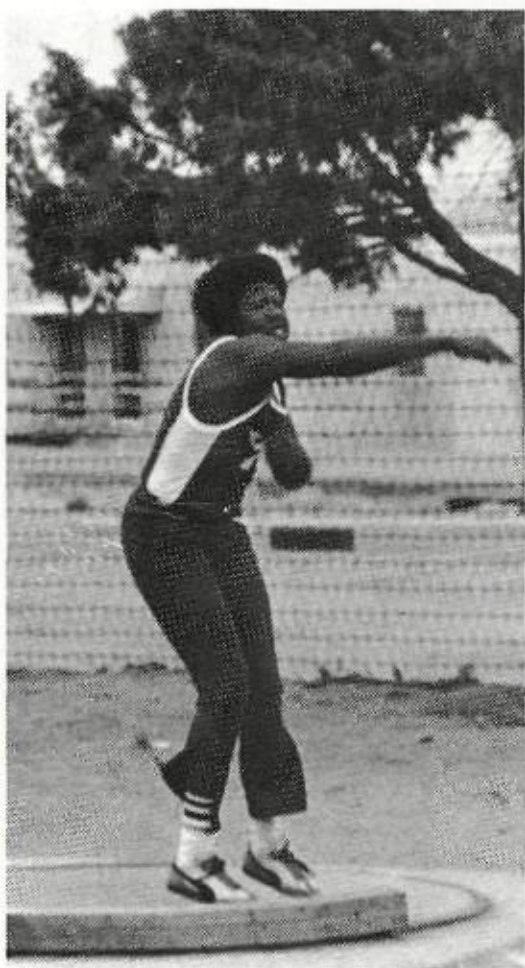

James VanderHeyden said that the main problem with this year's team was lack of experience. He said, "We've played against people who have been playing for 7 or 8 years. Next year will be looking for a good season. We'll be more mature. Other schools will be losing their seniors. They'll be rebuilding. We'll be built."

Golf Team Hampered by Inexperience

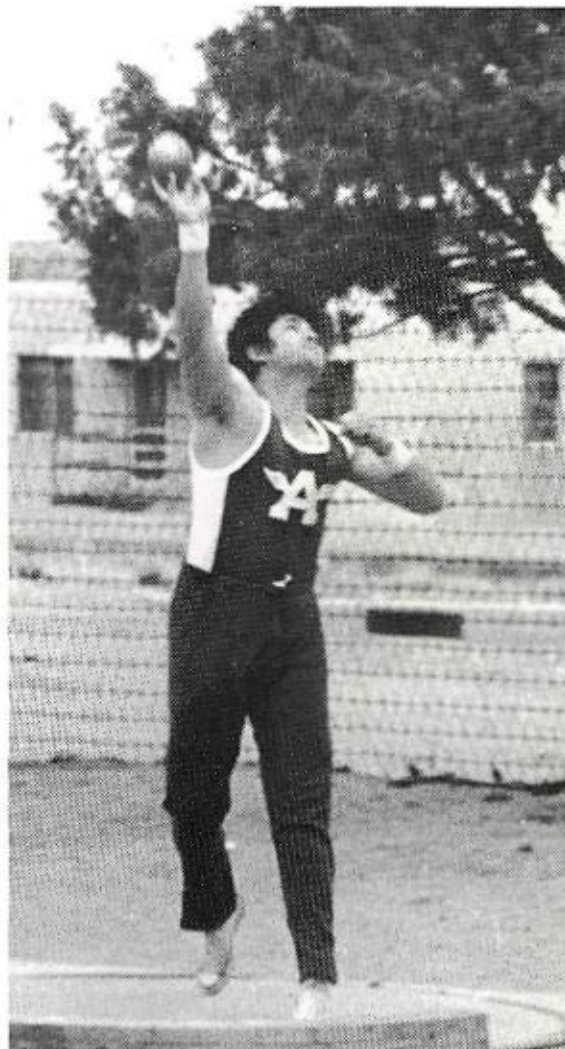

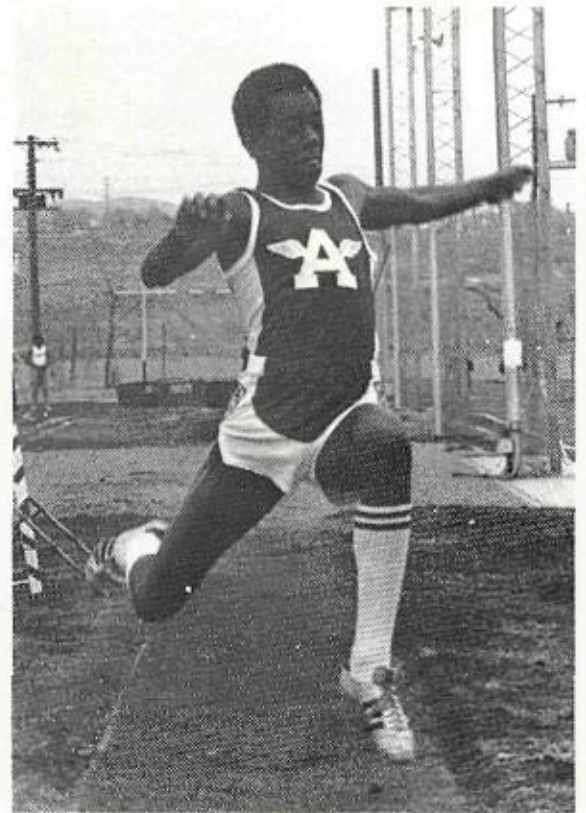

John Wilson - Top Shot Putter in the City

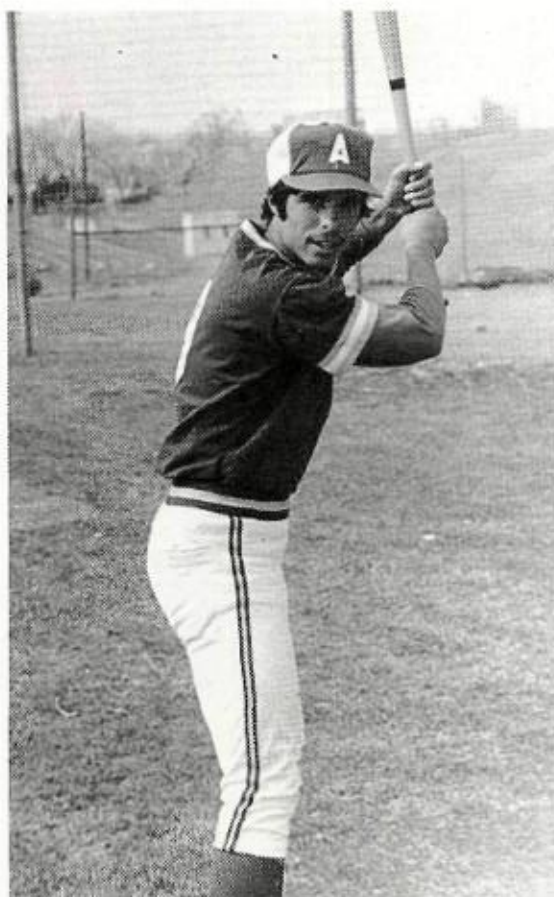

Speed and strength are the qualifications of a good Track Team. Coach Medley felt his team had the qualifications, but the lack of members kept the team from taking first in many events.

This year's team had the top shot putter in the state. John Wilson finished first in this event in each track meet. The team also had speed. Eugene Agnes helped the team place high in the relay. The team lost a lot of seniors from last year, who won the State AAAA Medley Relay.

This year's team was rebuilding and will take a state team championship in two or three years. Track is not the main sport in the city, but track helps improve an athlete's speed, strength, and mental abilities.

Daniel Chavez Pitches Excellent Season

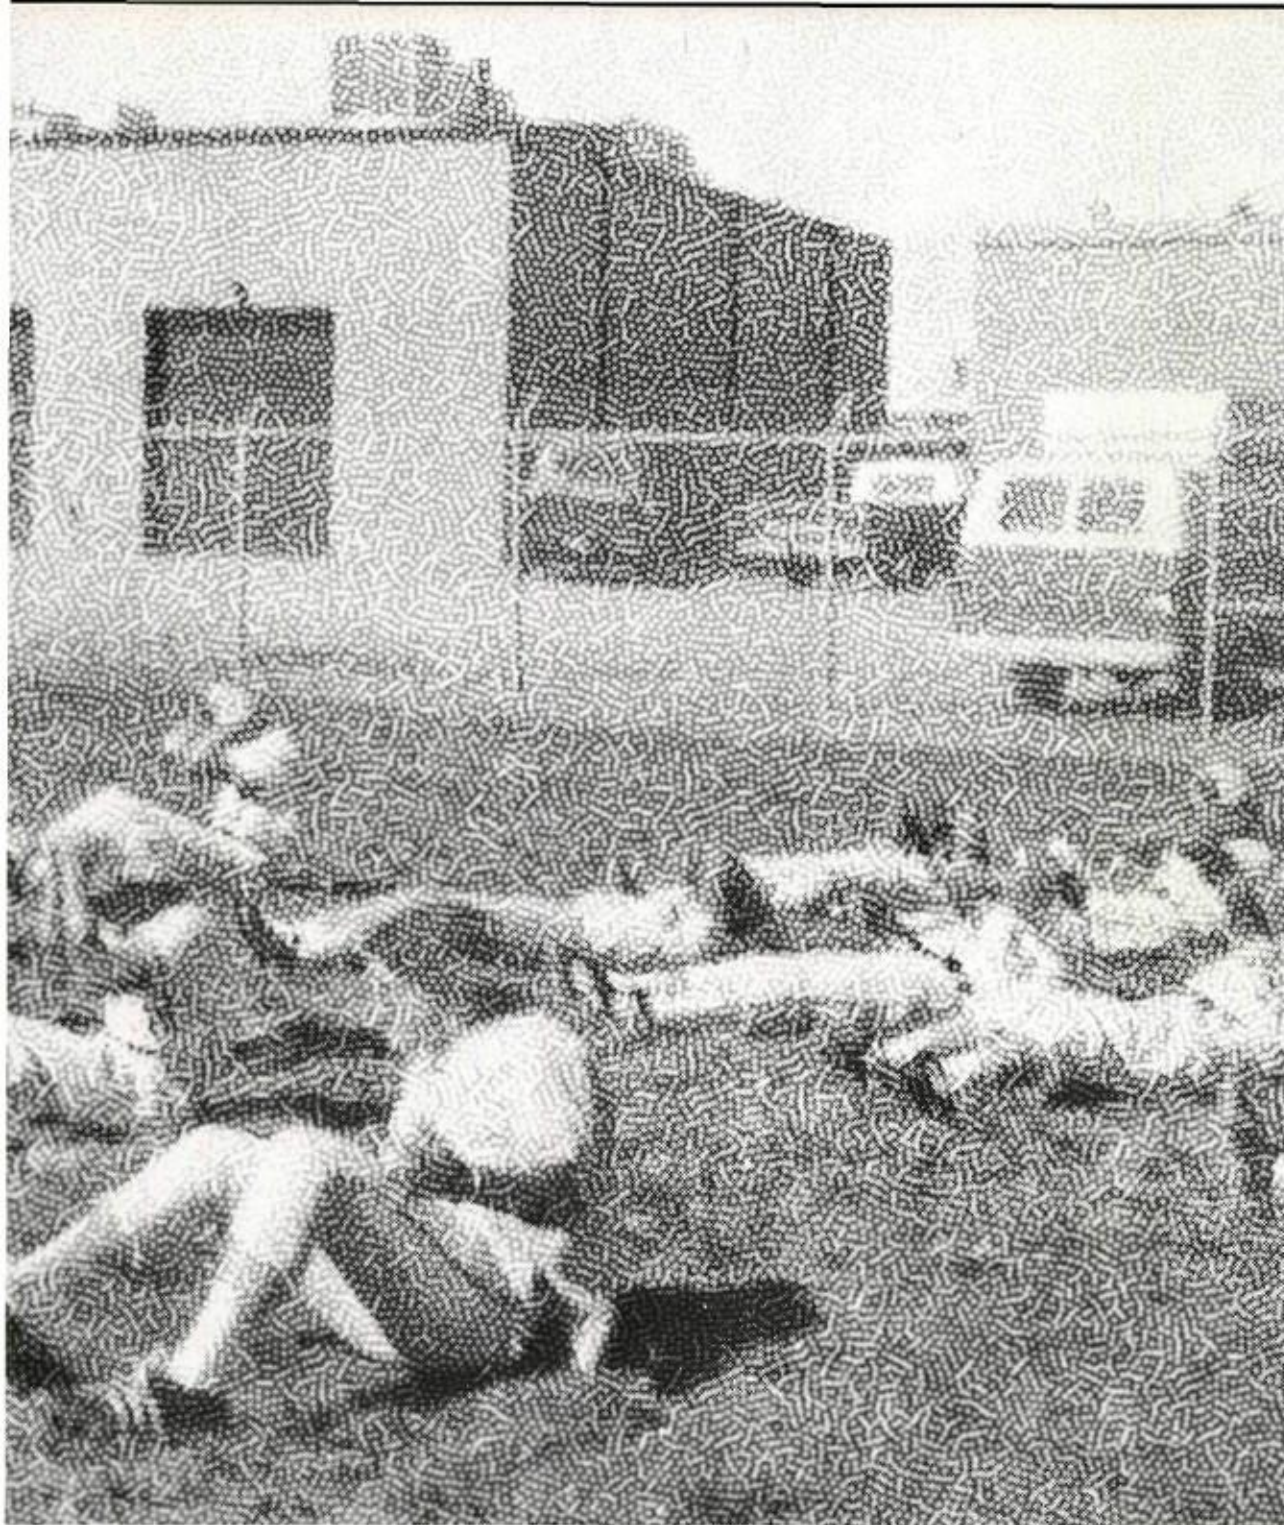

Coach Lopez expected a better season this year with more enthusiasm from the school than ever before. His expectations were correct and made that way by the hard work of all concerned. The Bulldog Varsity Baseball team of 1975 showed Albuquerque High and others how a team full of talented players can bring excitement to the game of baseball. Four star players of the team were: Daniel Chavez, pitcher; Michael Gomez, shortstop; George Garcia, catcher; and Shorty Salas left fielder.

New Coach Adds Enthusiasm to Junior Varsity

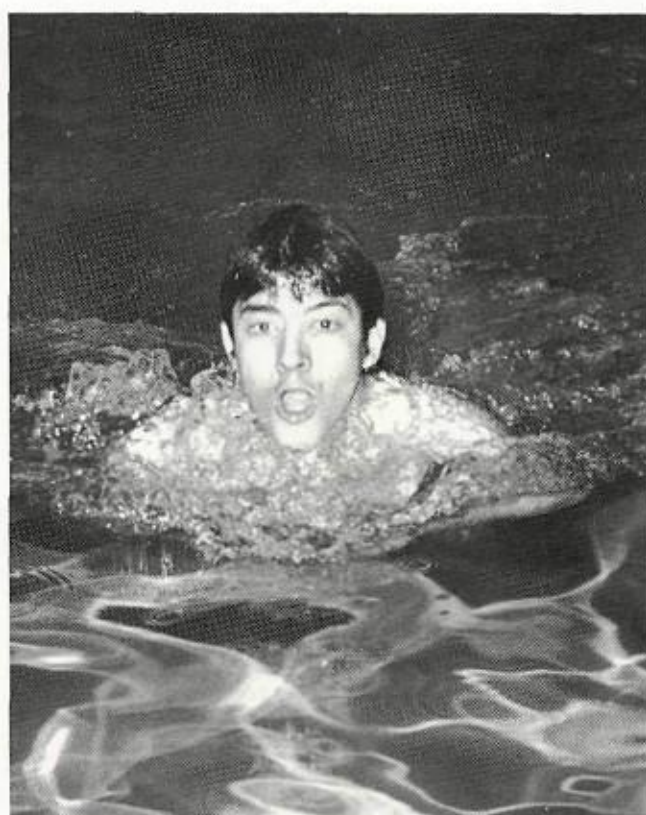

Displaying hard work and a lot of heart, the B-Team baseball members did their best to represent AHS in the best Bulldog tradition. While having a losing season, the team members were not discouraged because they knew the year was a building year and expect to show strength on the varsity squad next year. Mark Scholz was the coach for the B-Team.

For the first time in 20 years, AHS has a swim team. The team consisted of one junior and sixteen sophomores. Everyday the team traveled in the school van to Valley to practice in the Valley pool. Since the swim team consisted of many sophomores, the team was building to a AAAA state power. This year's team had determination and desire, but the lack of experience resulted in a slow season. The team considered Weldon Hall their team leader. Members of the swim team were junior Weldon Hall, sophomores Kurt Branch, Bridget Brennen, Chris Chabai, Melissa Crawford, Pat Forshey, Beth Gilmore, Scott Hardy, Bruce Woody, Kathy Watson, Carla Padilla, Chris Montoya, Mike Ross, Jeff Vallentine, Silvia Pacheco, Dee Dee Norman.

Girls' Athletics Program Expands to Include More Sports

Girls athletics has consistently played a small role in high school sports, however, this year at AHS the program expanded into a considerably more important position.

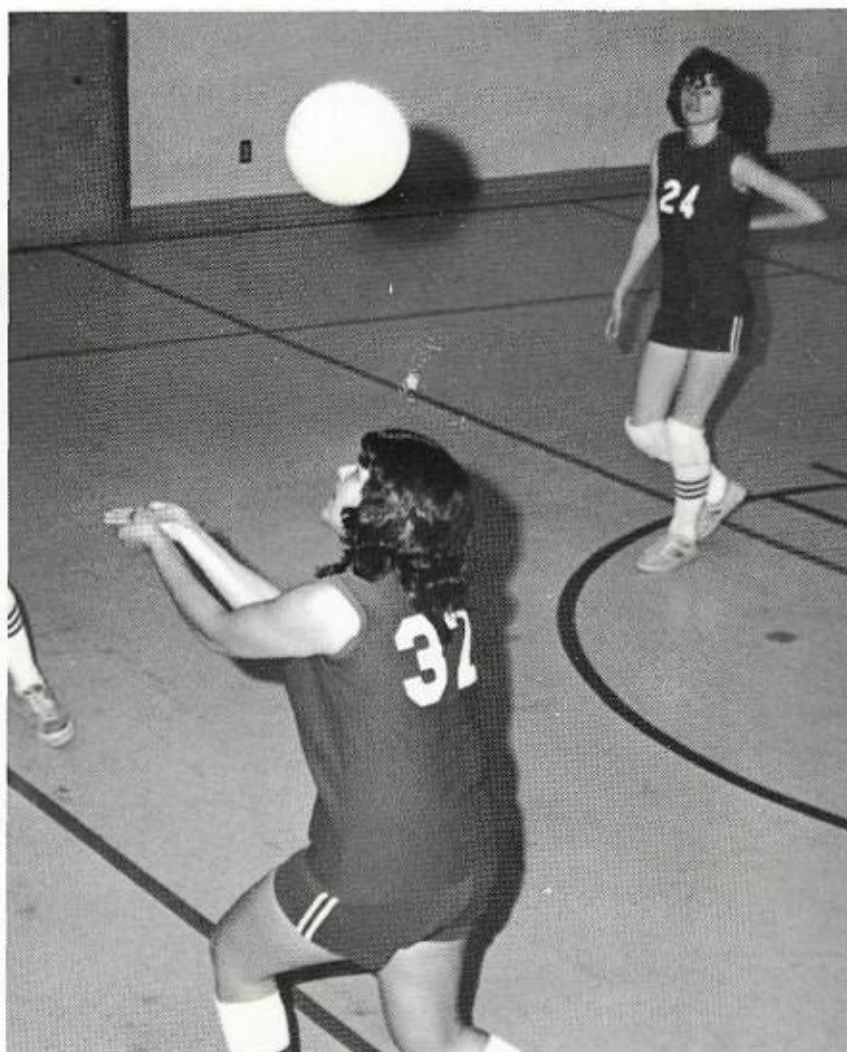

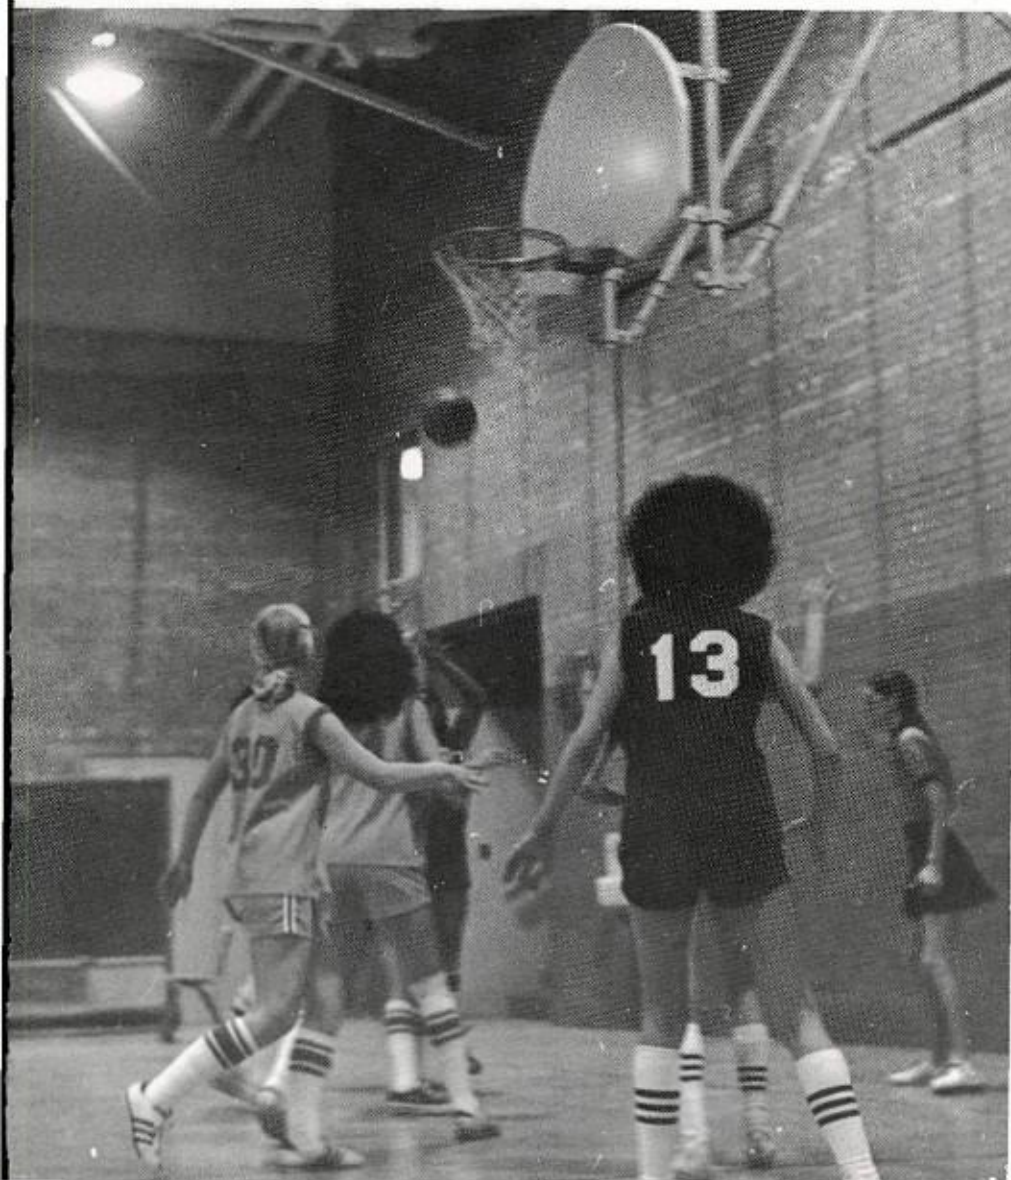

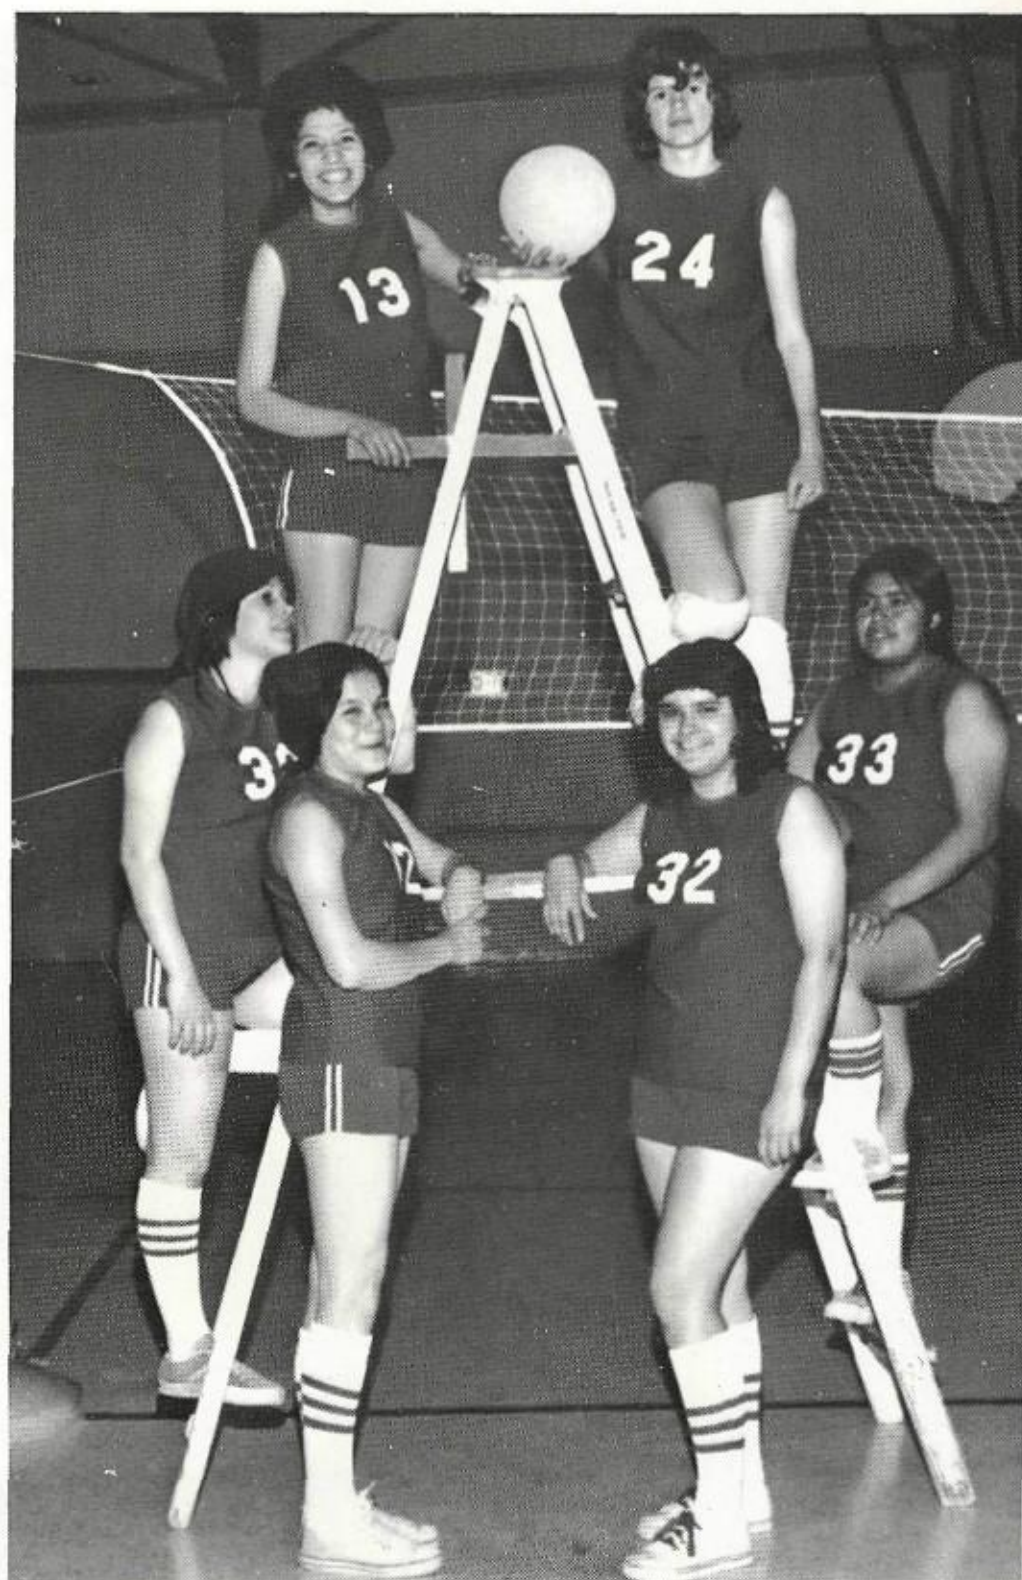

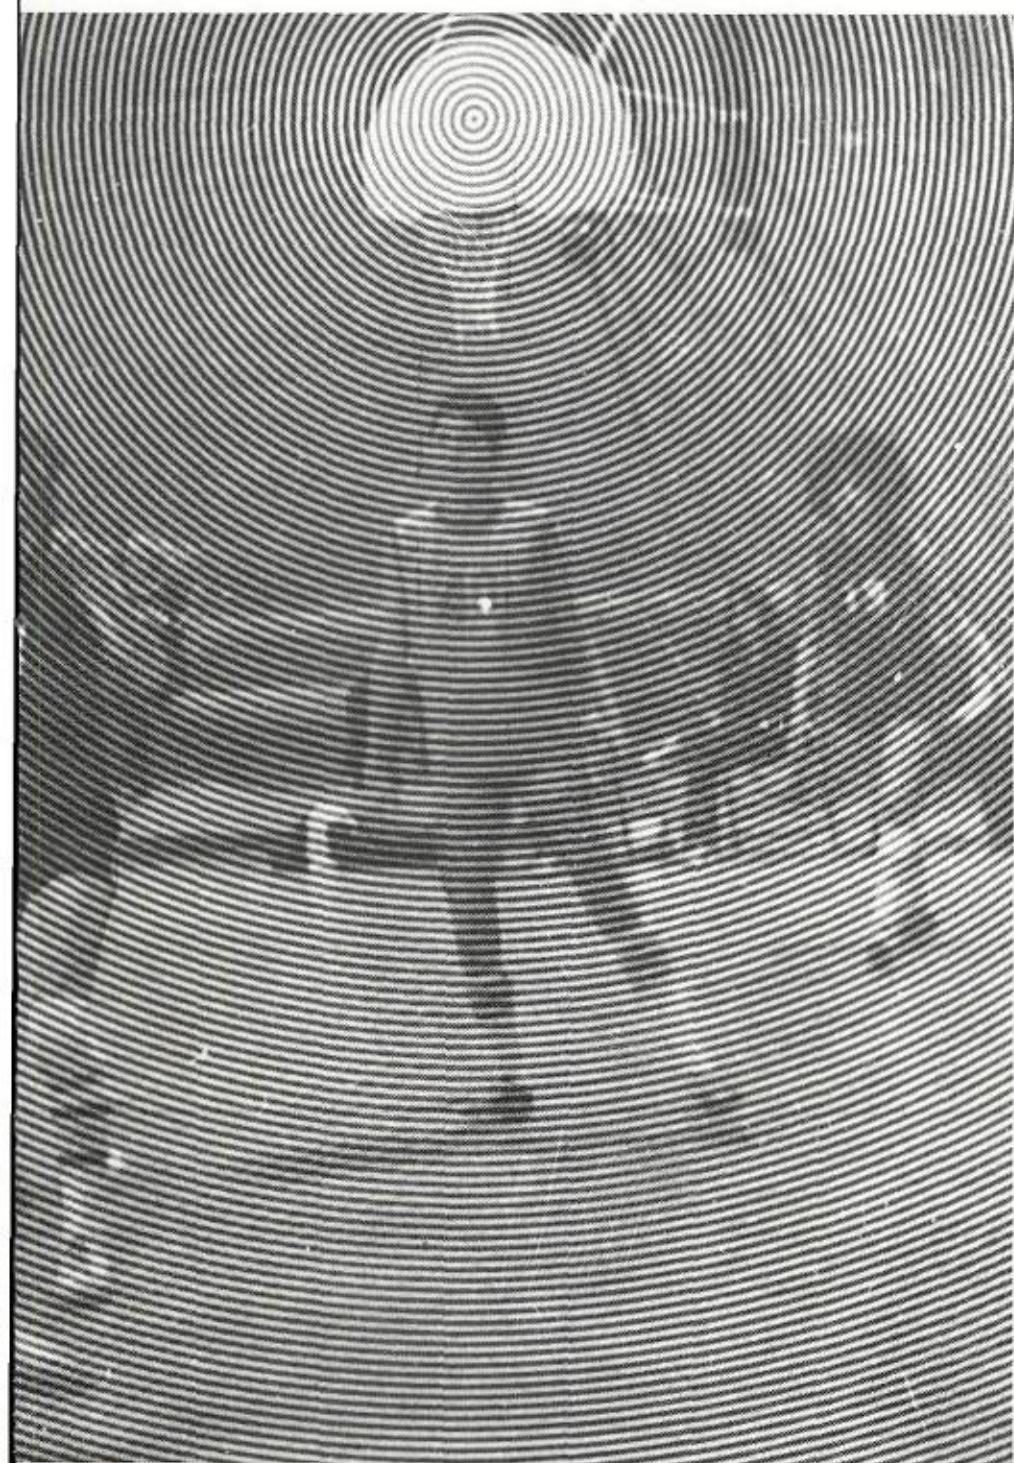

Due to the increased program an assistant coach was hired to relieve some of the pressures of the women P.E. instructors, Ms. Freda Sandell and Ms. Jeanne Postlethwait.

Volleyball was one of the standard sports played by the women at AHS and was followed by a season of basketball which included almost 20 games of play, many more games than have been played in the past. The basketball team which consisted only of juniors and sophomores should stand a good chance to compete in the state finals next year after this year of building.

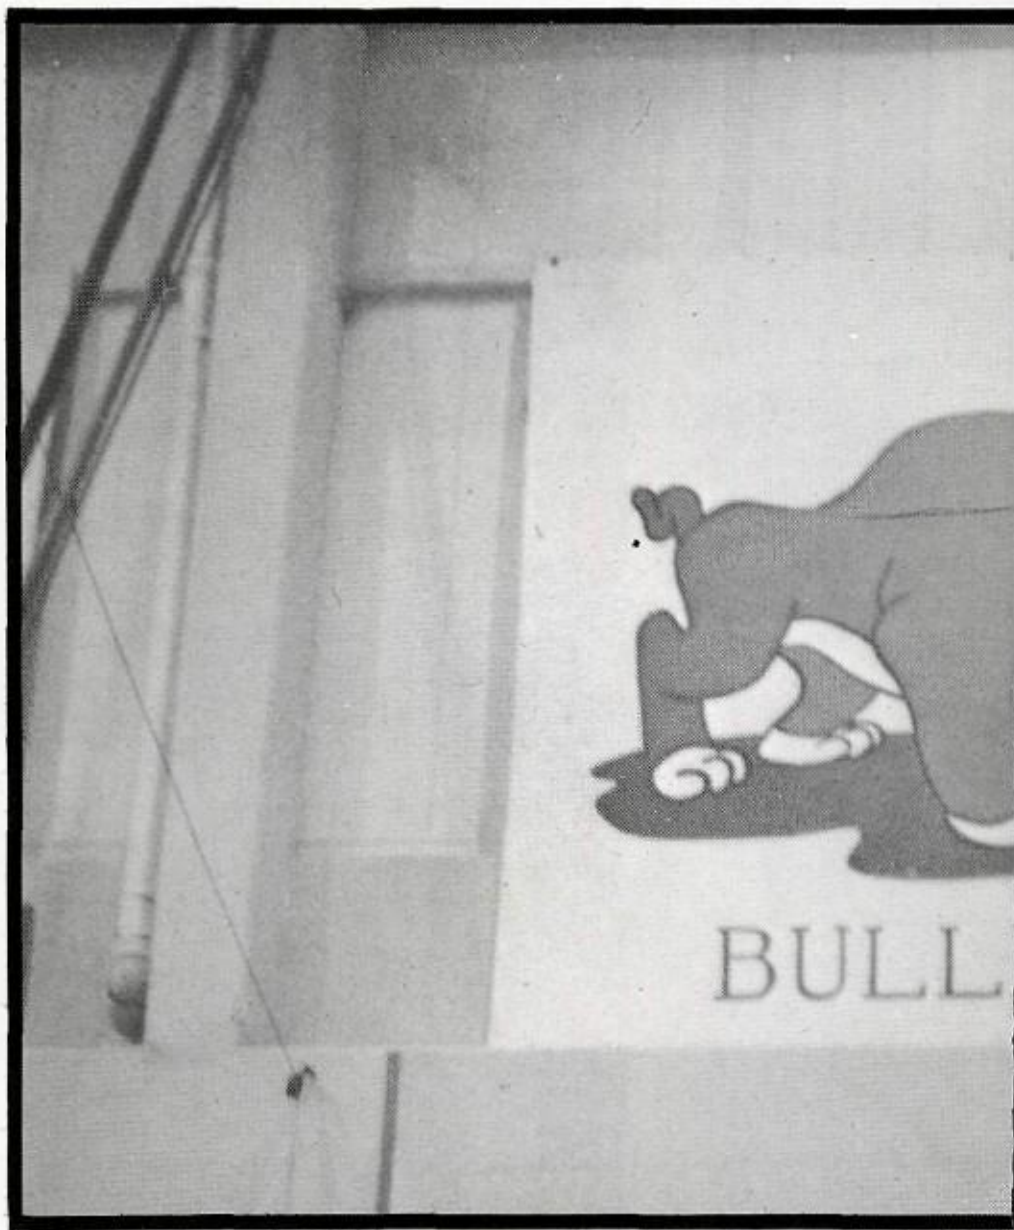

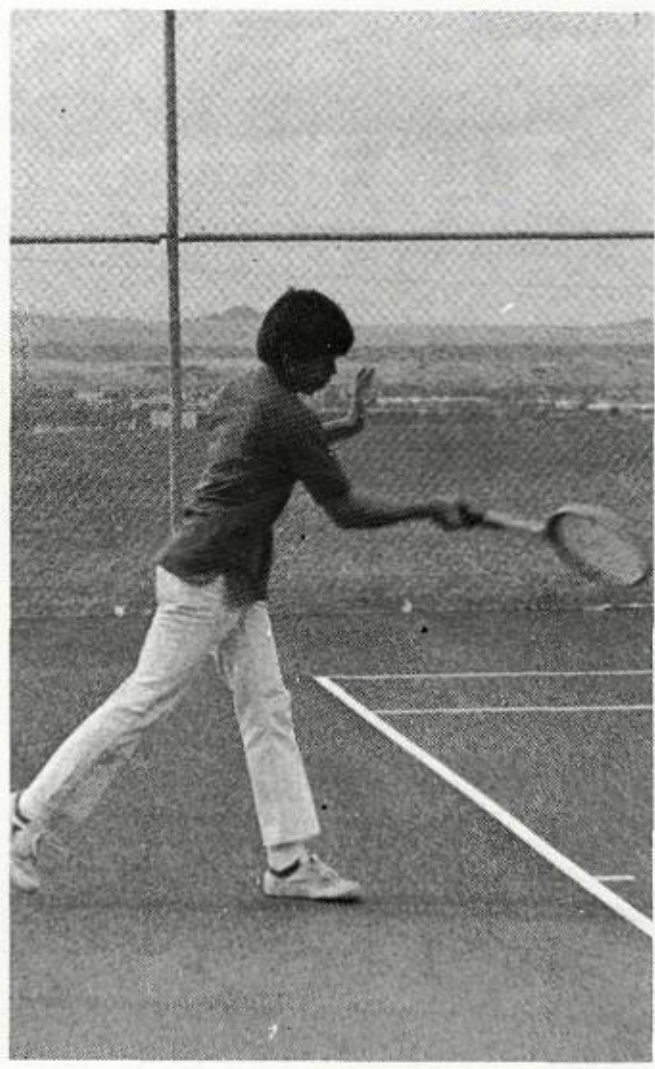

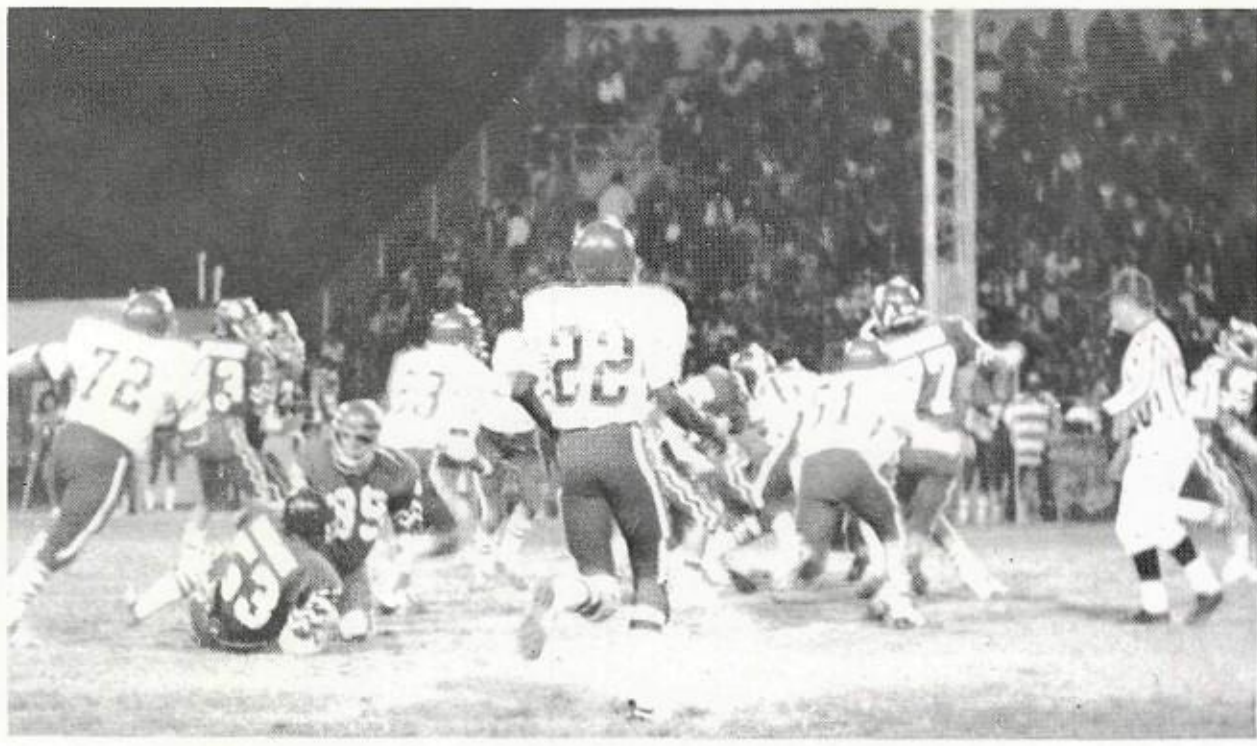

Girls Athletics, led by Rosalie Sanchez and secretary-treasurer Mary Lyon, finished the year with the softball season.

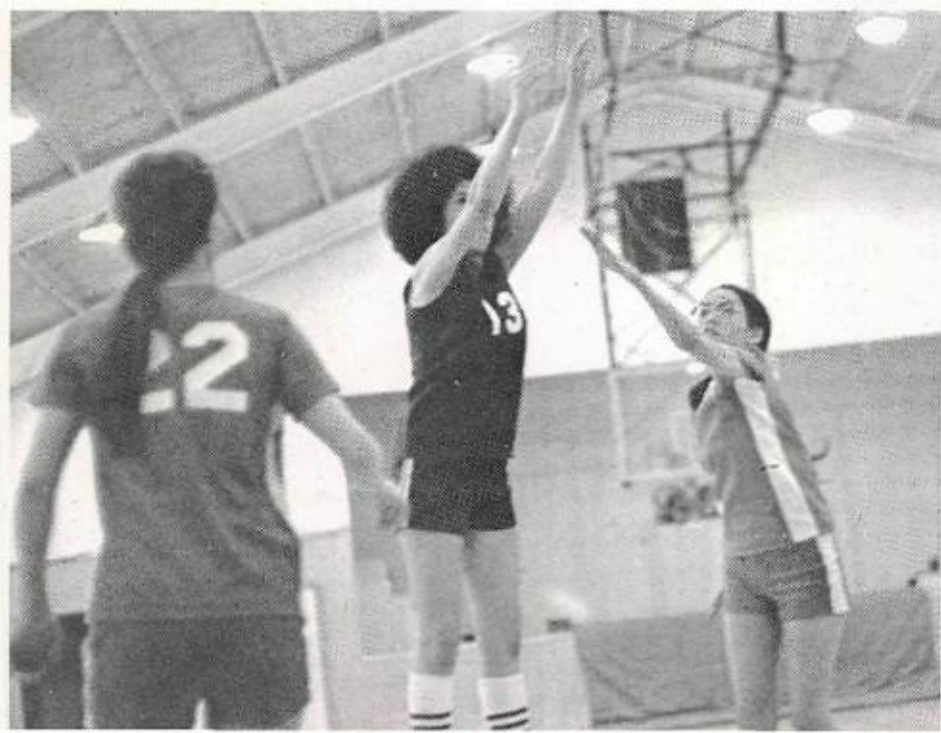

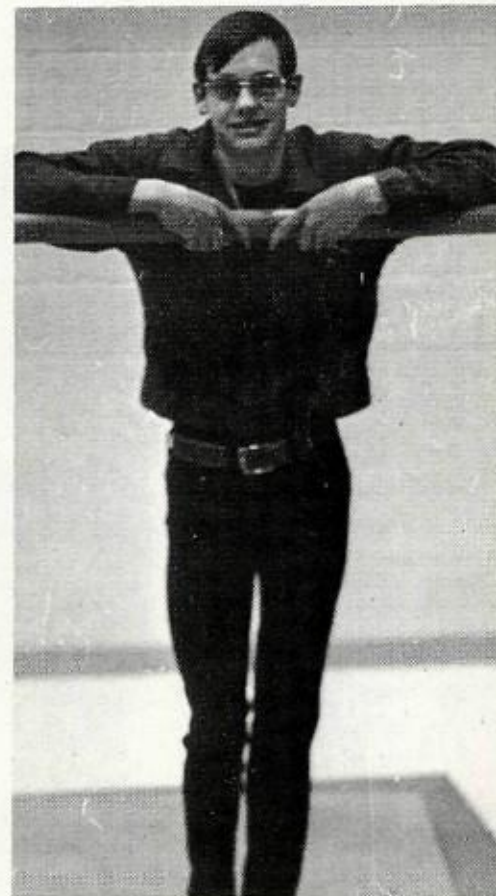

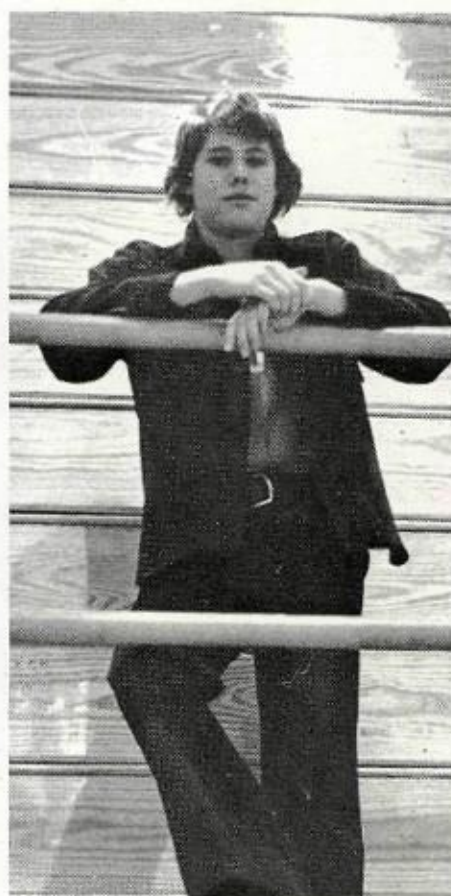

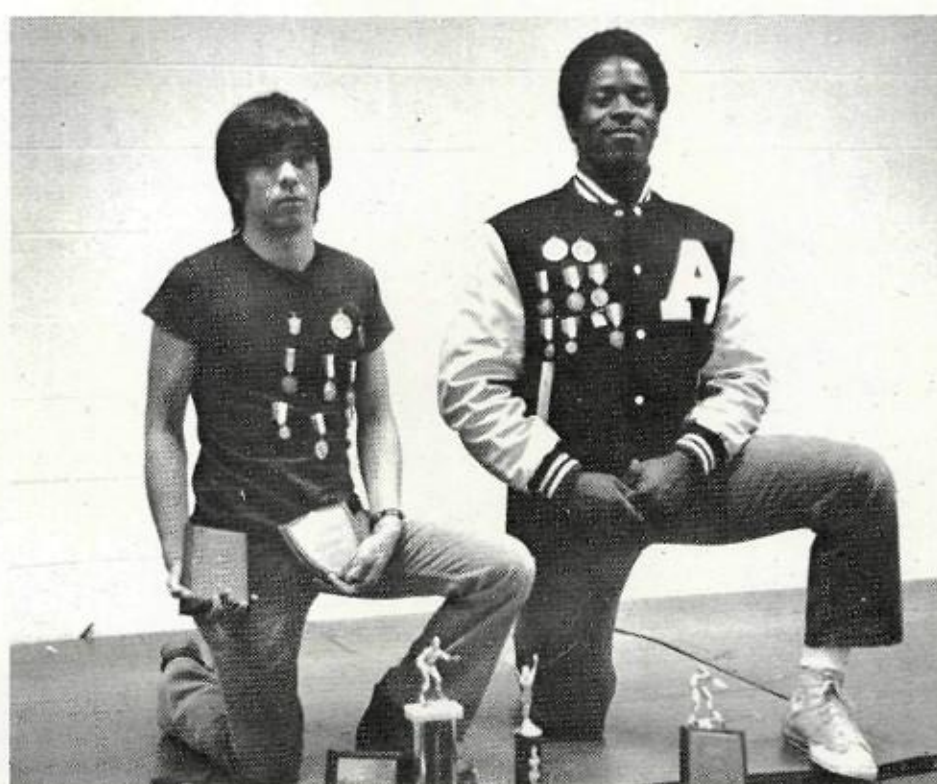

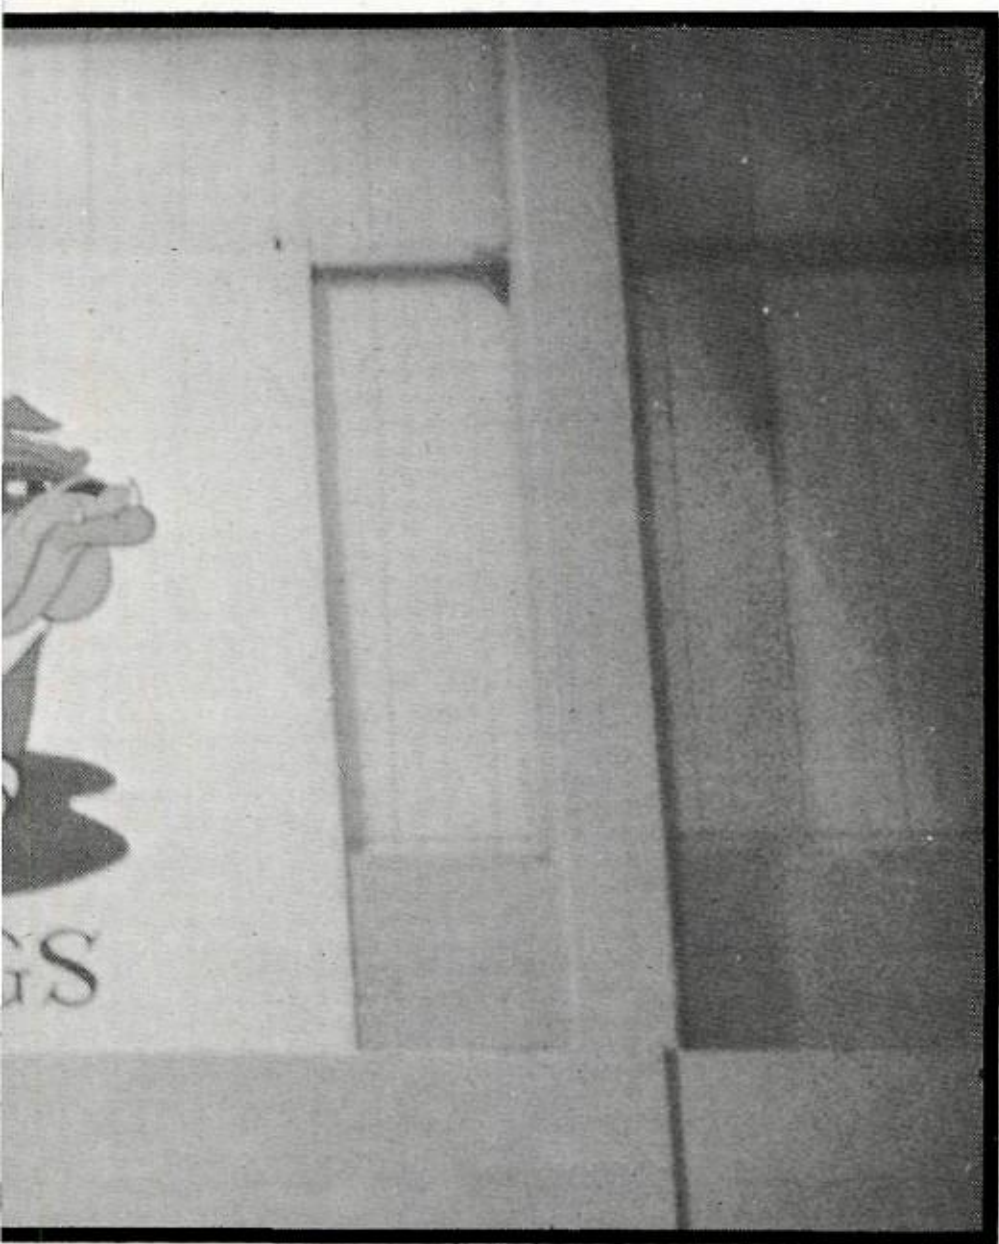

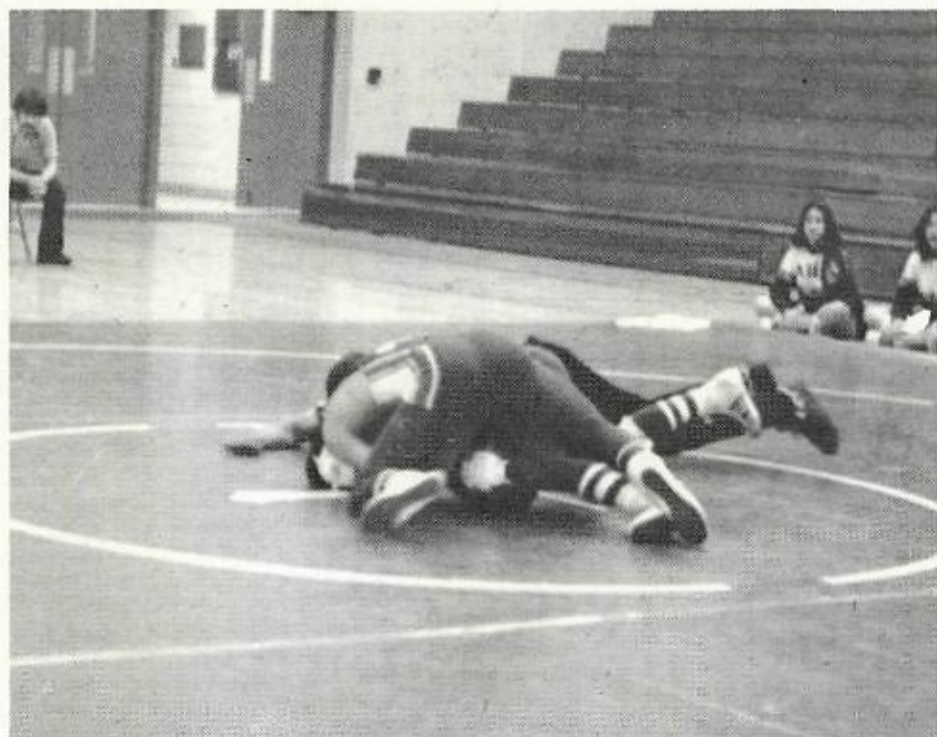

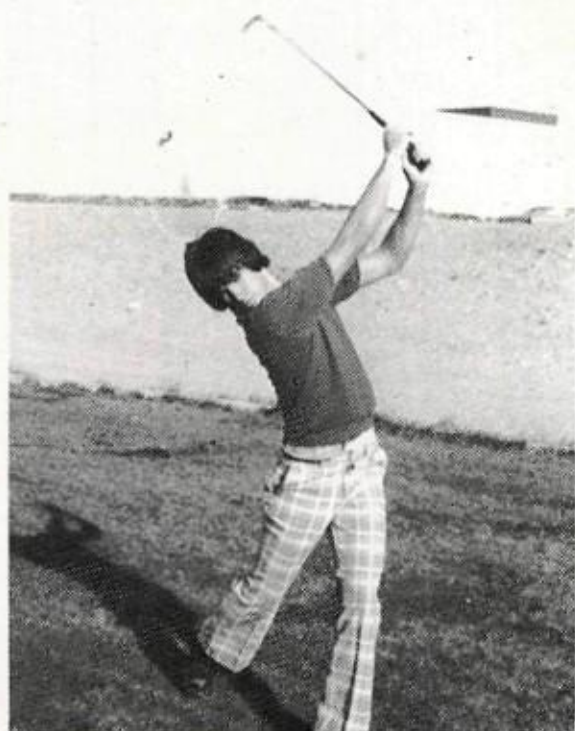

Top Row Left to Right: 1. Stella Candelaria shows poise as she returns the ball while junior Mary Lyon looks on. 2. Margaret Garcia tries to get fast break pass off to Rosalie Sanchez. 3. AHS sports were among the most active and successful scenes at school this year. The Bulldog wrestling team took fourth place in the state wrestling tournament with Michael Garcia and Herbert Stanley capturing the state individual championships. Jeff Means and Curt Branch were standouts in the area of gymnastics and swimming respectively. The varsity basketball team set our winning mark at 1000 and sent us to the state basketball tournament for the sixth consecutive year.

With the opening of the new facility, DECA faced many new responsibilities due to the addition of the New Book Store, which provided supplies such as pencils, book covers, and snacks. The book store was open during A and B lunches.

DECA held an Initiation at AHS for Novice members on November 8, 1974 at 7:00 P.M. The new officers elected for this job were: Joey Quintana, President; Yolanda Baca, Vice-President; Yvonne Sanchez, Secretary; and Pete Castillo, Treasurer. DECA had approximately 52 members, all united to help DECA. DECA was sponsored by Mr. Kostas.

The active group of girls who make up the FHA set one major goal which they happily achieved. This was to aid in the purchasing of a kidney machine for three year old Frankie Nunez. Among their projects were the selling of Christmas gifts such as sachets, place mats, candy, and candles. They also joined with Adobe Acres to sell luminarias.

Also highlighting the year was the beautiful installation ceremonies. The candlelight affair initiated the new officers into their respective positions. They were President Gloria Maes, Vice-President Nadine Mora, Secretary Priscilla Rodriguez and Treasurer Barbara Walker.

The A-Club, always a prestigious, popular club, has changed with the times by admitting two females into the club this year. Gladys Sedillo and Stephanie Nieto were baseball team managers and thus attained a letter: the only requirement of the club.

One of the many activities sponsored this year was the preparation of kits that contained many hospital articles. The members sacrificed their Saturday relaxation in order to assemble these kits thus proving that even "cool jocks" have hearts, too!

Made up mainly of Senior lettermen, the A-Club was sponsored by Ken Medley and led by President Ricky Nuanes, Vice-President Roscoe Locke, Secretary-John Polinko, and Treasurer Larry Montoya.

SOPHOMORE CONGRESS

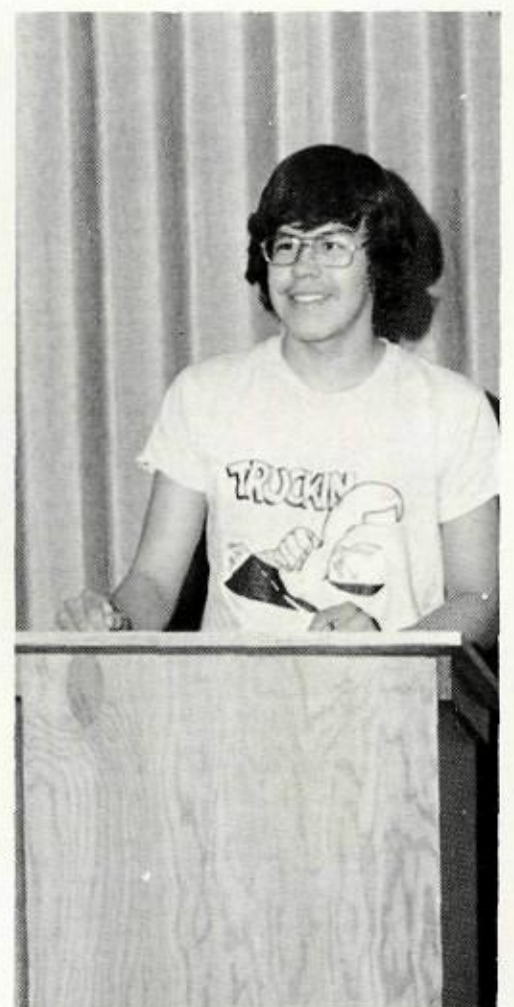

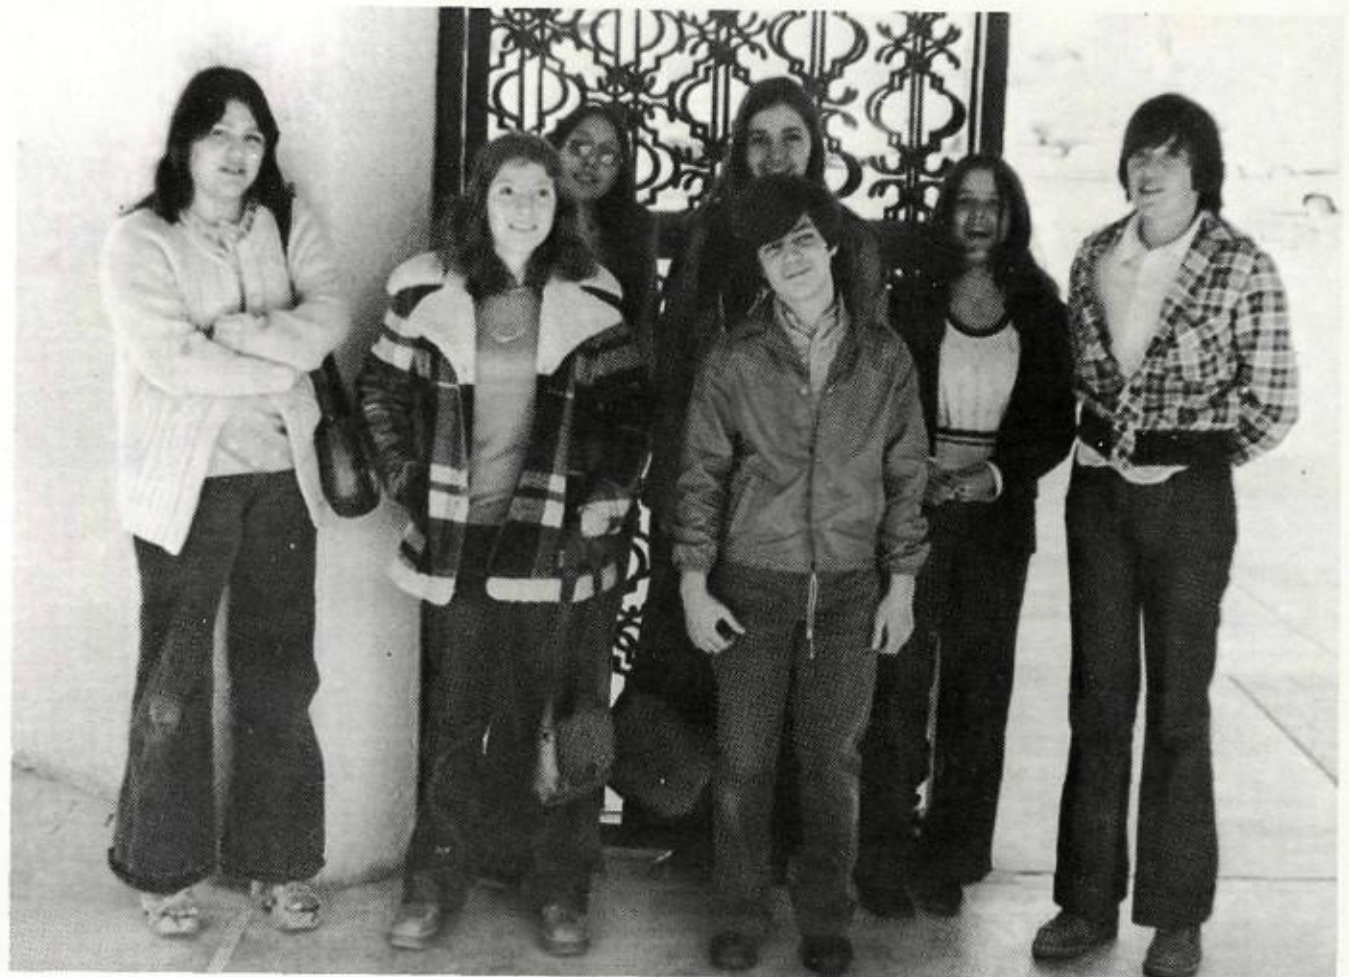

One of the few clubs that provided competition through heated discussions was the Speech Club. Under Mrs. Watters, the club would once again go a long way as it had in the past. Throughout the year the Bulldog speakers performed in many tournaments, winning numerous trophies and awards.

It was truly a very successful season for the Speech Club.

President Manny Abeyta, Vice-President Jerry Romero and Secretary-Treasurer Jackie Garcia led the Sophomore class to victory during Spirit Week as they captured the Spirit Stick for the year.

Their top priority was aimed at making enough money for the traditional Senior Breakfast. Among their money-making ventures were the Zodiac ring sale and the stuffed Bulldog raffle.

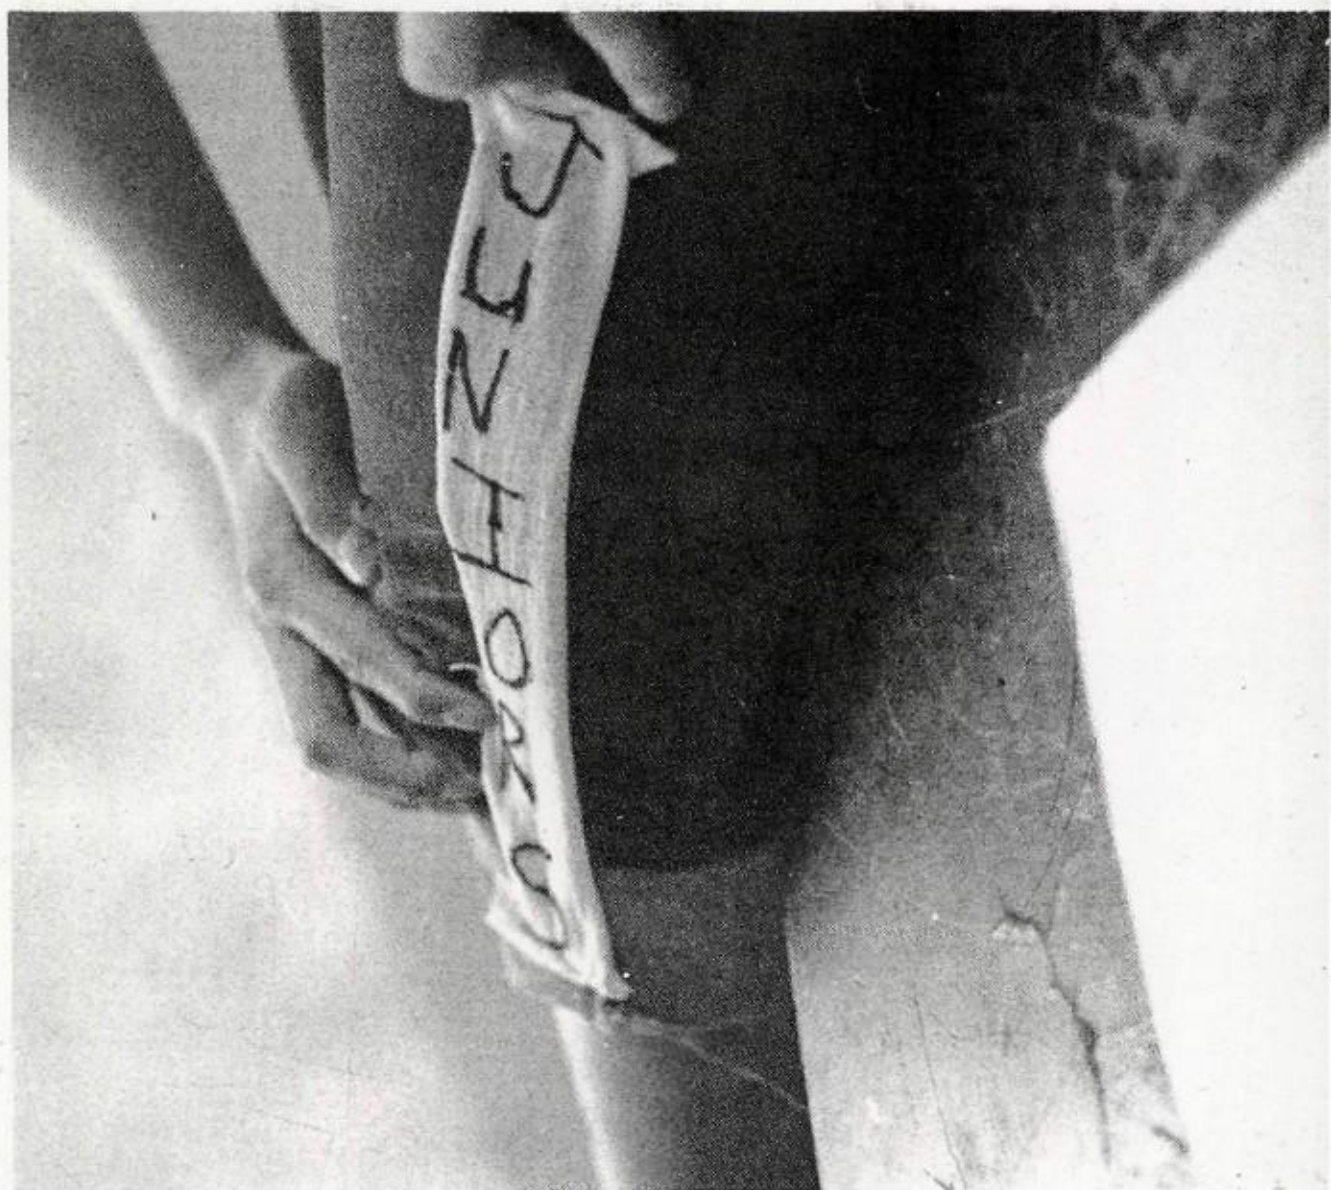

The Sophomores also participated in Homecoming festivities as they presented Queen Rose with her scepter. Assisting the Sophomores was sponsor Mrs. Miranda.

The dynamic leaders of the Junior class this year were President Pat Martinez, Vice President Lillie Marquez, and Secretary-Treasurer Christine Saiz. Benefitting from the wise advice of Mrs. Leah Ready, the Junior House conducted a wide variety of projects this year in order to gather funds for their top project, the Junior Senior prom. Among the many fun and original projects were the Halloween Movie and Spook House, Mardi Gras, the Ugliest Teacher and the Ugliest Student on Campus, and countless bake sales.

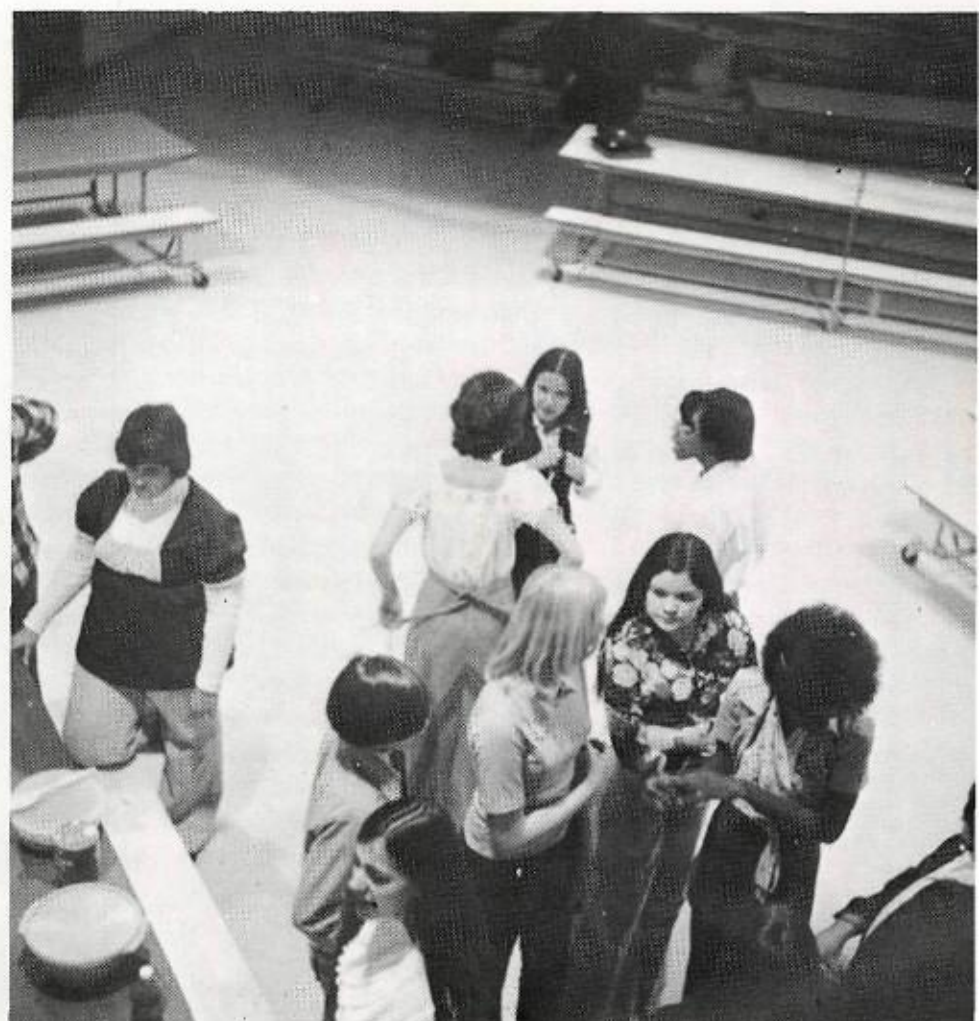

SENIOR SENATE

The first project for Senior Senate was to give the senior gift to the school. The senior gift was presented early this year. During homecoming, Mary Alice Perez announced that Senior Senate's present to the school was the new capes which will be handed down to Queens and Princesses to come. Leading Senior Senate this year were Sugie Santillanes, serving as President; Barbra Miera, Vice-President; and Mary Alice Perez, Secretary-Treasurer. During November Senior Senate made the traditional Christmas float (AHS Toyland) which came in first place in Youth Projects.

FRENCH

Under the direction of Mrs. Miranda, the French Club had three main purposes: to try to understand the culture of the French-speaking people, to develop leadership and to provide for projects in committee.

Their successful Christmas Dinner, held on December 4, attracted students from every school.

Throughout the year they have attended French plays at UNM and have visited "Le Bistro" a French restaurant, to taste a bit of French cuisine.

The French Club was aptly led by President Roberta Casias, Vice-President Phyllis Thomas, Secretary Liz Perea and Treasurer Freddie Jacob.

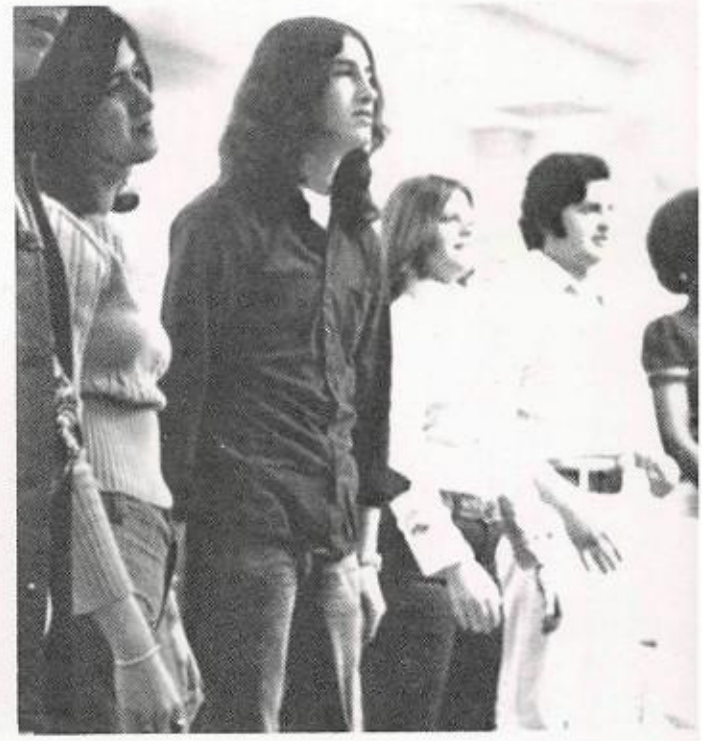

This small, friendly group of students, under the kind guidance of Mrs. Iftner, enjoyed many hours of fun highlighted with the colorful, German culture. Among the club's activities was the Oktoberfest, a traditional celebration filled with song games, franks and hot potato salad and plenty of beer-root beer in this case!

Being a new club on campus, "Der deutsche Verein" required capable and dynamic leadership which it found in the guise of President Ramona "Anneliese" Childers, Vice-President Joline "Heike" Krueger and Secretary-Treasurer Lorraine "Helga" Chavez. Their middle names are their adopted German names.

CHORUS

This year Mr. Scholz directed four different choirs: Mixed chorus with 66 members, Girls' Chorus with 44 members, Concert Choir with 46 members and Good Day Singers with 24 members. Each choir practiced during its own class period. The Concert Choir and the Good Day Singers toured throughout the city elementary schools.

The Mixed and Girls' Choruses sang in town at other high schools. They raised $1,364.00 selling stationery to finance a trip to El Paso for a music festival. They also made a $400.00 profit from a raffle. They performed at four concerts this year, including the District III festival in February.

BAND

Band members participated in an active year of pep assemblies, concerts, games, political rallies and parades. Also highlighting the year were the appearance of the new symphonic orchestra, the Moog synthesizer and the new Brass and Woodwind quintet.

Concert Band listed their slate of officers as President Gene Guterrez, Vice-President Steve Snow and Secretary-Treasurer Derwin Price. Through numerous raffles, they were able to raise $1,000.00 to pay for their trip to a Music Festival in Phoenix.

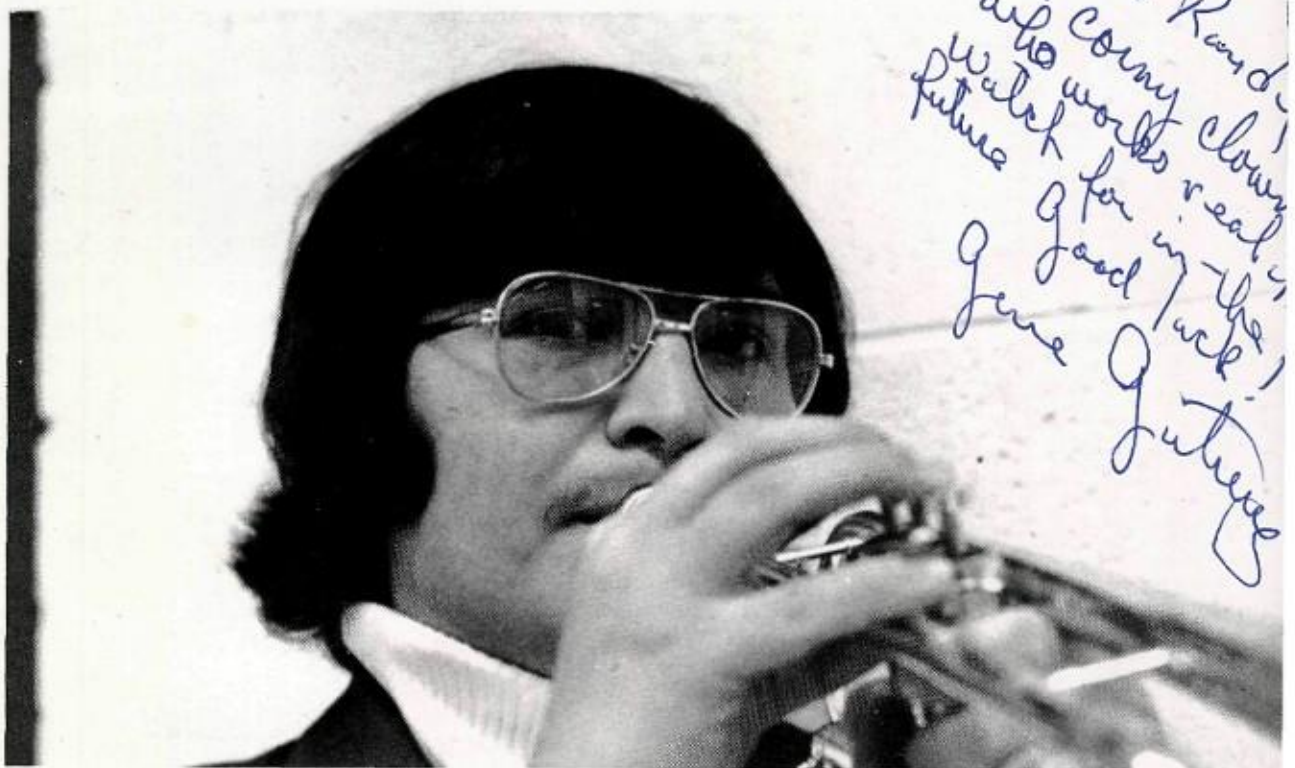

Showtime Band's officers were President Lorenzo Perez and Vice-President Reginal Walker. They played at various dances.

Marching Band spent the first half semester practicing for the Christmas Parade despite the frigid weather. An important part of the band was Drum Major Jerry Martinez, an outstanding musician who conducted the band with the coveted baton.

Also adding their talent to the band were the Majorettes, Araceli Talamantes and Carolyn Romero. Twirling their batons high into the air, these girls added a certain sparkle.

BULLDOGGIES

Dancing to the music, the lively Bulldoggies tried their best to perform routines that would entertain and excite the student body. Beginning in the summer of 1974, these girls, sponsored by Miss Jeanne Postlewait, practiced and made-up routines and steps. The selecting of uniforms, shoes, and pompoms made the excitement of the coming year something that could not be measured.

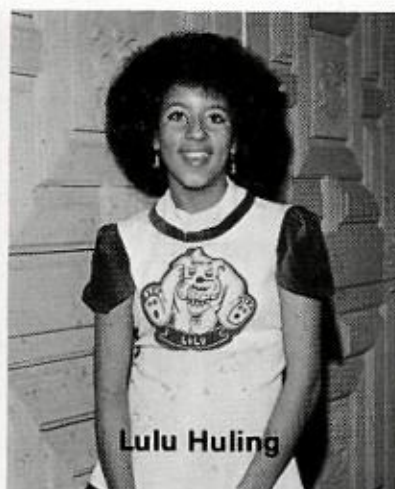

The year started off with the first assembly of the year which was held outside in the football field. Many nervous girls, with wandering minds, waited for that special moment - their moment of glory.

The Bulldoggies performed at all home football and basketball games, and gave their support and spirit to all sport activities.

the celebrities.

In January, the Bulldoggies attended their State Drill Team Clinic held in Los Alamos, where they received a special 'Clinic' 75 ribbon. These AHS representatives were chosen to host the State Drill Team Clinic of the 1976 school year.

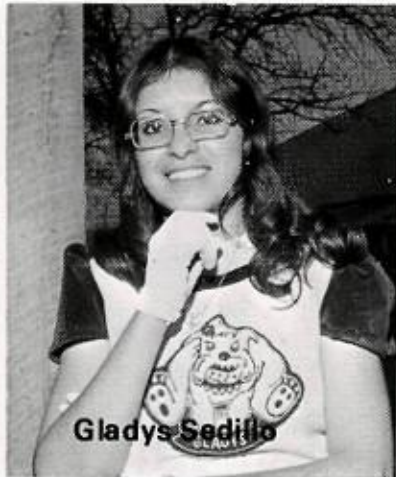

Selling candy apples and holding Mexican food sales were just some of the favorite pastimes of the Bulldoggies.

Keeping up the smiles, being good representatives of the school, and having that kind of spirit that can keep everyone else going are just a few of the secrets of the 74-75 Bulldoggies.

VARSITY CHEERLEADERS

Spirit was more than a common word to six vivacious ladies known as the varsity cheerleaders—it was a part of them.

During the summer, they attended the National Cheerleader's Clinic where they received three excellent ribbons and three superior ribbons. The Spirit Stick was awarded to them for their outstanding effort and spirit. As a grand finale, these girls won the coveted "Spark Plug Award."

Cheerleader Tanya Peoples represented A.H.S. as Miss Fire Prevention during this year. She was selected from a group of cheerleaders representing all the high schools in the city.

Awards kept being earned throughout the year. Their appearance in the Christmas parade won them a special award.

Fun-filled assemblies, Spirit Week, Play-way Nights and support for all sports were the well performed tasks of the Cheerleaders.

Bright yellow roller skates and a green and white ladder were just a few of the spirit boosting devices possessed by Butch. The lucky person who remarkably captured the character and feeling of Butch this year was Patsy O'Leary. It was a good year thanks to the cheerleaders and the student body for trying to carry on the tradition of spirit and pride at AHS.

The opening of the school year brought many new and frightened faces to AHS-some of which were the future B-team cheerleaders.

These girls were elected by the student body early in the year and took on the job of promoting SPIRIT at all the Duke and Bullpup games. This task entailed many tireless hours but with the combined efforts of the student body, half their work was already done.

Always dressing right for the occasion and working for that special goal of perfectness in motion, this group was worthy of much praise and recognition.

Heading the B-team was Theri Raby who kept the rest of the girls, Angela Vigil, Debbie Atler, Stephanie Romero, Cindy Romero and Patsy Candelaria, on the move.

There is only one way to describe the AHS Girls Gymnastics Team — unbelievable! They were not competing this year but the enthusiasm and desire is definitely that of not only a competing team but a state championship team.

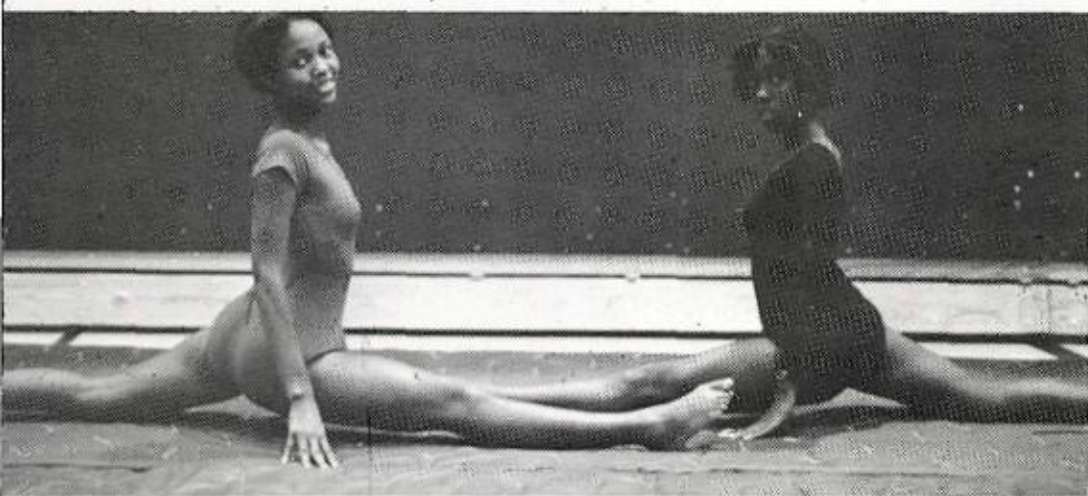

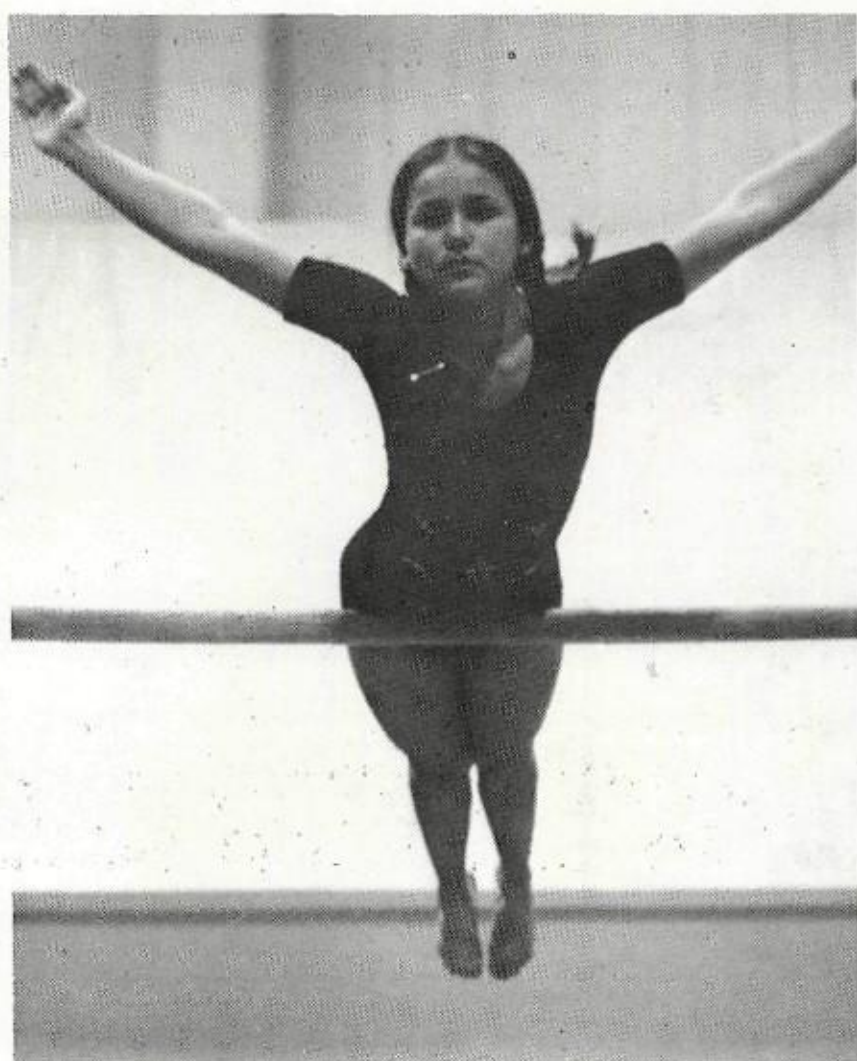

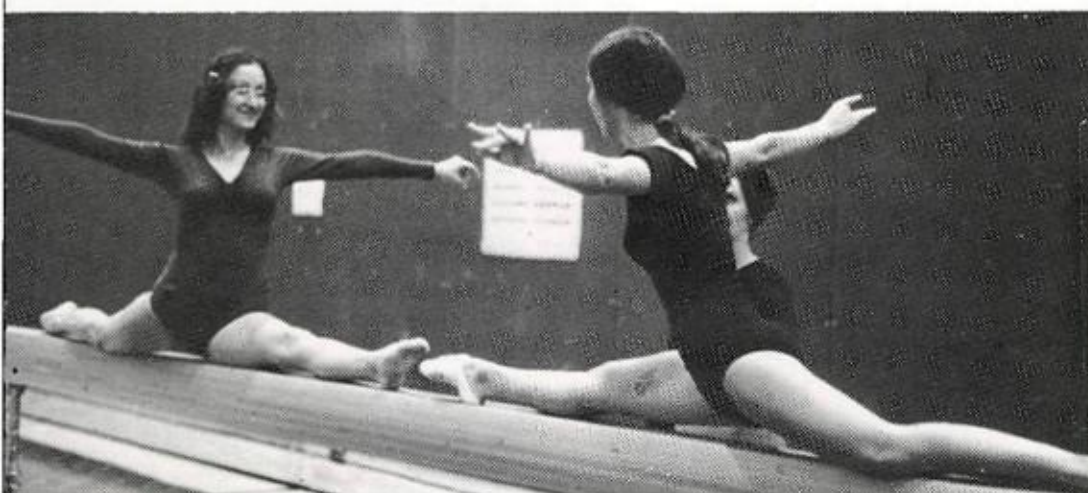

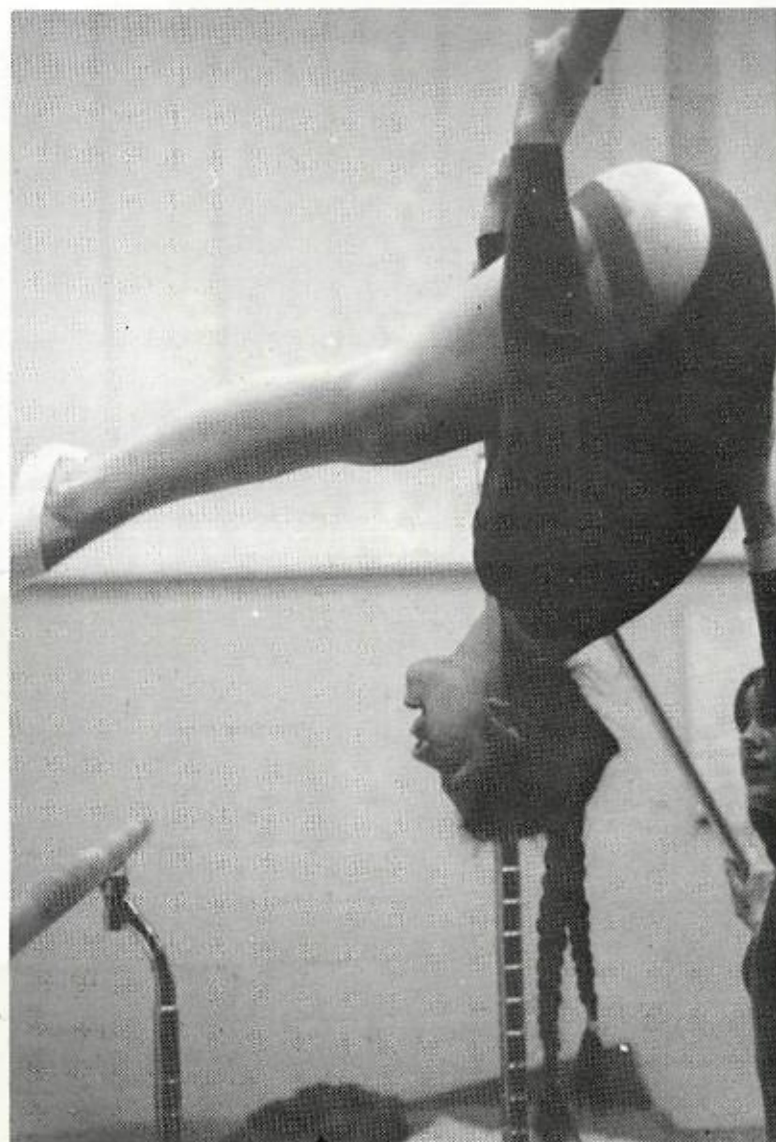

This was the first year for Girls Gymnastics at AHS. There were many novices and a few with a tremendous amount of experience and talent. Coach Jeanne Postlethwait drew out this talent from the girls, helping them through the long hours of practice.

Although Gymnastics is an individual sport (art), it takes team work to really make it.

And they have it!

Calvin Young is club president, Calvin Hanks, vice-president, Linda Sessions, secretary; Cynthia Garrion, treasurer; and Onzia Alexander, assistant secretary.

Their many money-making projects included bake sales, raffles, and a food basket donated to needy people. They also held Black Heritage Week which ran from Feb. 9-15.

Maintaining a 3.25 average is a difficult task but a rewarding achievement. The few who attain this goal gain membership into the Honor Society.

Candidates were initiated at a beautiful ceremony in spring, complete with candles, carnations and the administration of oath to the 54 new members.

Initiation was followed by the elections of President Tanya Peoples, Vice-President Maria Raby, Secretary Joline Krueger and Treasurer Ronnie Estrada. Mrs. Watters sponsored these honored scholars.

HONOR SOCIETY

ECOLOGISTS

AHS Drama Club, under the direction of Mr. Sam Tapia, came through a successful year. The group of 48 students participated in Bilingual Drama (Cervantes in 1975), Talent Day in Portales, and N.M. High School Theatre Festival.

Not only did the Drama Club participate in events throughout the city, but they also attended many activities such as performances in El Paso, U of Texas Theatre, Sante Fe Opera Theatre and Greer Garson Theatre.

This year's class officers were President Carmela Brito, Vice President Charles Vane, Secretary Beth Gilmore, Treasurer Linda Torrez.

Being a "Stater" is an honor bestowed upon only twenty-four lucky students who have proven their leadership, speaking capacity and academic ability. From the over sixty applicants who are ruthlessly scrutinized and interviewed by a stringent board of last year's Staters, six male and six female delegates and twelve alternates are chosen in Spring.

The female delegates were quite successful at Girls State which was held at Highlands University in Las Vegas. Tanya Peoples was elected mayor of her city and ran for governor. Joline Krueger was voted county commissioner, city councilwoman and chairman of her City Seal committee. Maria Raby became state corporate commissioner. Theresa Montoya was honored as senator. Lydia Sanchez was elected city councilwoman and both she and Rita Santiago entered the House of Representatives.

Sharing an equally exciting week in Roswell at NMMI, the Boys State Delegates were elected and appointed to various positions. Ken Beazy was county assessor. John Polinko was elected State highway commissioner. Jerry Martinez became county assessor and deputy sheriff. Norm Sedillo was voted chairman. Joey Quintana was county clerk. Dennis Lyon enjoyed the position of police chief. Mrs. McReynolds sponsors this active group.

This year started new and exciting for our Student Senate. Working on a monthly rotating basis, each member had the opportunity to lead as temporary chairperson.

Among many activities that Student Senate sponsored were Homecoming, which occurred in October; Dedication in November; Winter Week and Winter Dance which took place the week of December 13. They also attended the state Convention held in Raton, New Mexico.

The sponsors of this club were Mrs. Barbara Schwyzer and Mr. Gene Crabtree.

VICA is a national club made up of vocational students. ICT is one vocational program in which students are employed each afternoon in his or her chosen occupational field. Besides receiving practical job experience, they are also paid for their work.

The President was Ernie Salas, Vice-President-Jack Torres, Secretary-Angela Gomez, Treasurer-Beatrice Rivas, Parliamentarian-Anthony Sanchez, Reporter Phyllis Martinez. The sponsors were Mr. Palmer and Mr. Cloud.

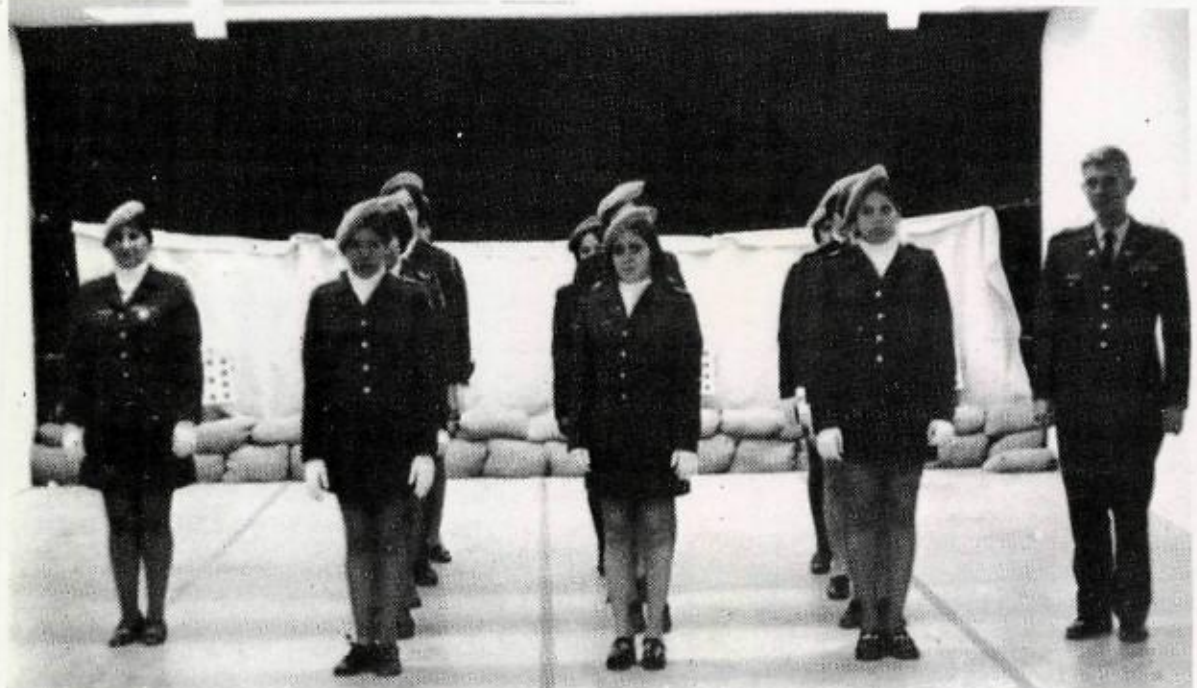

The History Club was open to all people with an interest in New Mexico's past. Their goal was to learn history outside the classroom and on those places where history was born and where it will thrive. Such places as the Chilili Land Grant, Cochiti Pueblo and Cochiti Dam. In those places history is drastically changing and the club pondered the thought: Is such a past worth fighting for? What is to be valued and what is to be thrown away?

On November 2, club members attended the Model City Government program and in April, members attended the Model Legislature in Santa Fe for three days as part of the YMCA's Youth 'n Government Program. This was a chance to see their own bills passed and note how the government works.

Working together to provide services for the school and community, ROTC spent countless hours practicing for their appearances. Besides flag presentations for games and assemblies throughout the year, the drill team performed at Roswell and El Paso.

Leading the cadets were Cadet LTC John Espinosa, Cadet Major Ronald Montoya, Cadet 1st LT Michael Segura and Cadet 1st LT Mariva Jaramillo.

Keeping in tune with the new dawning of AHS, the Record staff changed the entire look and feel of the 1975 school paper.

Editor-in-Chief Robert Garcia and Managing Editor Marc Slavin led their competent staff of reporters and cartoonists with the production of their inovative, magazine-type paper. They were ably assisted by Advisor Mrs. Marie Myers.

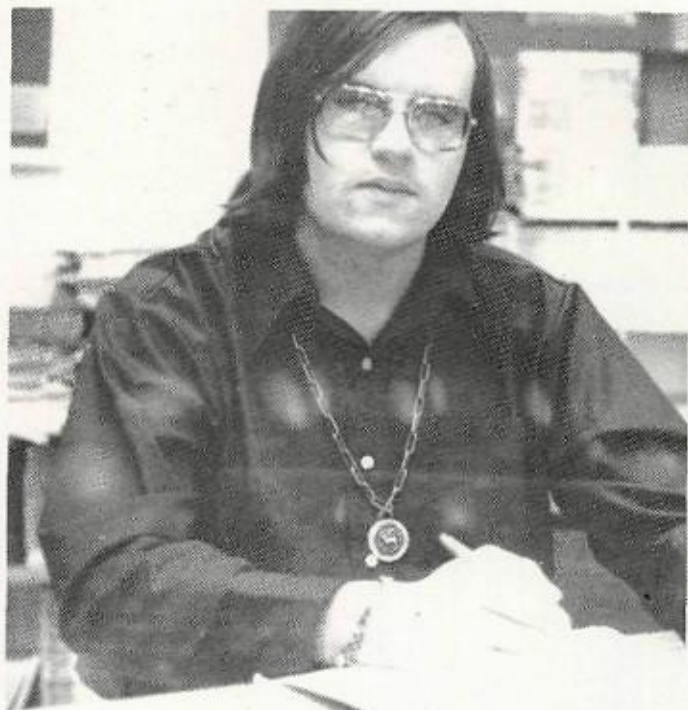

Many new columns such as News and Views, Dear Butch and the Advisory Council Reports expanded the improved edition and kept the students abreast of current events.

A paper was delivered to each home thus creating a route of communication which enabled the parents to see the inside of AHS and its students.

This year's Yucca was led by Teresa Holcomb. She and many other staff members worked hard to raise money in order to publish the Yucca. Among many of the fund raising projects were the Slave Sale which was held in October and a Get-together dance held in January. Yucca received excellent entries from students including many poems and short stories. Yucca was sponsored by Mrs. Leah Ready.

Pictures are an essential part of any yearbook. Therefore it is imperative for any yearbook staff to have an auxiliary branch of photographers and developers who can sacrifice their time and effort as the situation arises.

Fortunately, for the La Reata Staff, they could rely on Yearbook I for clear, concise pictures which captured the entire year forever on film.

It was a difficult task that lay ahead. Picture-taking is an art which is learned after years of practice, yet the staff had only a few days to master many techniques.

There were the constant retakes and losing of film, but always, somehow, the pictures were delivered on time.

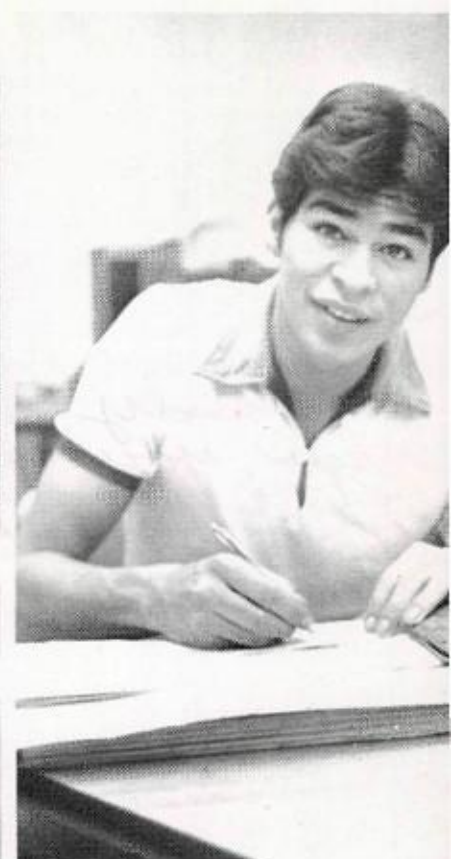

At mid-semester, both the school dark room and a private one (created by Mr. Bill Bell) were ready for use as the staff began to develop their own film.

Pictures make a yearbook a treasure.

LA REATA

They came together as the last days of summer faded into fall, school days. Unorganized and inexperienced, they were to tackle one of the hardest jobs of the school year—preserving that year in the La Reata. Co-editors Joline Krueger and Maria Raby took the helm with much enthusiasm and ideas—but little experience. Nevertheless, they forged on with the assistance and enduring patience of Mrs. Marie Myers.

The school year passed quickly. The staff began to work and function, often clumsily, but always eagerly.

School was divided into deadlines instead of semesters and homework essays became "copy." And the students who once wondered at the word "crop" knew that what they were creating would be cherished forever by many.

Many frustrating nights of layouts and copy were spent in room 222 but they were always filled with laughter—and an occasional pizza or taco!

The theme centers around the new dawning of AHS. It was made with hope and pride.

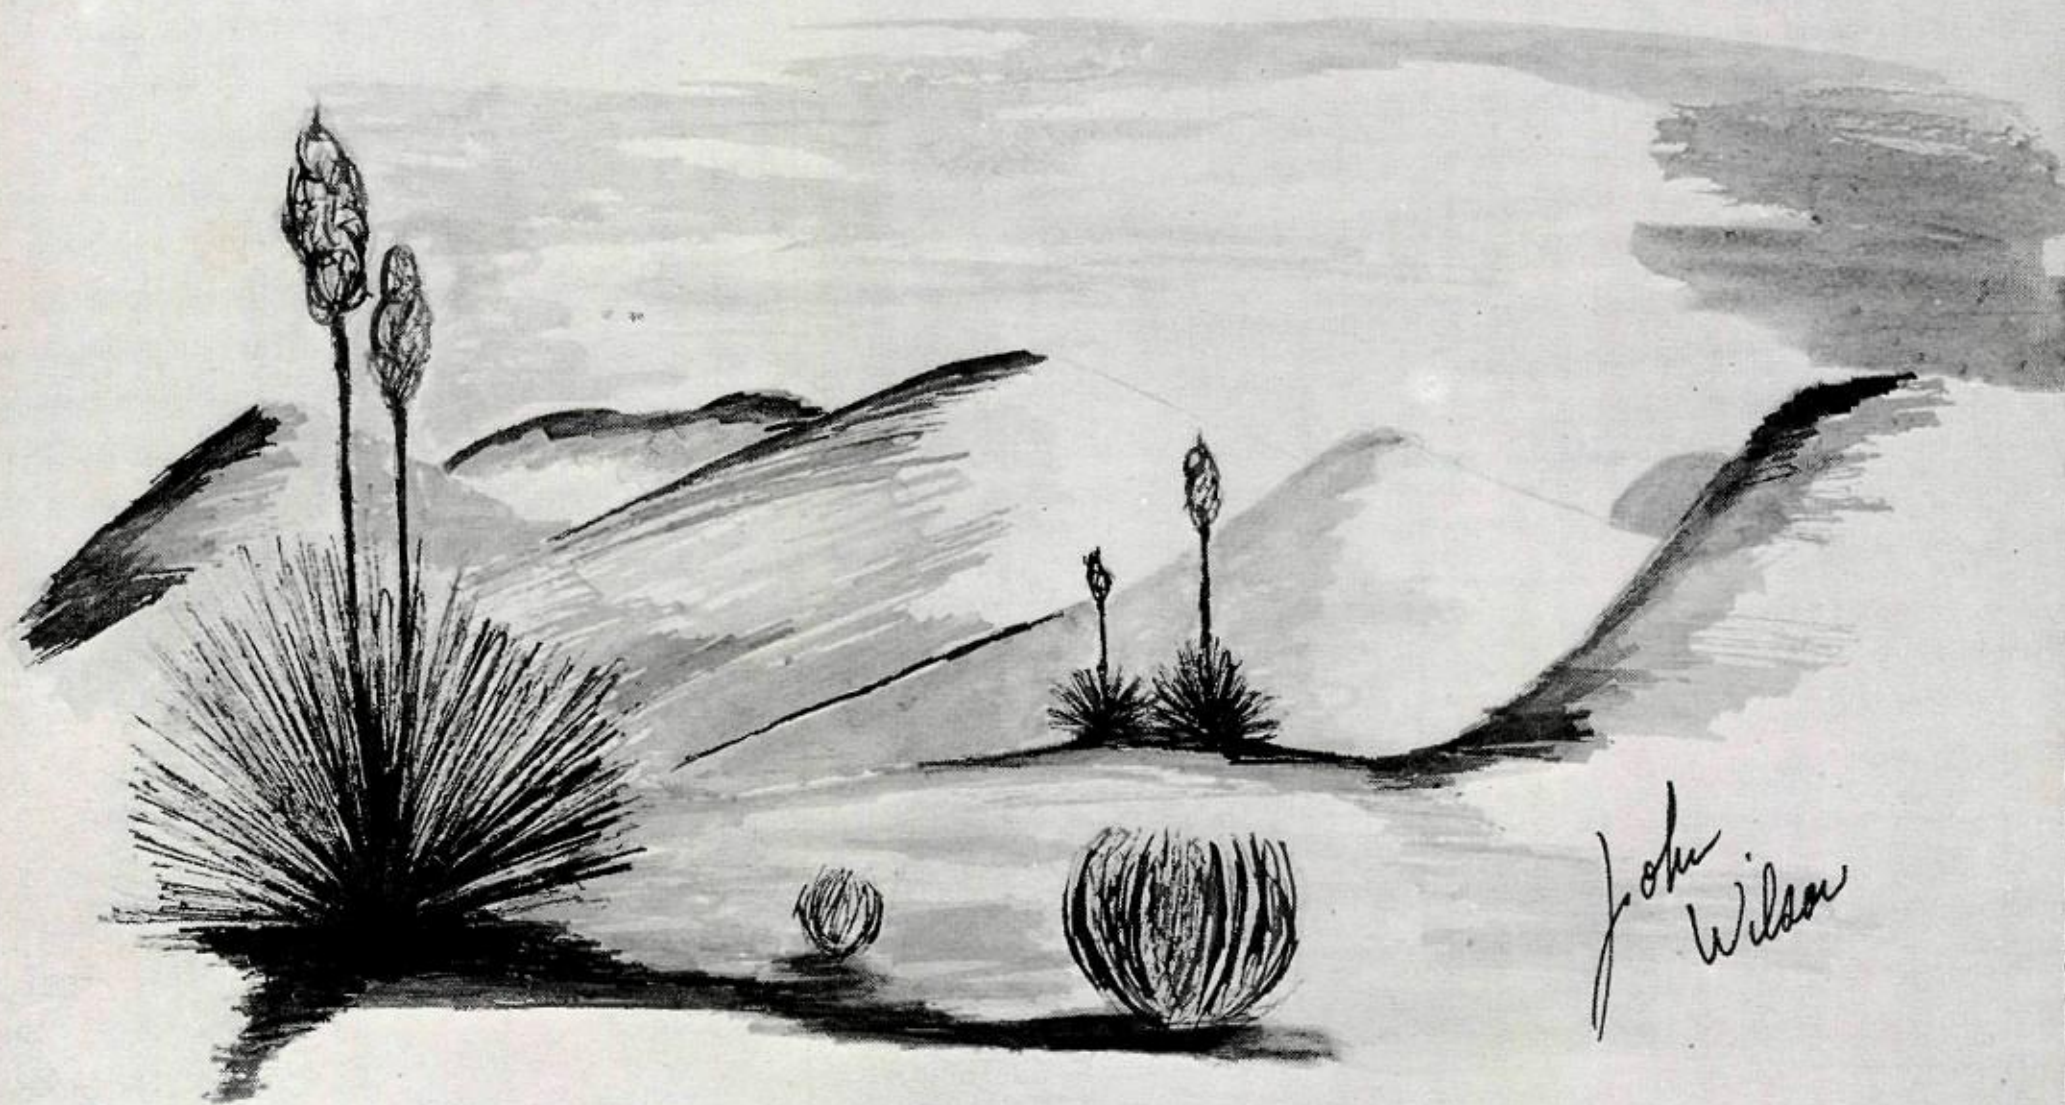

They came together to create a yearbook. They came together to greet the new AHS.

A Conversation of Life

We met one day on an early morning bus which took me to school and her to work.

The trip from my house was quite long and thus dull while my conversation lay idle and my thoughts glazed into dormancy. The passing window scenery had long faded into unnoticed repetition.

It was a point in my life exemplified by my bus trek: listless and void of any direction. But I was young and had plenty of time to evolve into something.

She sat by herself in a dull world similar to mine. She seemed much older, perhaps college age. She was rather sickly and thin as she coughed quite frequently. I sensed her equally strong need to converse with me. I hoped that perhaps I might alleviate both our awkward situations if I made the first move, I being several years her junior and thus supposedly more ignorant of the cold protocol of today's social aloofness.

"Excuse me," I began, "you know, we both have taken this bus so long and, well, I don't know about you, but I'm pretty bored of sitting here never talking."

"I share your sentiments. My name is Corine."

"Agnes, here." I then presented her with my vital statistics. "I'm a freshman at LaMont High. I notice you work at the hospital."

"Work?"

"Well, yes, I mean you always get off there."

"Oh, yes. Temporarily though. I'm going to Yale in the fall."

"Yale? How prestigious!" I remarked. "Excuse me, but have you had your cold for long?"

"Oh, my hacking? It's nothing. Picked it up while swimming. I'm going to be on the Yale swim team."

"That's very nice. How many years have you swum?"

"Two days but that doesn't stop me! I also plan to be their newspaper editor and a straight A student!"

The bus pulled near the hospital and she bade farewell.

My bus trips became interesting because of this overly confident girl. Although I often tired of her goals, I did not want to relinquish her. It was, after all, better than nothing.

"Gosh," she sighed one day, "I feel so dead! I think I'll stay home tomorrow."

"Your cough does sound a bit worse," I added.

"Agnes, do you think I'm overestimating myself?"

"Do you?" This was a safe answer.

"No, I think I'm just planning ahead. You've got to chart your course in life to the second. You won't find me sitting back, staring at life unprepared! I'm ready for it!"

"It's obvious." Again I was tired of her constant conversation of goals and reaching for life.

"What do you plan to do when you're out of school?" she asked.

"Frankly, I haven't given it much thought."

She shook her head. "My God, are you crazy? You're letting life run wild! You have no future."

"I'm only a freshman—"

"You can reach for so much! How can you sit there without knowing what you want?"

"You know," I finally exploded, "you can be a real pain. I don't like being called crazy or unprepared. What does it matter what I do? I'm tired of you sounding like my mom or God or somebody!"

"I don't have to stand for this! Here's my stop, Goodbye and good riddance!" She ran out of the bus, stopped and stared back at me with pain in her eyes as the bus drove away.

Perhaps I blew up because she sounded like my conscience. My life was desperately lethargic but I just let it be. I knew an apology would be warranted tomorrow.

But true to her word, she was absent from the next day. And as the days turned into weeks, I realized the severity of her "good riddance." She had changed buses.

So once again I was sentenced to the quiet confines of the rumbling bus.

It was three weeks after her departure that I began to talk with the bus driver who was much more jovial and less dead serious about life.

"It is a shame, though, about your friend," he said one day.

"I didn't know you knew Corine. She and I got mad and she switched buses."

"Switched bus—oh, then I guess you don't know. She died of lung cancer after all."

"After all? What are you talking about?"

"That's why she went to the hospital for cobalt treatments. Welfare Department asked me to make sure she got there every day while she could — she had no family. I don't know how she could live knowing that she was going to die soon."

I sat and watched the scenery roll by my bus window. I, too, didn't know how she could live knowing that she was going to die soon. But I knew how she wanted to live. And now I knew how I wanted to live.

Joline Krueger

O.D.

Laying in the midst of life's endless maze,
She cried for her loved ones.
She outstretched her arms and Caressed the sunlight.
The agonizing terror of her eyes
Melted into an abundant stream of tears.
The fantasies of reality
Danced before her.
While the loneliness seeped
Deeper into her soul.
Her hands grasped at the open air
And the blinding sun left her in
A bright emptiness.
Her streaming hair fluttered in the cool wind,
Sending tingling sensations
Throughout her body
She turned and ran,
Reaching out for someone's palm-
and it was there.
It was a wan, lifeless palm
Without the warm feeling of life.
A dark figure lifted her up into his Massive, muscular arms.
Frantically, she gazed up into the mist
And visualized the Face of Death.
The clouds decomposed and Drifted away into the heavens.
At last she realized her fate,
And her shrill, penetrating screams
Perished into the abysmal, vast twilight.

Overpopulation

The city is quiet now except for the occasional moan of a child, or a stomach grumbling. I am here in my cubicle trying to get as comfortable as I can without taking somebody else's space. It is hard to believe that at one time this problem wasn't so bad. They say in the books that during the 19th century there was enough to eat for everyone. That there were no cubicles, everyone had homes. They even had land that they could call their own. People could go on walks without running into someone else. How I would have loved to live during that time. But that is a dream and this is reality. We only get a ration of food every day . . . just enough to keep us alive and functioning. And as for room, we have none. People have been forbidden to have babies, for the simple reason that there is nowhere to put them. The problem is so bad that people kill themselves and each other. Cannibalism is even happening. These things are not against the law, but are encouraged. The president says it is our patriotic duty. There is talk that a nuclear war will start tomorrow. Nobody is frightened; there is no panic. I, personally, hope it will hit us first. I am a coward and cannot kill myself. If the bomb hits, it will take me and others out of our misery.

I see the dawn, and something else. It is a plane which has dropped something. I cannot see what it is. It is getting closer. I can see it now. I am not frightened, but relieved. Any second now I shall be in peace with no more worries. It has hit at last.

The Gift

"It's finally Christmas Eve," thought Spec. 5 Bobby Garcia. This would be the second Christmas he had spent in Vietnam. He thought back to the first one when everyone in the outside world had thought there was a ceasefire. But he knew better. On Christmas Eve a year ago, his platoon had engaged in three firefights, one that had come after an ambush. He remembered that one quite well because Billy Joe Wilson, his best friend, died trying to save a fallen comrade.

His chain of thought is broken as Joe Smith, his platoon guide, comes up to him and nudges him on his shoulder.

"Our orders just came in, Bobby. We are supposed to advance to position 27 across from the fire line," Joe mumbled disgustedly.

"Jesus," he thought, "we're drawing the worst duty on Christmas Eve." Bobby looked back at his squad that numbered five, all battle-hardened vets, used to living in this kind of hell. Bobby told his men to move out.

They advanced cautiously, and in half an hour they were all in the grubby foxhole that was position 27. It had rained that day and the foxhole was a pit of mud. The men tried to make themselves comfortable and prepared themselves for the long night ahead.

Nothing happened for four hours except for one radio call from H.Q. wanting to know if everything was alright. Fifteen minutes later it seemed like all hell broke loose. Small arms fire rang out all around and the poff, poff of mortar fire could be heard everywhere. Bobby yelled for his radioman to call back for reinforcements. Beside him Joe grunted and said he'd been hit in the leg. All around him Bobby heard his men yelling and he wished the reinforcements would come quickly.

Suddenly he heard a familiar voice calling to him. Startled, he recognized it as belonging to Billy Joe.

"Bobby, tonight you will give the supreme gift to your men and your country as I did. But don't think about it because you have been chosen. Your men will thank you for what you have done and your country will honor you as one of the few heroes of this war nobody wanted. I must go now."

Bobby didn't have time to think about what Billy Joe had said. Joe and two others were already wounded. The radioman could not get a reply from H.Q. Then he saw something land in the middle of the foxhole. For what seemed an eternity, Bobby stared at the smoking grenade. Then with a quick movement, he jumped on it a second before it blew up.

In America there is a beautiful new school named Garcia High School, a street in Washington D.C. named Garcia Avenue. A small white tombstone in Arlington stands by the J.F.K. Memorial.

In a small house in Barelvas, a little piece of metal on a ribbon, a paper and a picture with a small American flag are on a shelf in remembrance of a man that would live no more, a man who would be remembered by five men in a muddy foxhole in Vietnam in a war nobody wanted . . . a hero.

The Trip

In twenty-four hours Sam Johnson would be leaving on the Starship Saturn I. He would be leading an expedition to Murna, a star in the Antares star system. His crew would consist of fifty people including children.

He and his wife had requested to lead the trip because they were tired of society and the hustle-bustle world of eight billion people. The expedition was expected to last fifteen years and two of the fifteen years would be spent just getting out there. They were told that the planet experienced great temperature and climate changes and that the shelters they would build would have to be up within the first month or they would be unable to stand the freezing winter that would come on their second month on the planet.

Now the expedition including his wife and himself would consist of twenty men, twenty women, and twelve children. The list included a carpenter, a mechanic, a doctor, a teacher, a farming specialist, a scientist and an electrician and the others would help wherever necessary.

If the colony was a success, the staying period would be flown up to carry on the colony. Yet Sam knew it would be rough for the first few months. As it went on, things would get better, and if they found an animal that could survive the environment it would be flown up and raised for meat and slaughtered animals could be stored for future use. Yet in twenty-four hours the engines would sound and he would be flying away from earth and he never would return. And then a smile broke across his face and he thought for a while. He knew he would be happy.

Reflections

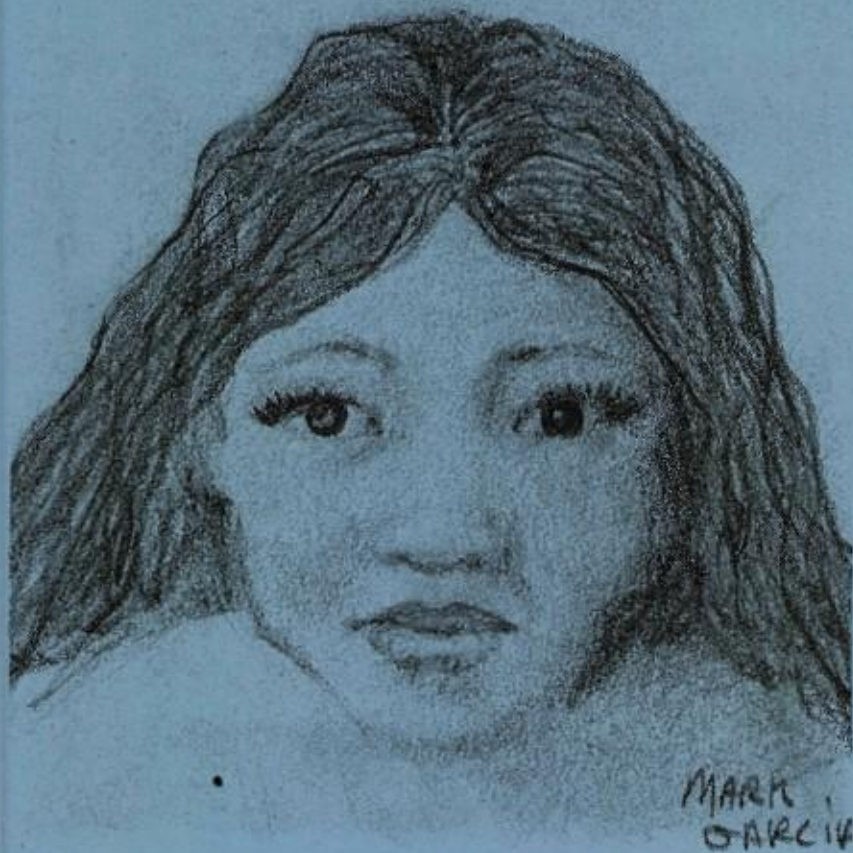

Open your eyes
And look at the one
Who stares back
With a frightful eye.
Don't hesitate to wonder
Why the tears
Flow so abundantly,
Just be happy
That you're standing on
The other side of the Mirror.

Looking For Love

When looking for love
I look for smiles,
I look for happiness
In different styles.
I look for the one
Who is strong and compassionate
who can make the grade
Without flunking or passing it
I look for pure heats
And natural high's,
For kindness and truth
And close family ties.
But most of all
I'm searching for me,
For one who is satisfied,
For one who is free.

Tell Me

Tell me why you love me the way you do
Why you need me and my love too
Who am I, to be wanted so much
Your sweet gentle voice had that very special touch.

Tell me why you wanted me with all your heart.
Why you didn't leave me alone from the start
You saw me too frightened, to confused
to reach out and touch
So you held out your hand because you cared so much.

Tell me why you took my world and tried giving me a reason to live.
You had your love to offer, and I had nothing to give.

My young and restless mind had once been too closed to see
This beautiful world of love you wanted
to share with me.

The love you knew I needed, was seen
through your eyes,
Because my eyes were too blind, too blind
to realize.
Everytime I see myself it's written on my face
"Why do I live in the world! For me
there is no place!"

Tell me what has happened to this love
we could have shared.
Maybe it was just I never really cared.

You had taken me and made me a special part of you
But why could I make you see that I wasn't meant for you.

But now it all has ended because of the wrong I had done before Never again will I hear your sweet voice,
touch your kind face
Never, any more.

The Hunt

Two men are on a deer hunting trip. On the first day they decide to climb a great mountain in search of their wary opponent. The climb begins at a fast pace and slows as the summit is neared. The men are thoroughly enthralled, excited and enthusiastic. Upon reaching the summit they stop to take a short rest, when not more than one hundred yards away they spy a huge buck.

The animal would truly be a trophy in anyone's den or living room. One, two, three shots are fired. One hits, and the deer bolts headlong down the mountainside. Two men, one great buck, all determined in their purpose. The merry chase is on. Over rocks, down passes, through trees, the chase goes on.

The foot of the mountain is in sight, a clearing laying ominously at the bottom. The men are behind by no less than three hundred yards. The great buck enters the clearing, leaping in great strides, headed for the far side. The men pull up. One shot is fired. The magnificent animal is down.

The men charge forward, eager for the capture. As they near him, the huge animal raises his head, looks sorrowfully at the men, gives one great gasp and dies.

Feelings

My mind is a ship sailing over a troubled sea.
My heart in quiet calmness waiting.
My soul longing, My hands reaching;
Emptiness surrounds me.

Man's coldness coming at me from every side.
How long will it last?
To whom can I turn?

Will Man's pride kill him?
Will greed take over the human race?
Or will it be machines?

How long will it be before we can all live?
together-instead of just dying together
in wars, alone and with nothing to show for it except un-ending tears?

The world was once beautiful.
Decorated with clear, cool running streams.
The air's fragrance-almost breath taking.
But it's only a dream, and imaginary setting
in my mind, because all I've seen is streams cluttered with beer cans and the air clouded by a gray film.

My mind is a ship sailing over trouble sea.
My heart in quiet, calmness waiting.
My soul longing, my hands reaching
Emptiness surrounds me.

Reincarnation

It was a cold night in the small town of Ridge Creek. The sky was dark and ominous, the night, New Years Eve. The traffic was heavy and the roads very slippery from a recent snowstorm and cold spell. The town of Ridge Creek had a population of 30,000 people and the bars were crowded with laughing, singing people, people out for a good time. The police had their hands full with drunk drivers and the usual New Years traffic.

It was 7:30 PM and there was much excitement at the house of Anthony Smith's parents. Anthony was about to go out with his girlfriend and his parents were going out with friends to a party.

"Hey, Mom, where's my dark blue shirt?"

"It's on the chair in the corner. You know that girl he's going out with tonight, Judy, I just don't like her. I always see her with all kinds of guys."

"They're just kids. Don't worry about it."

"I guess you're right."

"I'll go out and start the car."

"Kids, huh! If Anthony only knew what kind of girl she was. Anthony, we're leaving now. Drive carefully. Did Father leave you any money?"

"Yes, and don't worry about me. Bye. Man, parents really worry. Let's see if I've got everything. Keys, wallet, comb. I'd better call Judy to let her know I'll be picking her up soon."

"Hello. Martin residence."

"Judy, this is Anthony. I'll be leaving now to pick you up. The traffic is pretty heavy and I decided to leave early."

"Okay. Bye."

"Boy, she sure didn't sound excited about the whole thing. I guess I'd better leave."

"Police! Police!"

"Slow down, Jim, that little girl over there in the street. What happened?"

"Some man ran my dog down. He didn't even stop."

"What kind of car was it?"

"I don't know. It all happened so fast."

"All we can do now is call the animal control people to pick up your dog. Let's go. There's not much more we can do. People just don't care anymore. They should have at least stopped. The roads are sure getting slippery."

"Look! Up ahead! A car's overturned and it looks like the driver's been thrown clear of the vehicle!"

"He's dead. Didn't have a chance. Call in for an ambulance."

"Okay, Phil."

"Here comes the ambulance."

"Where do we take him?"

"Take him to the County Hospital, then we'll notify the parents and tell them the bad news."

"What's his name so I can enter it in my report?"

"Let's see. Here it is. Anthony Smith, 1120 Main Street."

"Okay, guys, take off."

"I guess people will never learn to drive slowly."

"We can leave the siren off on the way to hospital unless our passenger minds."

"Where am I? Help, someone, help! Help! I can't move. What's this white sheet doing over my body?"

"Nurse, where do you want this body? It's the one from the wreck down on Highway 112."

"Put him in Room 305. We just got permission from his parents for the doctors to start their autopsy."

"An autopsy? I'm alive. What's wrong with everyone? I'm alive.

For God's sake, help me!"

"Doctor Robinson, are you ready to start the autopsy?"

"Ready."

"Doctor, what's wrong with you? I am alive. Can't you hear me? My arms, what's wrong? They don't move. My legs. Dead. I can't be dead! Doctor, what are you doing to me? Get those needles out of me!"

"Doctor Robinson, you can now begin with a head incision."

"I don't feel anything. Could it be possible that I am dead?"

"Nurse, you can remove the body now. And notify the parents. See where they want the body taken."

"Yes, Doctor Robinson. Mrs. Carley, take this body to Room 312. I have to notify the parents so they can make the funeral arrangements."

"Hello."

"This is Nurse Montgomery at the County Hospital . . ."

"I told the police that I didn't want anybody to bother us. I will go down to the hospital later."

"I'm very sorry. The police didn't notify us."

"My wife is taking this very hard. I'm sorry for yelling at you. I'll be contacting you tomorrow."

"Help, help!" Why can't I move? What's going on? Where are you taking me? Get this sheet off me. I'm alive! I'm alive!"

"Just put the body over there on that table. I have to contact the parents about the arrangements tomorrow. You can begin embalming him."

"Okay, boss."

"Enbalm, enbalm? NO! NO! I'm alive! Could it be that I'm just dreaming? No, I left the house, got in the car and drove away. Then, yes, then I hit that stupid dog that got in my way. Then I kept going. All of a sudden, the road, I slid and then everything went black."

"I'm finished, Mr. Henderson."

"Okay. The Rosary will be tomorrow. Please go and get the chapel ready."

The evening of the Rosary was quiet. People walked in, paid their respects to Anthony's parents. Many high school students attended that evening, soon the room becomes quiet as people wait for the Rosary to begin. A stillness falls over the chapel and a priest walks in to begin the Rosary.

"Who would ever think that a person could be alive at his own Rosary? This cannot be true. I refuse to accept it. I'm alive! I'm alive! This is a dream, simply a dream . . . all these flowers, but I can't smell a thing. Why can I see and not smell? Why, why, why? I guess it is true. I am dead. But why am I thinking? Why? Mom, Dad, help me! Quit praying, dammit, quit praying. Judy, what are you doing here with Frank Edwards? You! You were using me all along. Wait, wait! Where's everybody going? Don't go! Mom, Dad, please, please, for God's sake. Come back. Come back!"

"Poor Anthony. He was our only child and now he's gone."

"These things happen, dear, and we're just going to have to accept it."

"But why Anthony? Why couldn't it have been someone else? Why our Anthony?"

"Mr. and Mrs. Smith, are you ready to leave now? The car will be waiting when you've finished."

"I guess we'd better leave now, dear."

"Okay, boys, start lowering the body. We have five more holes to dig by Friday. And there's another one we have to finish in the South area."

Reincarnation (cont.)

It is now March. The Smith family has not changed much since Anthony's death. Mrs. Smith has been seeing the doctor for the heart problems she's been having. Mr. Smith spends most of his time taking care of his wife.

"Sally, Sally. Wanna go down to the park and play for a while before lunch?"

"Okay. Mom, I'm going down to the park to play for a while. I'll be back in half an hour."

"Alright, but be careful."

"Sally, did they ever find the person who ran over your dog?"

"No, Susie, the police didn't care about my dog. Nobody cares anymore. I pray to God that whoever ran over him gets what he deserves."

"Sally, look, over there in the corner! That dog, he looks just like the dog you had!"

"It can't be, he's dead. Skippy! Skippy! Look, he's coming, he's coming! It can't be him! Then who is it?"

Life
I believe life is
A beginning and an end,
And a beginning.

The Timeless Song

The minute, the day, the year goes by.
Time has no beginning, no end, no life.
Time has no meaning, no depth, no thought.
It only encourages things to be wrought.

Time is only a thing to be measured,
It doesn't give me any pleasure.
The pleasure of flying a fluttering kite,
Or feeling the breeze on a summers night.

Yet this love and beauty few can see
Is interrupted by "time for tea."
And the stimulation of an evening shower
Is missed because it's "cocktail hour."

I haven't had time to see morning dew,
Or to feel the petals of the flowers so few.
Why haven't I had time for love?
Or to speak more often to God above?

I would water the little flowers,
I would say my morning prayers,
I would talk to my neighbors,
Or would they even care?

There is no time for sharing, just Hurry pick out what you're wearing.
Then rush over to the car, to beat
The traffic jam war.

But who am I where am I going?
Must my children see this too?
The meaning, the cares, the life,
That they sought will it too be mangled by the hands of the clock?

Questions, so many questions, there
Is no time to answer them all.
For the clutches of time are upon
Me, until I can no longer see.

Beautiful

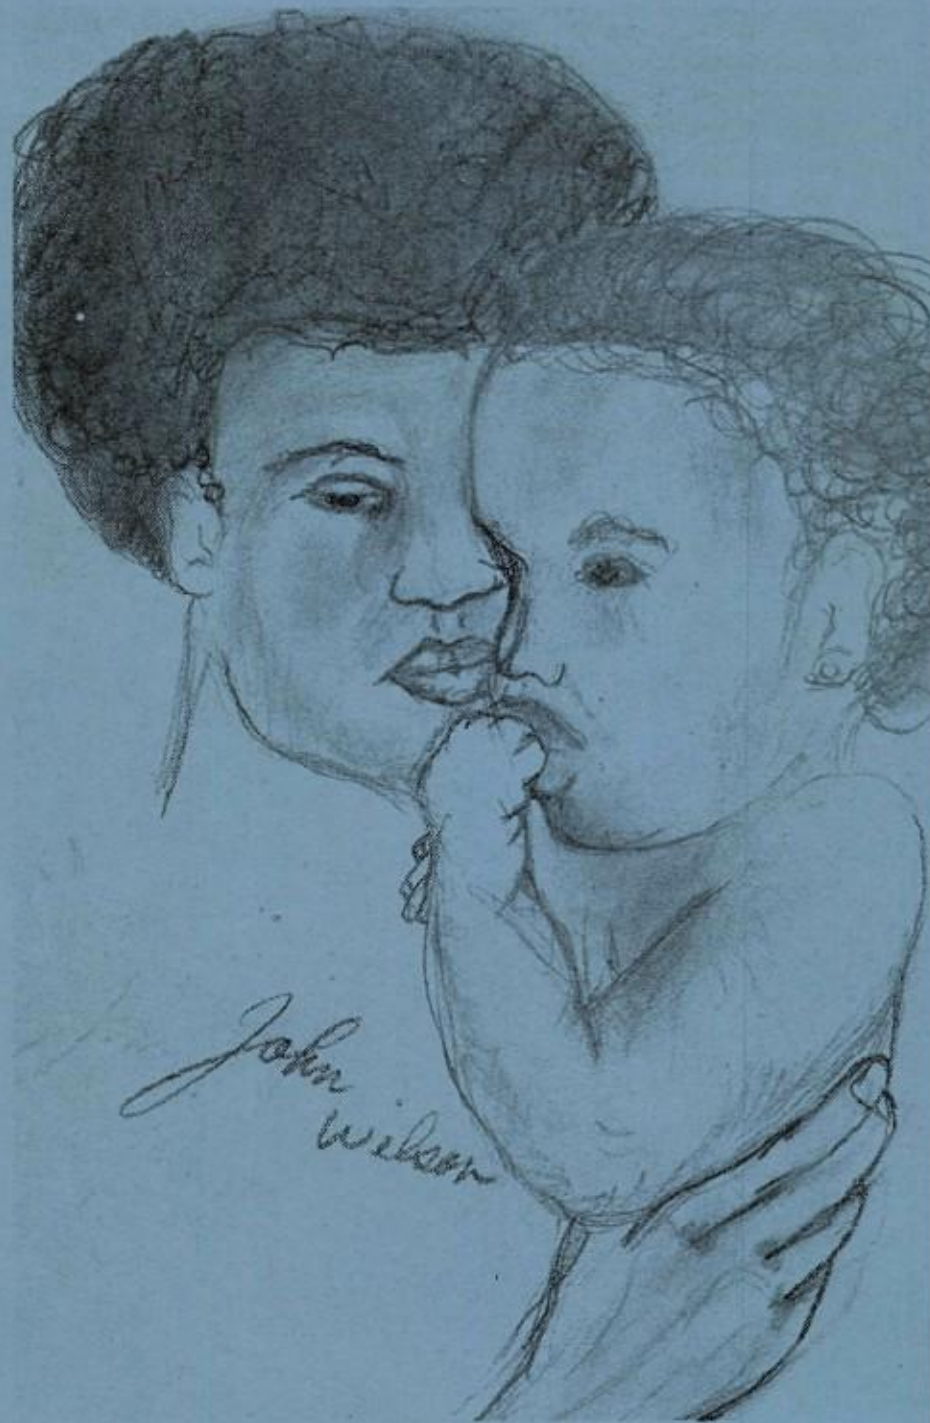

Beautiful is the soul of the black man
A soul filled with pride from the heritage of his people.

Beautiful is the body of the black man
His nut brown skin outlines his toned muscles from a long hard days work in the field.

Beautiful are the hands of the black man
The hands that long to break the chains
Which enslaves his freedom.

Beautiful are the eyes of the black man
The eyes that dream of one day
When his people will be free.

Beauty

There is no beauty like natural
beauty.
There is no beauty like that in the heart.
There is no life like the wise
life of the free.
There is no life that is free
from the start.
Beauty is admired when it is on the outside.
But it is loved when it comes from within.
Free life is admired by one that is confined.
But it's only because one didn't begin.

The sun rises and sets in all its glory.
The sun is beauty that's wild and free.
The sea comes in without a sure story.
The sea is beauty showing its wild glee.

The sun and the sea are free as can be Both, together, represent all beauty to be.

Reflections

It was dark and gloomy as I walked through the quiet, lonely streets of a small old town in old England. As I scampered across the main street, the old clock in the town plaza struck twelve midnight. I knew that it was time for all of my long-lost friends to come out of their resting places for their nightly ritual. Throughout the wee hours of the night, we danced through the streets, dodging in and out of the alleys and doorsteps. We were all enjoying the quiet coolness of the dark lifeless night. All dancing and swaying through the streets like the wind, without a sound; quiet and swift as a winter breeze. Then as the bright, overpowering life of the sun began to peek over the mountaintops, my friends and I left as we came, swiftly and silently to our proper resting places in the dark dead graves of reality.

My Idol

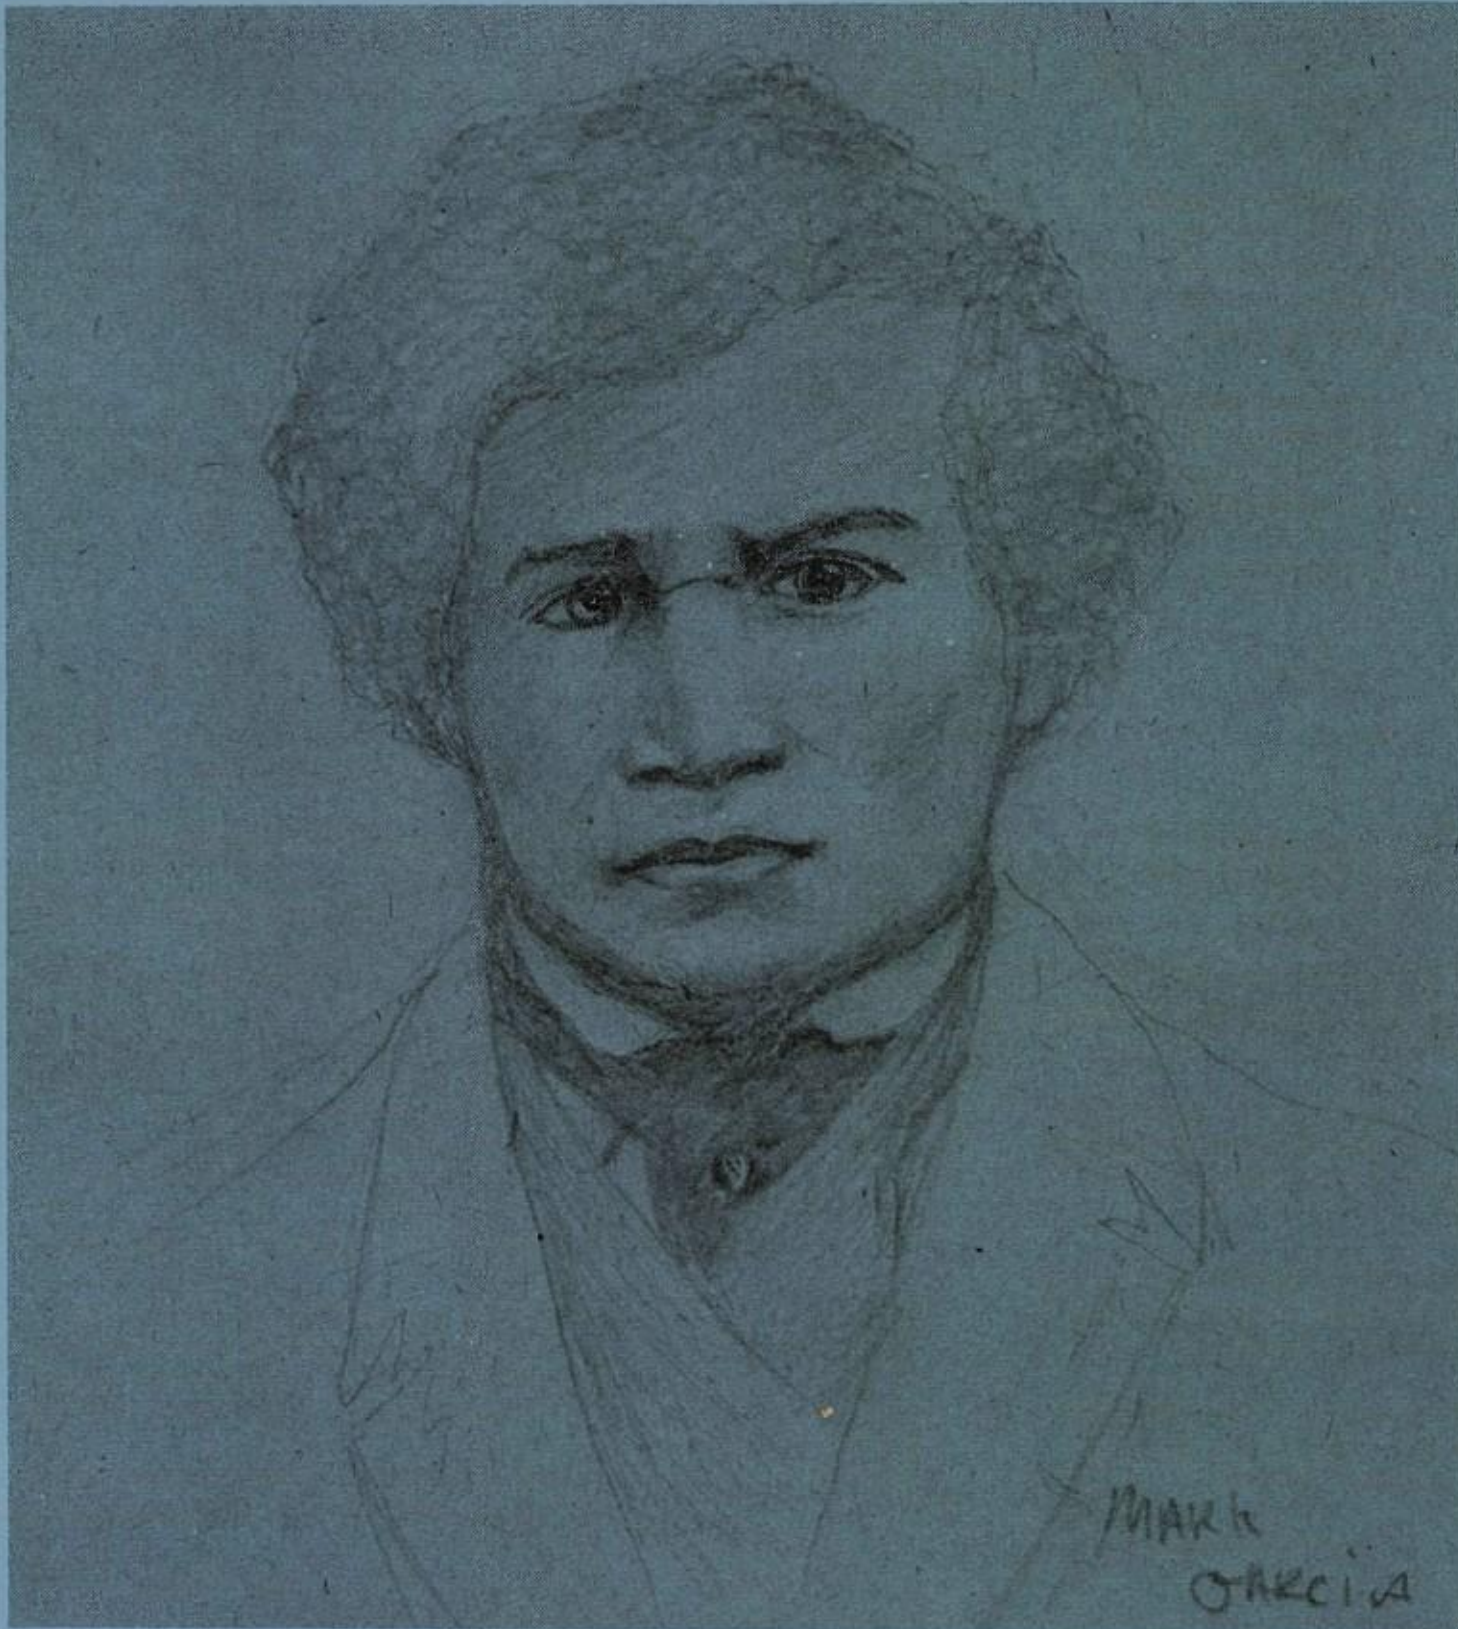

How do I appeal to you, my idol?
How do I convey my message?
You are the best my eyes will ever behold.

You will always be an inspiration.
The sight of no one else
Could ever give me the same sensation.

In you I see humility
Where the greatest beauty lies
I see your power, your strength . . .
Your sensitivity

You see, to me you are one so rare.
I've reached my greatest depth
understanding you
Continue in your unique path with glory, my idol
And, from afar with all my admiration
your life I'll share.

My Overpopulated World

It is the year 2025. I am one of the thousands living in this overpopulated world. The government has issued an order limiting couples to having one child every five years, with exceptions for those having twins or triplets. Those couples will not be able to have any more children for another eight years.

My name is Barbara Jones. I am one of four girls in my family, and I am also the youngest. My parents are Ralph and Beth Candelaria. I myself am expecting my first child in about three weeks. The doctor claims that I am going to have twins, but I am sure I will not. Obviously, we will not know until I give birth!

The father and my husband is Michael Jones. He died three months ago in the war. You'd think with all this killing in the war, the world would not be so overpopulated. I come from a very small town in New Mexico, Santa Fe, our capital. If you were to see the people in it now, you wouldn't think it was so small.

The government thinks it has a plan that will relieve the United States of its overpopulation. The government has sent four astronauts and their families to live on the moon. They claim that they are alive and healthy. This test will continue for another three months. The government will start moving people there as soon as they are sure that it is safe. So it probably won't occur for another nine months to a year.

Today is July 15, 2026. I had a son. He is three and a half months old today. We were among the 100,000 people picked in each state to live in one of the new colonies on the moon. I will be very lonely because the rest of my family will not be going. The other countries of the world will not participate in this experiment because they are afraid their people will die.

It is now July 18, 2026. My son and I are boarding a TWA 747 heading for Cape Kennedy where we will board the rocket Jermaine. The trip will take three days we have heard.

The colony that we will be living in is called Workshop. In Workshop, they have jobs, shopping centers, the luxuries of the United States. My home supposedly will consist of three bedrooms, living room, dining room, den, nursery, utility room, two baths, a kitchen and a playroom. I don't know what I am going to do with all this room by myself. It will certainly take some getting used to. One good thing, though, we will receive letters from our friends and relatives via rocket once a week.

July 18, 2027. My son is fourteen months old and I've gotten to know a lot of people. They are so helpful with Michael, Jr. When I'm at work, the neighbors take care of him.

November 28, 2030. They told us today that the United States was involved in a nuclear war and that there are barely any survivors. Right now, I feel that I am one of the luckiest ones because my family moved here a year ago. I feel this plan will work out as long as we don't start any wars and as long as we continue to keep peace with the other colonies.

November 30, 2030. Michael Jr. is four years old today and I am getting married once again to Captain James Reeves. He is twenty-six years old with brown hair and blue-gray eyes. He is also the governor of our colony.

This is now my world, my unpopulated world.

Barbara Candelaria

If you have any problems,
Come to me and I'll make them oh so small.
If you have any questions,
I'll answer them all.

If you ever need somebody,
I'll be there.
And no matter where you go,
I'll always be near

If you're ever in need,
Just look and you'll see me.
For where ever there is life,
That's where I'll be

Who am I?
That isn't too hard.
For I am Thy Protector,
Thy Father, Thy God.

Who knows the way to the Place called "Happiness?"
Is it down the long road
Called suffering, or
Can I get there by Simply holding out a thumb?
Many times I think that
I've found the right road,
But the dark one-ways
Seem to pull me towards
Their Dead Ends.
Hurry!
My time is running short
And the stars,
They're getting harder to reach.
Help me
And happiness will be
Your reward.

The Different Person

Kathy was a bright new student in school who loved to get involved. Kathy had no friends except the ones she had left in her hometown. Still she was a very friendly girl. But no one wanted to get involved with her. One day she met Mike who thought she was a farout chick. Mike and Kathy made a good couple. When Mike asked Kathy where she was from, Kathy answered a far away place where nobody cares what you look like or talk like as long as you are friendly. Kathy told Mike that she had heard that this was a beautiful place to live and that these people accepted everyone, no matter what. Still Kathy went on talking about going back home where her family and friends were. Mike was so confused about this because he really like Kathy by this time. Kathy wondered why Mike had been blind from the day of birth, but had a feeling for people who were so friendly. Kathy didn't know what it was to be blind or what the word meant because she was not familiar with the problem. She came from an entirely different place where you could be what you wanted to be. Mike asked Kathy, "why did you quit school?" She answered, "no one would accept me for what I am."

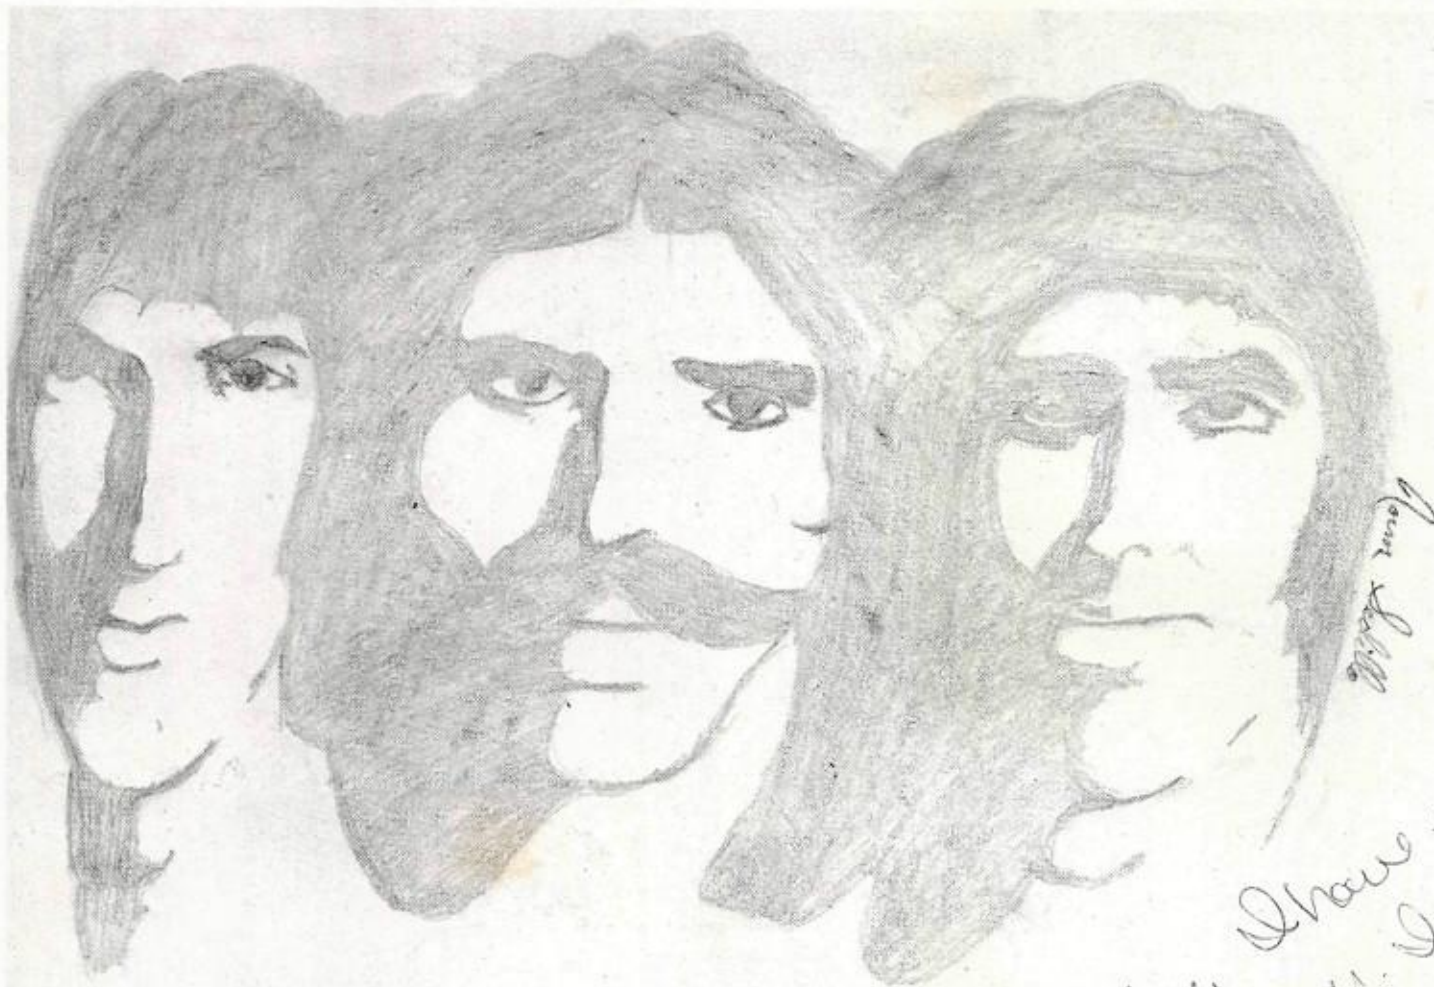

He asked, "Why? I cannot see. The only thing I see is black which is a beautiful color to me. I don't care what you look like,

even if you're a green person from Mars."

Of course, we all know that Kathy was a green person from Mars, and that Mike finally woke up from his dream and said "Thank God, I can see!"

Seniors

First Graduation Class at New AHS Numbers 545

Being the first class to graduate from the new AHS was a unique honor for the Class of '75. They were the fortunate ones to blaze the trail for the future generations of loyal Bulldogs.

They were also the ones who clung tenaciously to the old AHS, fearful that many traditions that were so faithfully practiced in their younger years would be left behind as the old doors of AHS closed to them for the last time.

These were the Bulldogs who set the pace for the underclassmen. AHS had become a cherished memory and despite the new surroundings, they were determined to carry on. They were the new breed.

The summer passed into autumn and seniors found that school work became more important-this way the last year that they would ever have high school classes, and they had to make the most of it.

Christmas with all its hectic merriment settled upon each senior with the subtle realization that for many of them, this Christmas would be the last spent with the family and friends. Many would be scattered throughout the U.S. on their own.

The cold weather blossomed into springtime, fresh and clean. The senior class became close and united for they knew the great day would soon be upon them. It was unbelievable-school would soon be over and the friends accumulated would be but happy memories.

At last it arrived. The green caps and gowns were worn with love and dignity. Many were joyous, many sad, and many anxiously awaiting to try out their wings. They would soar to new horizons, new days would dawn. But they never would forget the place where dreams were born and where pride was instilled. Their AHS spirit would echo from future Bulldogs and their AHS love would enrich future dawns.

Registration of AHS Bring

Old Back Memories

For a moment we find ourselves at the old Albuquerque High, only to encounter a touch of the days gone by. Remembering that corner of the patio, the place where everyone met all their friends day after day. All those agonizing times trudging those endless flights of stairs suddenly don't really seem all that bad. Somehow one can appreciate them and what they lead to. The second floor window, offering a perfect view of the life around us. Knowing in the back of our minds all these memories and more will never pass our way again.

The college method of registering had everyone in a gust of chaos. Line after line, waiting for the certain class, only to find that one is in the wrong line. Satisfaction describes the feeling of many who leave the school knowing this was not all done in vain. The anxiety is there, awaiting the new day made for us.

The new day has come, buses and cars and people fill the scene of the newly sculptured building. The many expressions and feelings could not be captured at the first glimpse of the new school. It was such a unique change from the old structure that many of us were awed. Everything seemed so bright, etched in perfectness, the roads of promise and new horizons never ceasing.

Spirit Increased by Total Involvement

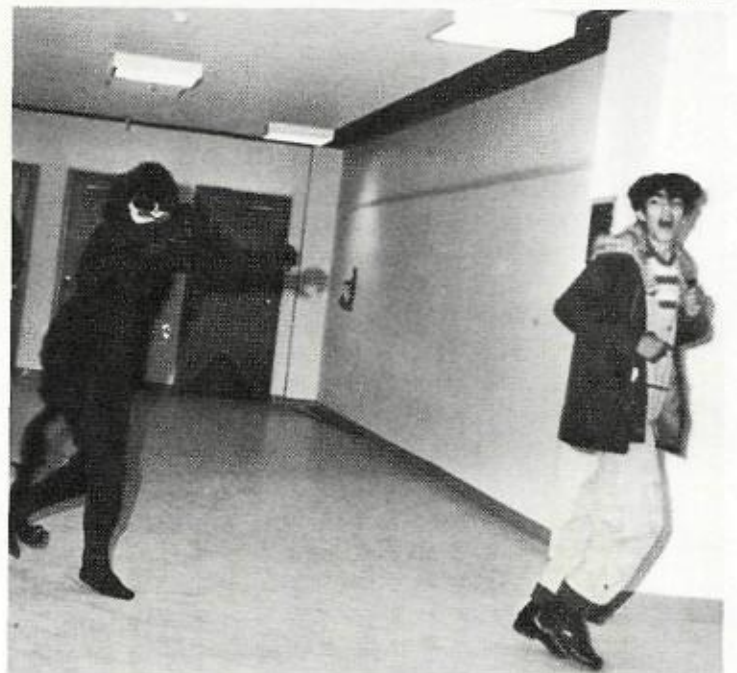

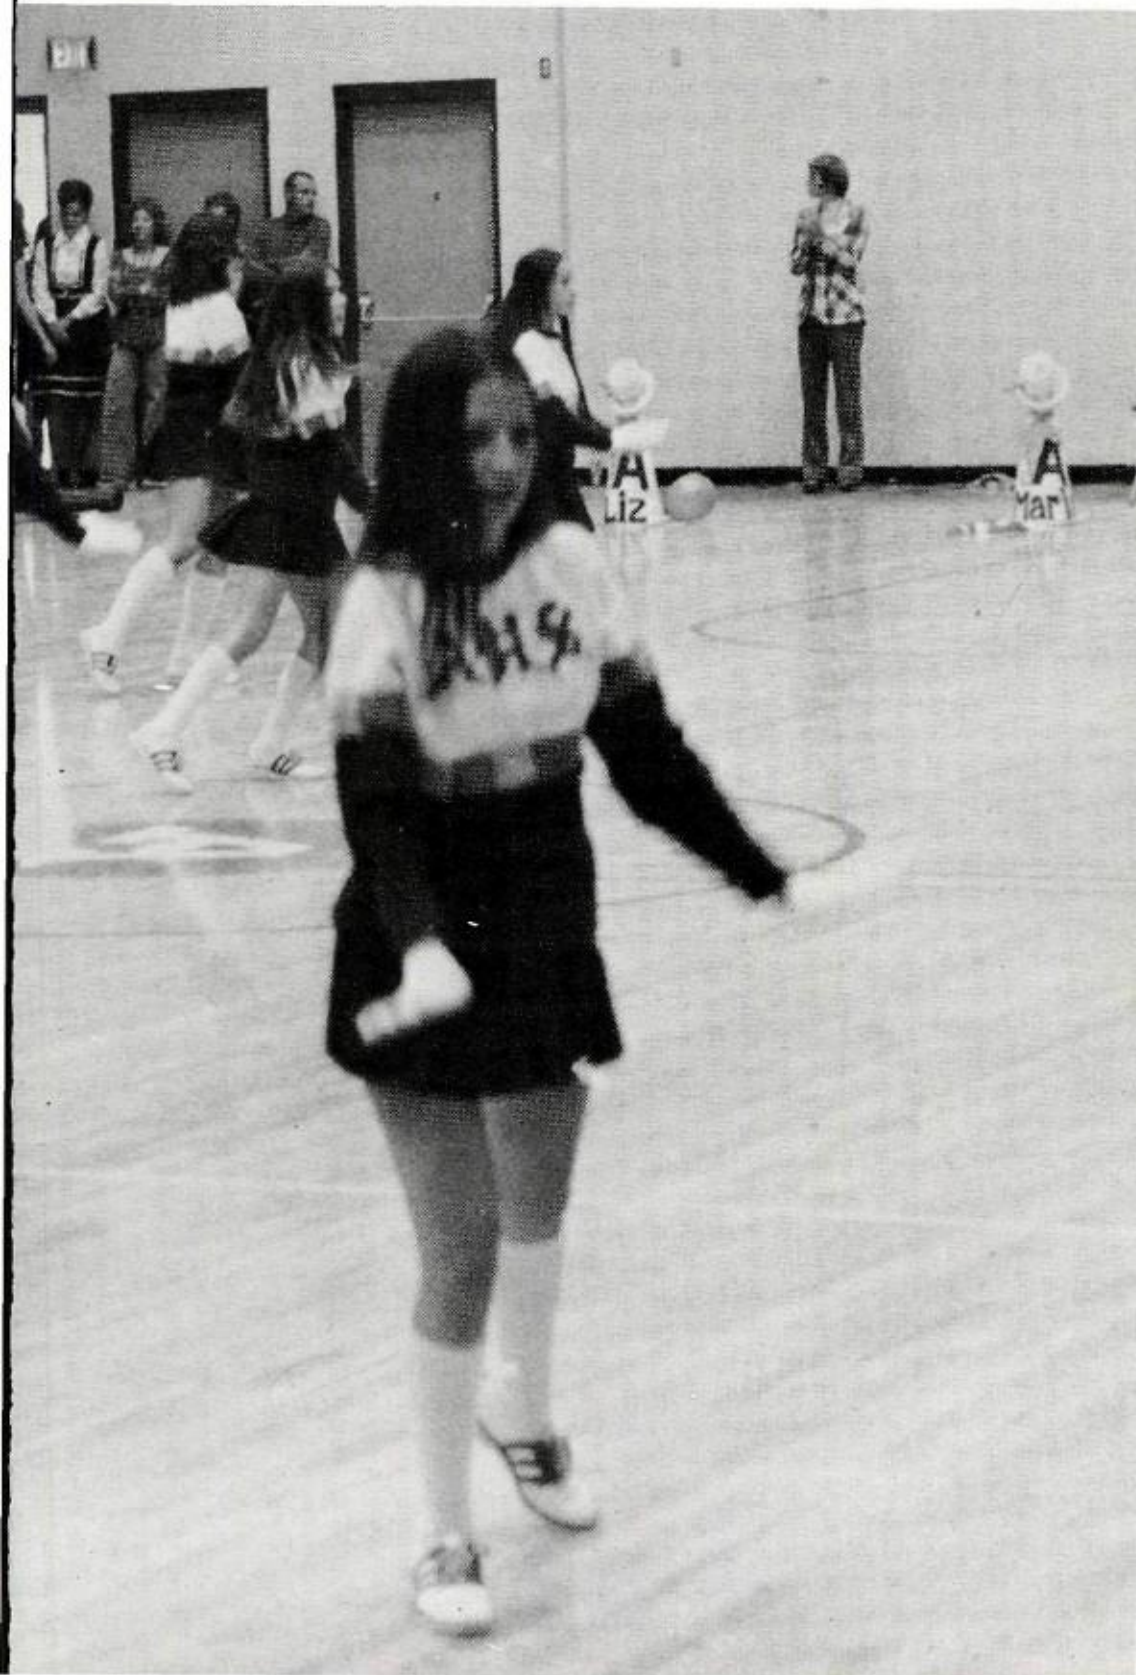

Since 1879, AHS has set the standards of spirit for all the other schools to follow. Years ago thousands cheered the Bulldogs; bobby-socked cheerleaders dominated the scene.

Those thousands still cheer. Although the bobby socks are gone and the names and faces are different, they are still the same spirited group.

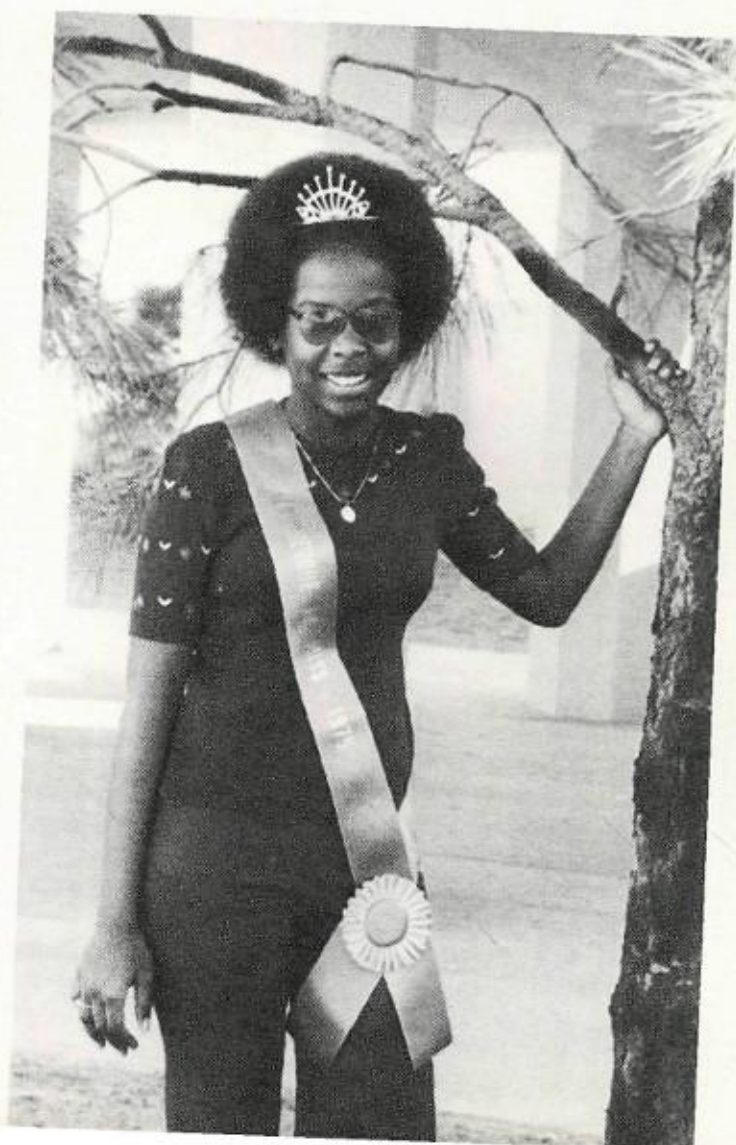

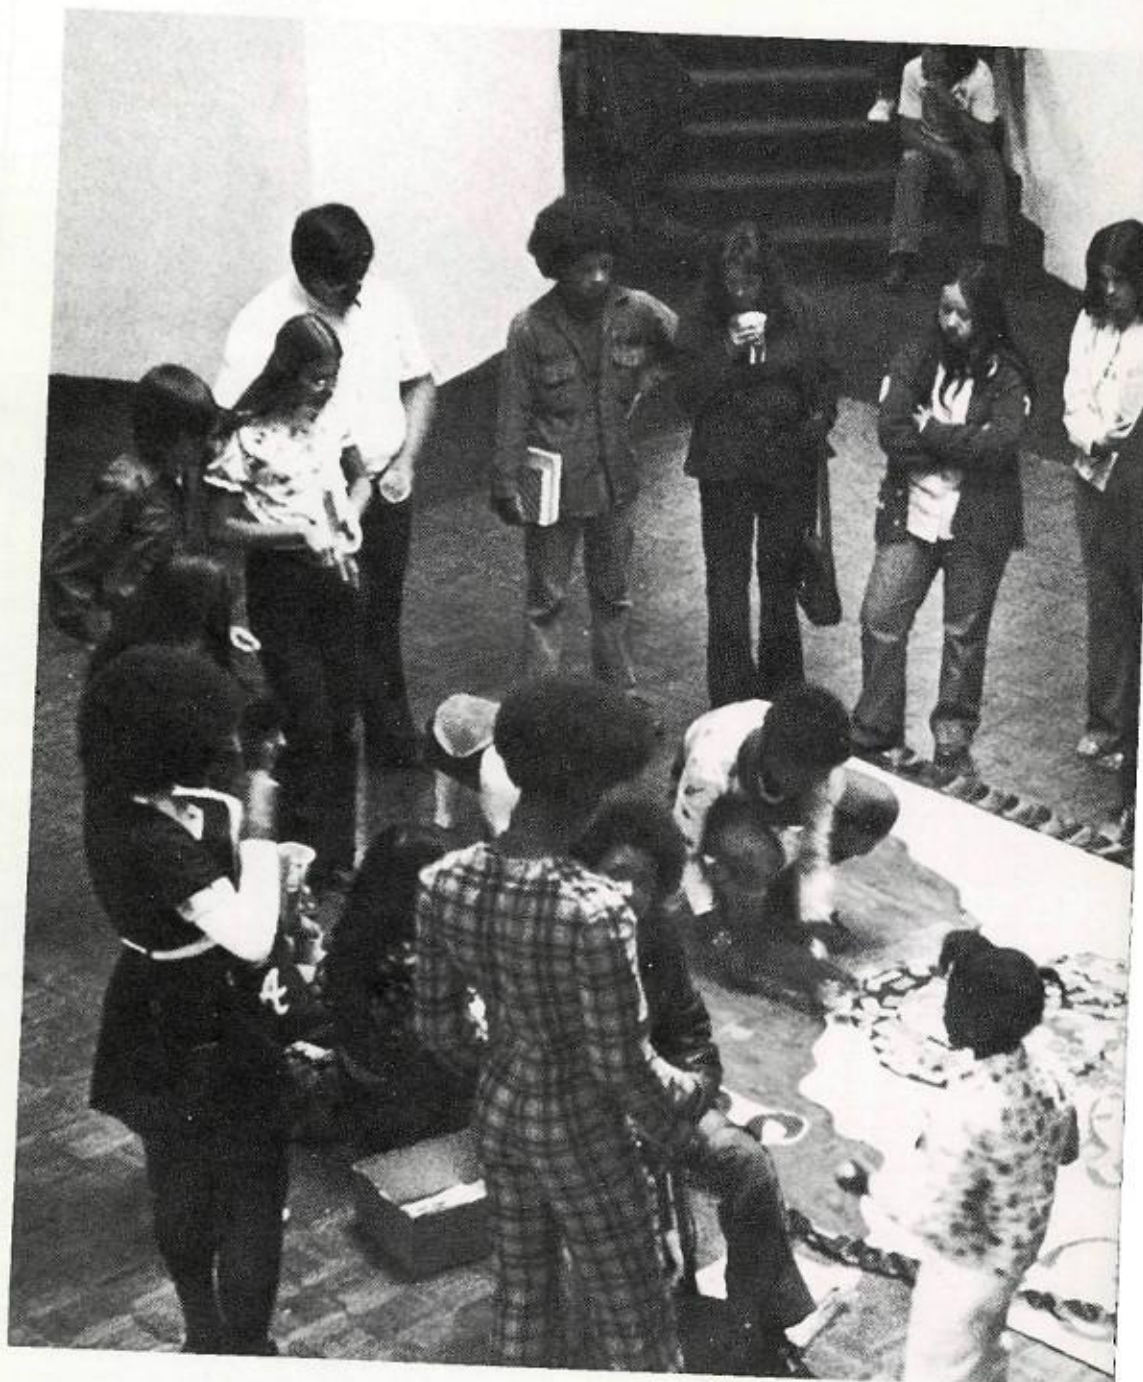

There is a certain intangible pride at Bulldog City that no other school can claim. To attend AHS is to inherit a cherished heritage and this heritage makes AHS all the more spirited.

Yet as the echoes fade in the old buildings, new increased vibrations of enthusiasm resound in the building on Odelia. The new day has begun.

Homecoming Traditions Maintained at New AHS

Newness was as omnipresent as the splendor and excitement which surrounded the room and reflected off the glowing faces of the court.

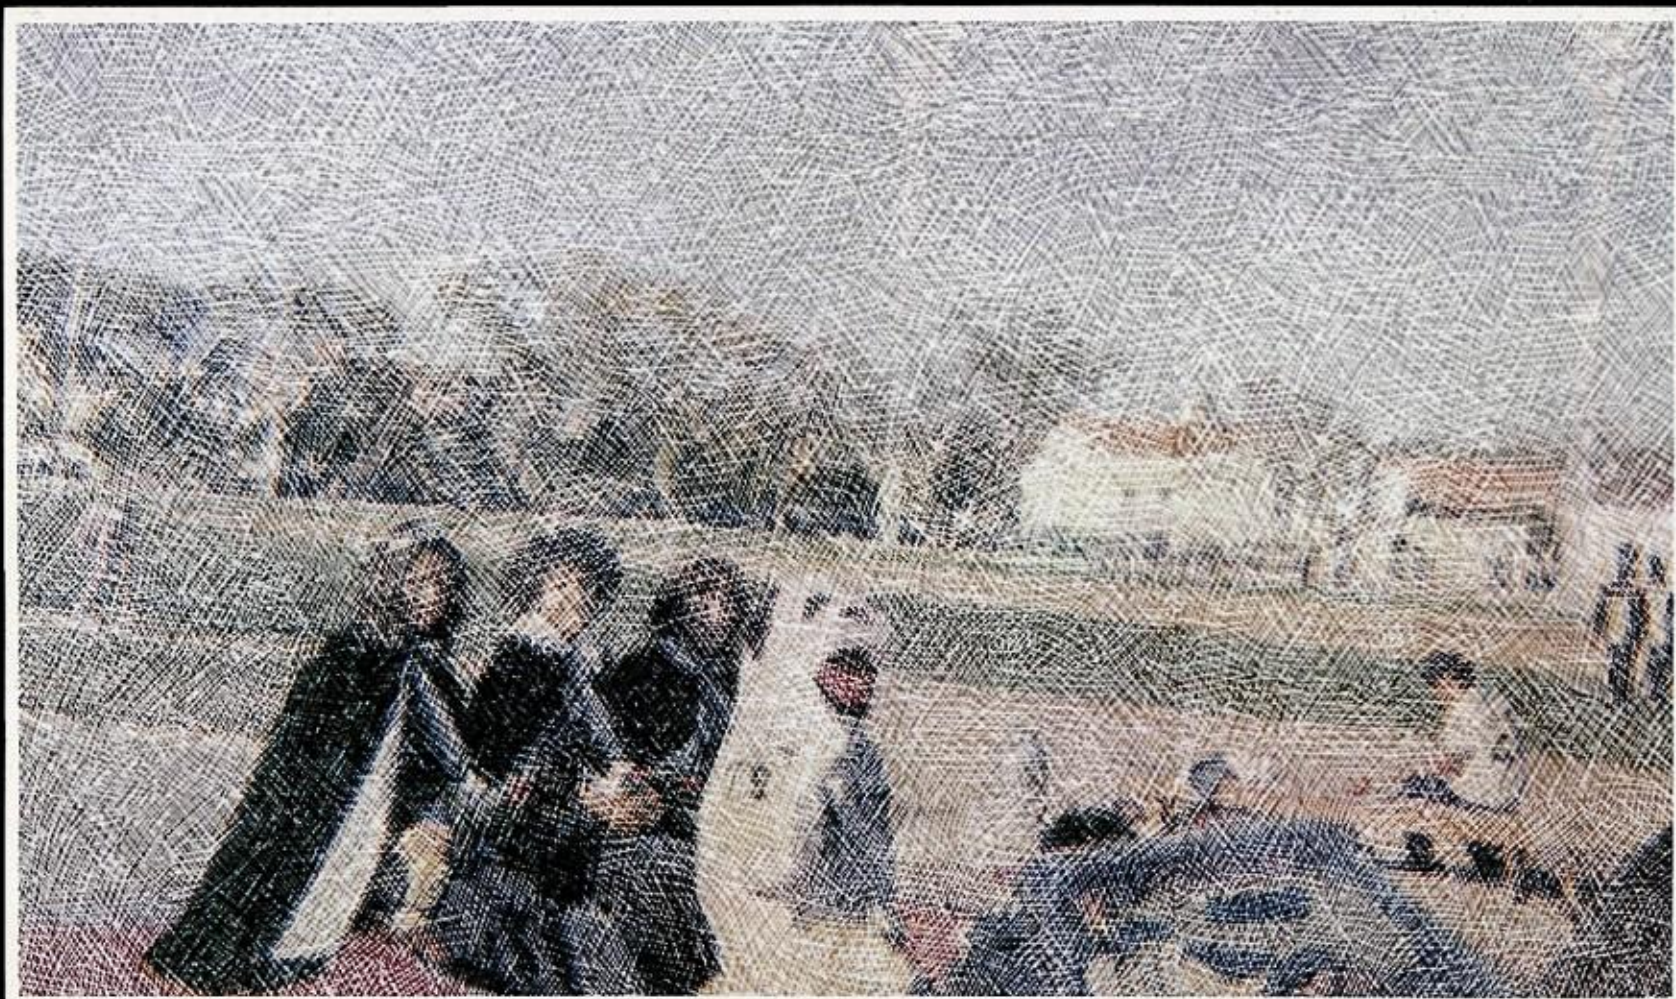

Silhouetted against a rainbow-crested haven, each girl and her escort proceeded between the stately ROTC sentinels, carrying gossamer roses which they gave to their mothers in a tender display of gratitude and pride.

After weeks of suspense, the crowd expressed their approval of the crowning of Princesses Beatrice Rivas and Beatrice Martinez and Queen Rose Huling, with roaring applause and tears.

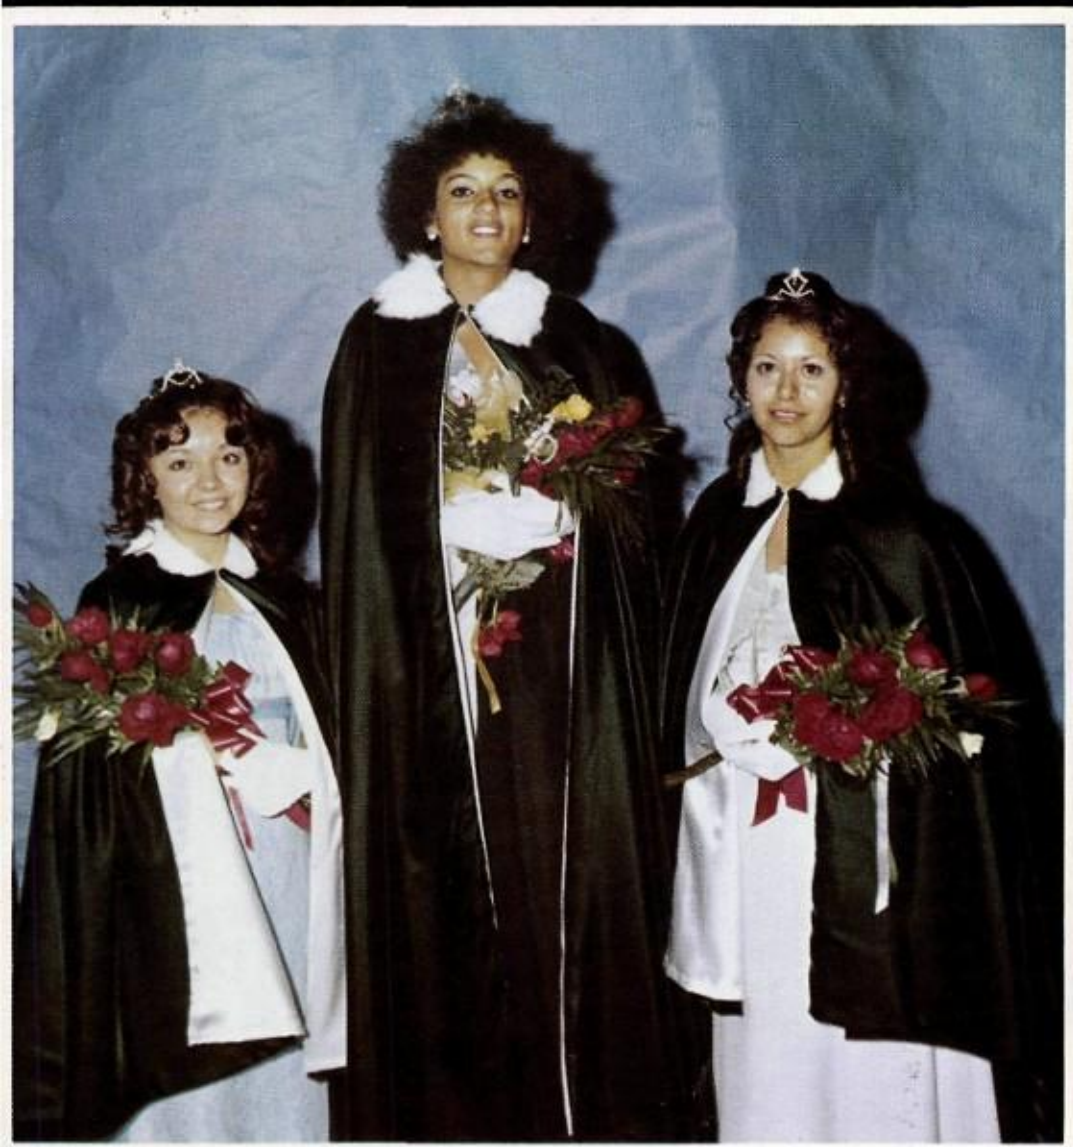

And as Queen Rose made her royal walk, everyone sensed that AHS was entering its new day but with the spirit endured and cherished since the founding years of the old AHS. Traditions, like Homecoming, would outlast the transition.

The new day officially dawned, November 10, amid nostalgic reminders and bright promises.

Setting forth on a course toward many years of enrichment and joy, Bulldog City opened its doors to the new who would soon learn the traditions and the loyalty so much a part of AHS-and to the old who helped to create those traditions and that loyalty. Glen O. Ream and Jeannette Stromberg were honored with the dedication of the media center and gym in their names.

One could look upon the festive occasion as a historic page in the long saga of AHS; a new era and a fulfillment of a dream.

Traditional Event Inspires Spirit Week

One of the traditional events passed on from the old Albuquerque High is Spirit Week. Although there was much competition from the senior, and junior classes and faculty, the sophomores won the spirit trophy. Monday, November 11, began with lollipop and diaper day, Tuesday was scarey mask day, Wednesday was 50's day, Thursday was pajamas day, and Friday was clash day.

I might as

 I really don't know
 what to say except that we enjoyed
 your friendship.
 I'm sorry you'll be leaving us
 so soon, but I pray that the Lord
 will lead you in His work wherever you go.
 I know He will.

 Jimmie

Foreign Students Attend AHS

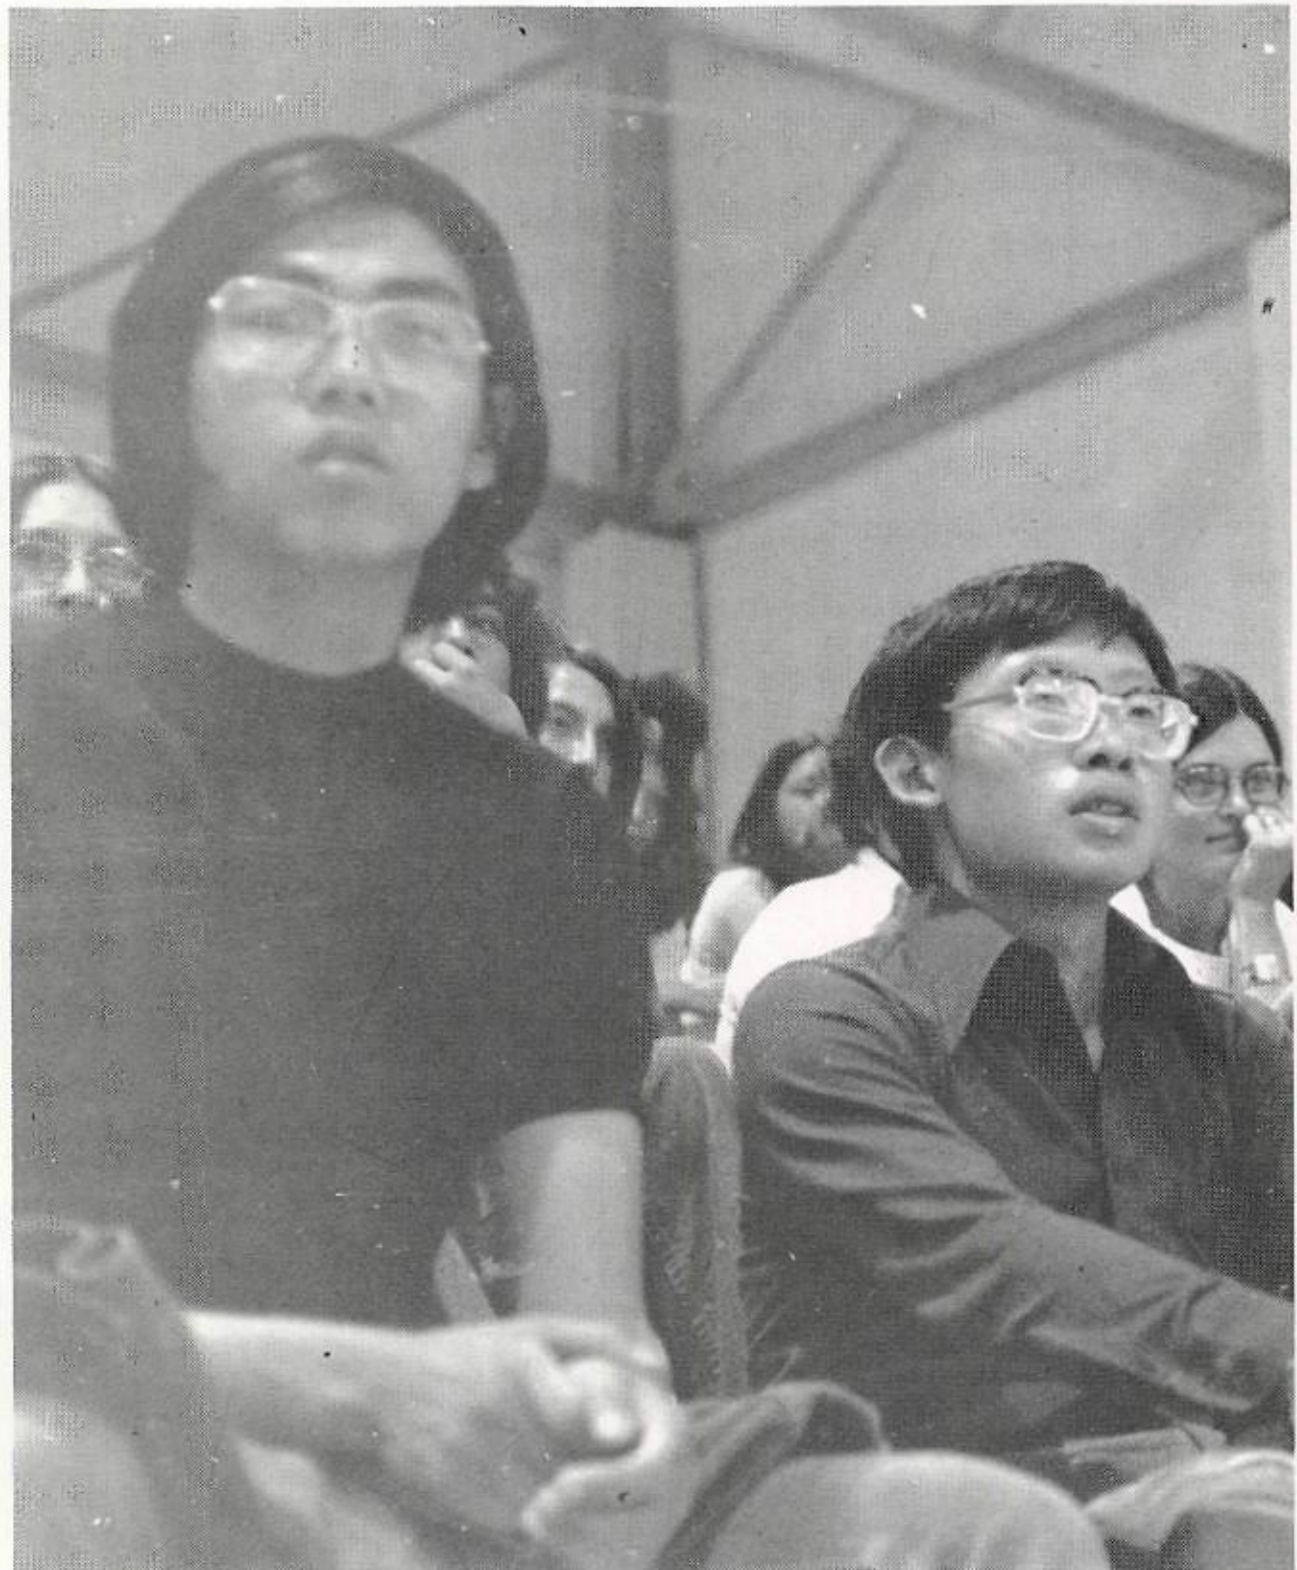

Benny Lee and B.K. Chan were senior students at Albuquerque High this year. Benny is very interested in science courses. In addition to science courses, he took Algebra, and typing to prepare himself for college. He hopes to stay in the U.S. and attend a university in California.

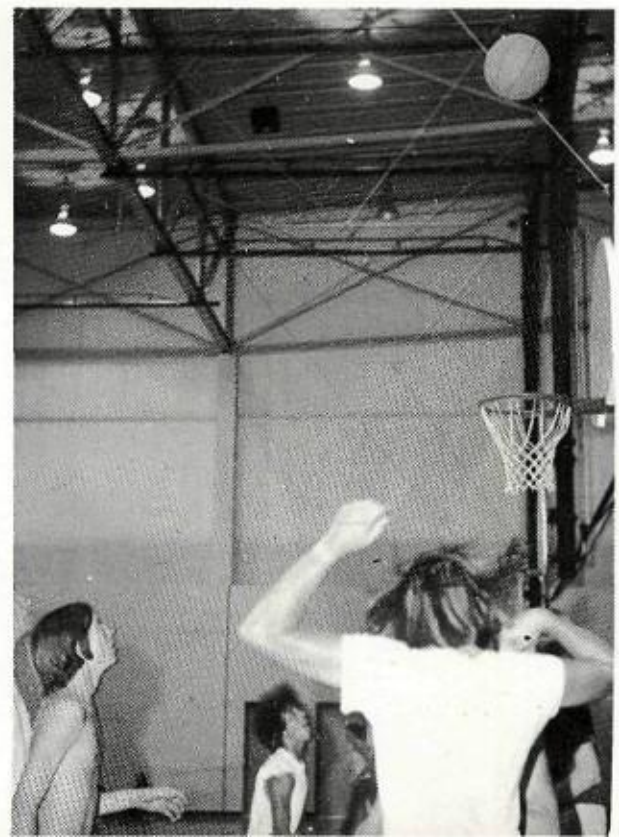

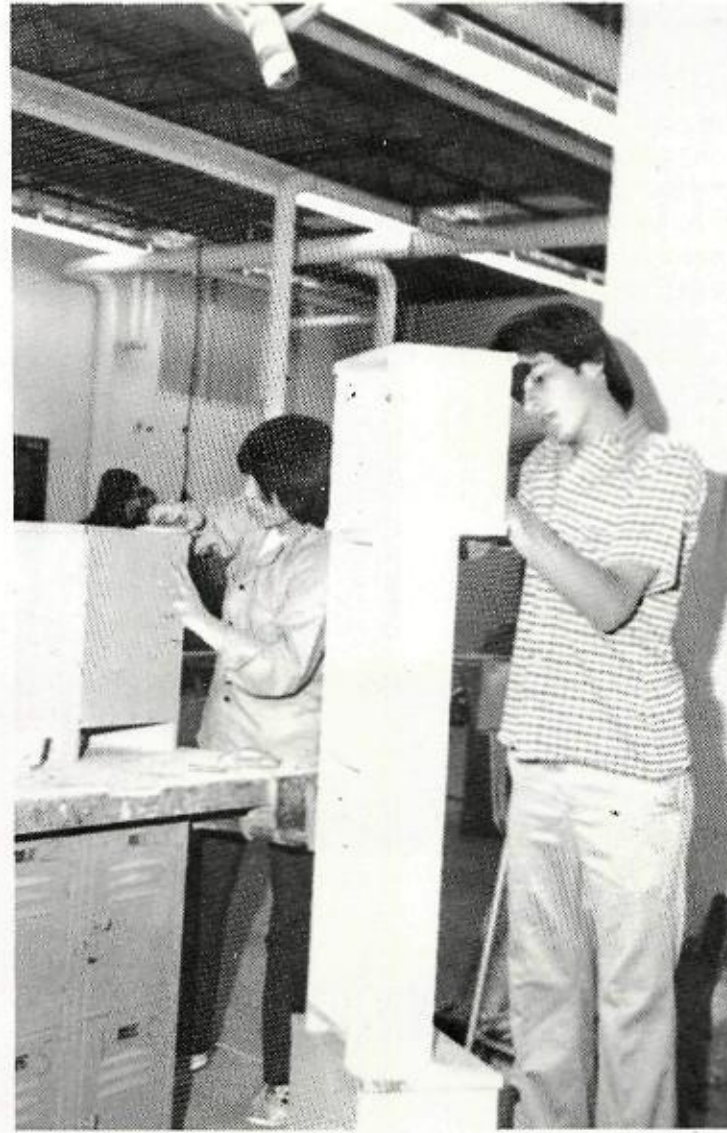

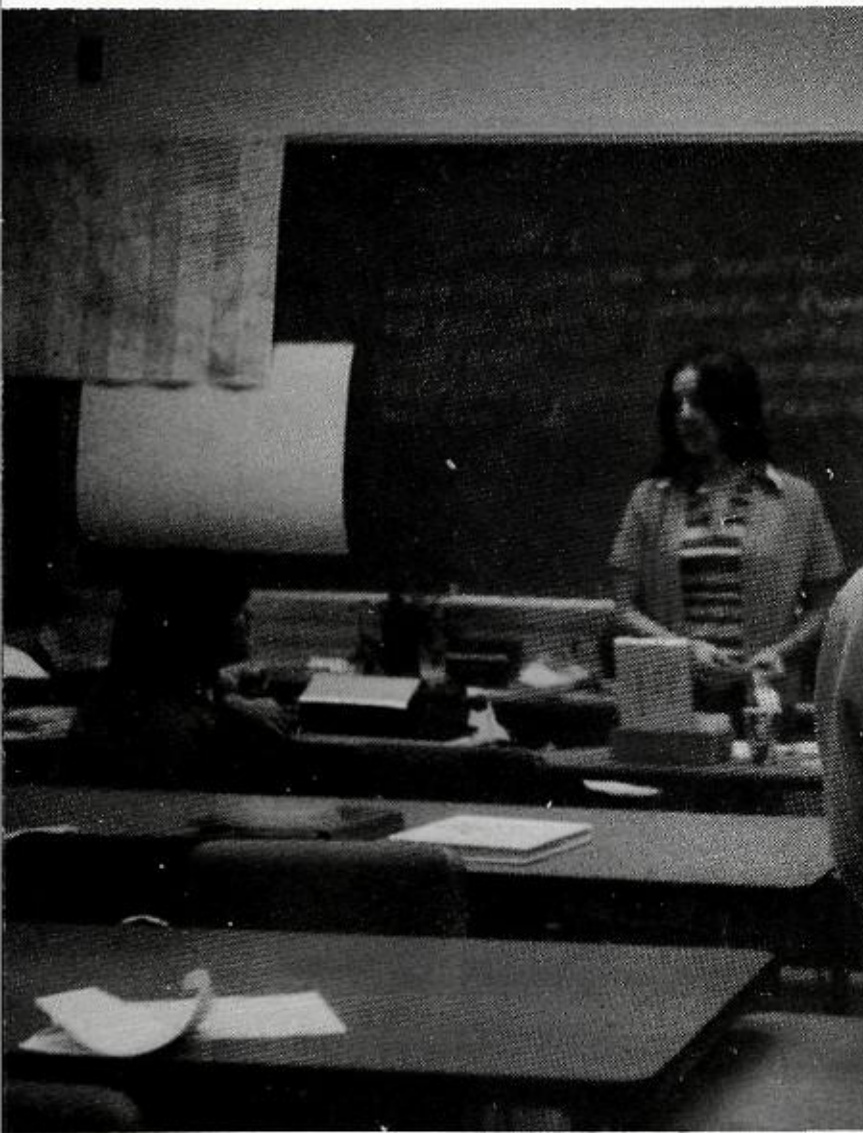

Chan plans to attend U.N.M. and, possibly, become a teacher.

He chose to come to Albuquerque because his sister had been here and had several friends. Benny came to Albuquerque, on a student visa also, as his application to Australia was not accepted and Chan was coming to AHS.

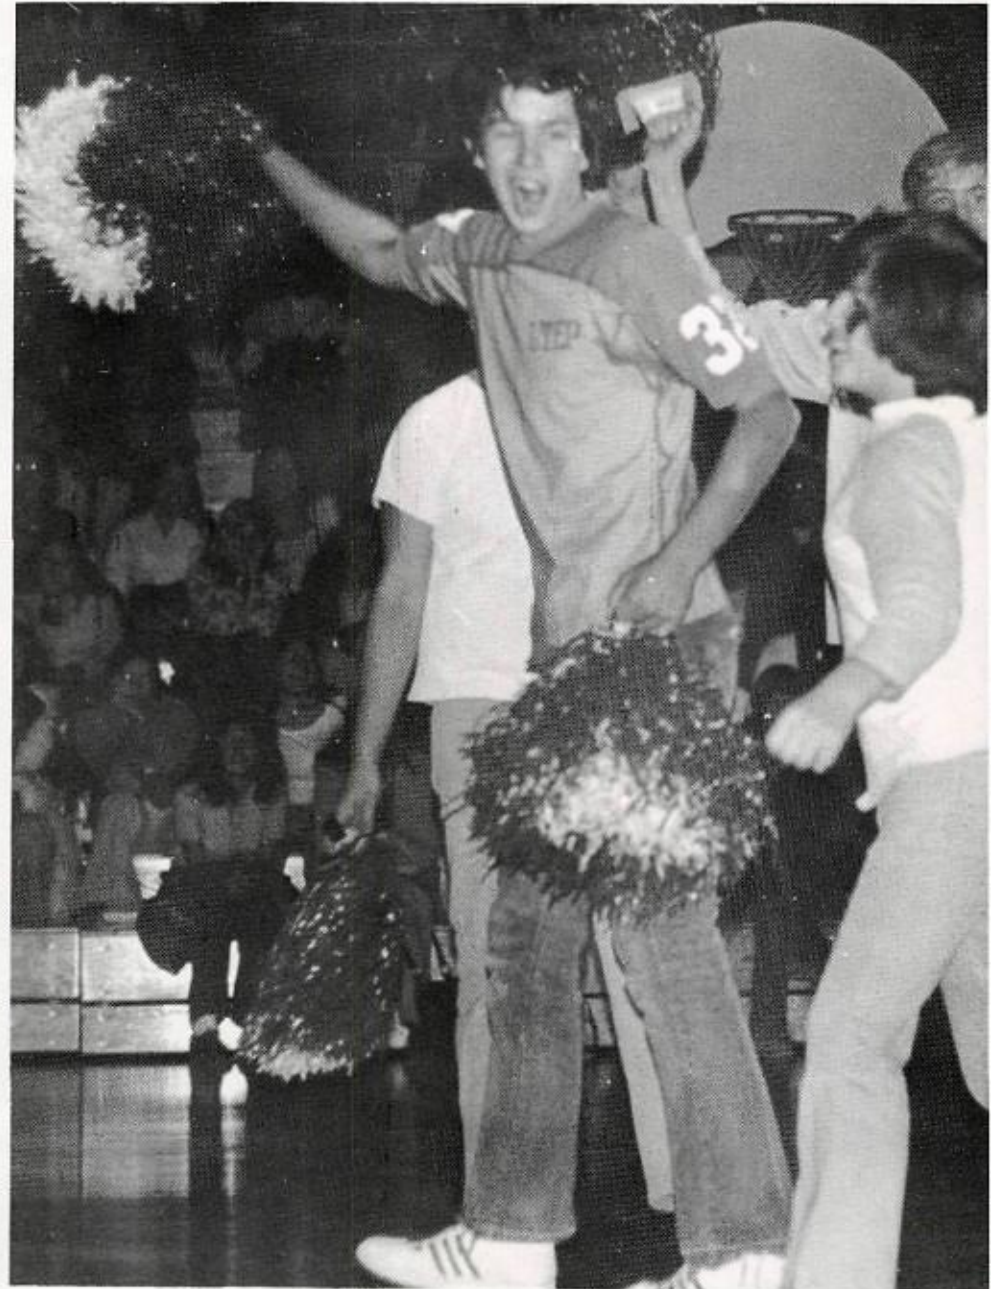

Paulos Agonafer was a senior at AHS this year on a student visa from Ethiopia. He found AHS very nice, especially his Algebra class and Communicative Arts. He would like to go to U.N.M. and continue in the field of Mathematics. The mild-mannered 17-year-old found teachers almost equal to students here as opposed to the Ethiopian teachers being put on somewhat of a pedestal. "Teachers in Ethiopia place an emphasis on theory rather than practicality as they do in the States," said Paulos.

November - A Month Full

of Festivity

Keeping the month of November a lively month, was the aim of many organizations. The Yearbook staff, in order to encourage students to purchase the yearbook, put on an entertaining and delightful sequence of skits along with the Yucca staff.

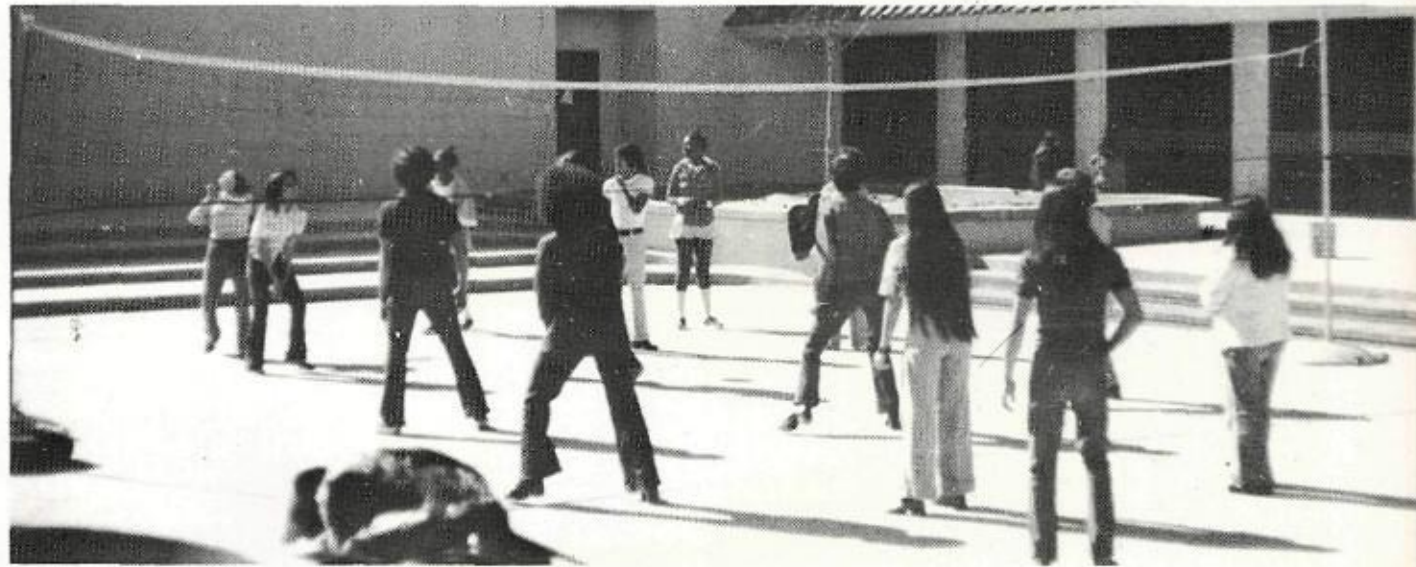

The Thanksgiving holiday brought much excitement to the school with the "turkey shoot," a contest sponsored by R.O.T.C.

Along with the holidays though, came much hard work by Senior class members and other interested people, in order to produce a qualified entry in the float division. Much satisfaction resulted when the Senior Class Christmas float took first place.

Student Senate, along with Rio Grande High School, also did a splendid job on another entry into the parade.

Also representing Albuquerque High School in the parade were R.O.T.C., Marching Band, Bulldoggies, and the Cheerleaders who won a special award.

Christmas Spirit Come

This was one of many different events sponsored by Student Senate, which turned out successfully, the crowning of Snow King and Queen. Herbert Stanley and Patricia Martinez were crowned Snow King and Queen at an assembly here at school on Dec. 13, 1974. Each club paid $3.00 to qualify two people to represent their club for King and Queen candidates. This was followed by a Winter Dance on Saturday.

Variety Offered at Night School

Students from far and near came together to take advantage of the wide range of classes such as English, typing, science, history, and art being offered at Albuquerque High's night school. AHS was fortunate to be one of the few high schools that did offer night classes which were held Monday through Thursday. The night school principal was Claude Davidson. He was assisted by secretary Bessie Hopkins.

The Life and Times

Remember the times when the students were going to walk out of school because they were tired of being busted everyday in the parking lot and being suspended if they were caught in the halls without a pass?

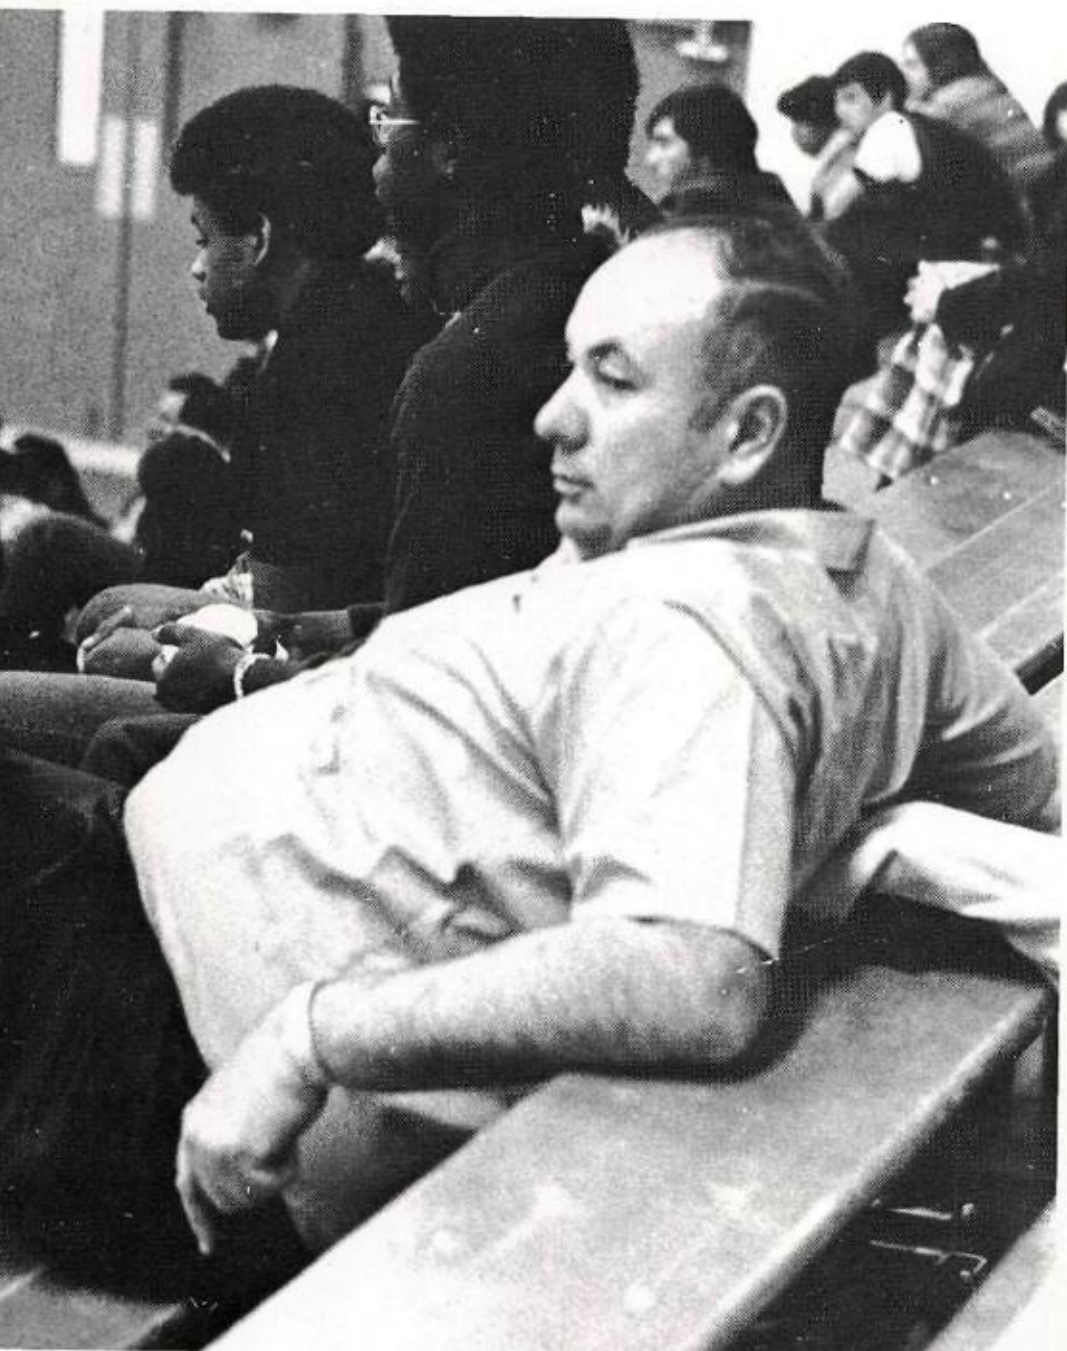

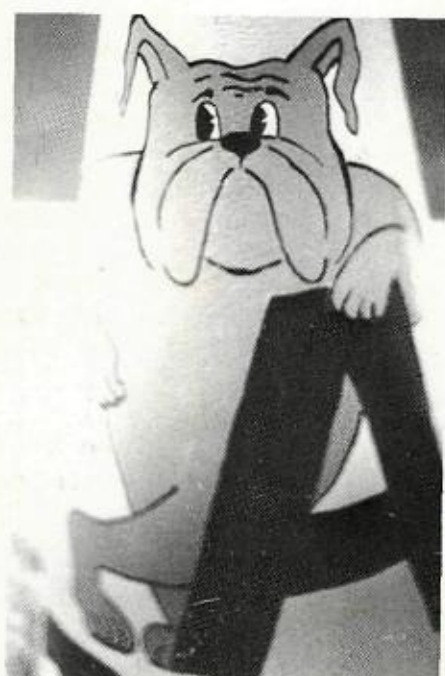

But with all the hard times there were always the cheerleaders to brighten up the day with their spirit. Vodra Cox received the Junior Miss trophy after Eldorado High had held the title for two years in a row.

In the morning when the students came to school half asleep there were always fresh donuts in the commons area. Little sisters and brothers were often seen around the school. And remember the time when we won the 1000th win since 1902 when we played against Santa Fe?

To a hard worker,
John Castells

Randy,

I'm really glad I got to know you this year.
I admire you much.
You're a beautiful
writer and beautiful person. I know you'll be a success in every way. Just don't let the hard times "kick your ass".
Take care & God bless!

Love always,
Mary Lighton

Randy,
Thanks for all the help you gave us with the paper. Even though nobody else did. It's been cool knowing you -
Keep in touch - see you
this summer.

Editor,
Robert J. Garcia

My dear friend (in luck to the end... Halleluia!
Come it beginning) Halleluia!
Love in Jesus name,

Go.

Randy, I am so glad that you came to Alb & to Ridgecrest.
You have really been a light to my path.
Randy, I had a very, very, wonderful time with you at Albuquerque. I really enjoyed it. Randy, I know how much love has happened
if you know. "I didn't expect this in."
I have a great guy and I really will miss you.
I have a lot of friends.

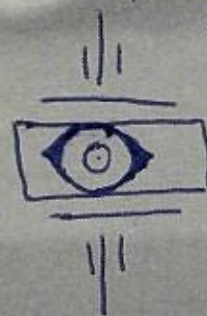

Randy,
It really has been nice having
you in my humanities
class. I hope you have a lot of luck in graduating
next year!

Love ya
mantha
I enjoy getting to know
you. Hope I'll see you some time soon or heaven! Stay nice Christ, love in Butty

Randy:

A really nice guy
I met in yearbook
I hope you have a good summer
And I hope you
come to A.H.S. "
Next Year = 76
Good Luck
(You'll need it)

Randy,

I'm glad that you
were a part of the youth group this year. I pray you will remain
active as you move
to Hamogordo. Hope
also you ~~can~~ come back and visit or
stay here, I'd be willing.
Mike Huffman.

Greet the evening's soft embrace
A closing for a while

Our beginning starts with someone's dreams
Are those dreams yours
and mine?

While singing life's potential goals
And cherishing
memories gone

We pray for future sunrises
And hope for future dawns . . .

Randy,
Good luck next year - hope you
get a scholarship...
you deserve one.
Scott

Randy,
You're a great
guy and friend.
Follow your dreams and
you'll be happy.
Take care and stay cool.

Dear Randy,
I am glad to have met you this year. I hope + pray that you will always stay with God and that He will bless you + direct you in what ever you do.
God Bless you.
Love in Christ,
Ann '75 (Hornets Rule!) Ha Ha

Do Randy
Your real one of the nicest guys I've ever known. It was nice working with you. So here's wishing you the best of everything.
Always get it

To Randy

A real cool person I've enjoyed in the Journalism
class of ours

Lots of love
in the future to come

Randy
Robinson

Randy,
I don't know you that well, but I have enjoyed meeting around you.
I think I could have known you better.
If I could to know
you friend to know
happy Mitchell

To Randy,
I've really enjoyed knowing you this year. I wish you the best of luck
your senior year.

Randy!
I'm really glad to know you.
I've got to go to work. They could not get to what I want hardly anybody does. I say please keep your heart. Do not as a really
one. You are a favor and do me a favor and fall in like I plan on Because
do hurt her and I

I won't you won't may other
No I felt. (that wasn't hurt)
I felt. (that wasn't hurt)
to make you just
but I can't feelings) please don't
I won't ever forget you wherever you are
with me. But I know your book. But I know
to you I want you to me And Remember that I
very much, as a Christian more than I would
you to save you
much for letting me your year books. I high is a good school
